

The chart below shows a decline in the department's disruption rate this past fiscal year. The national average for adoption disruption is 10-12%. A disruption is defined as an adoptive placement that is not finalized because the child has to be moved.

