

PROJECT MUSE®

About the Authors

Published by

Klemencic, Manja and M. Luescher.

Student Politics in Africa: Representation and Activism.

African Minds, 2016.

Project MUSE. <https://muse.jhu.edu/book/46097>.

➔ For additional information about this book

<https://muse.jhu.edu/book/46097>

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License.

[136.0.111.243] Project MUSE (2025-01-31 07:42 GMT)

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Dr Evans Aggrey-Darkoh is a Lecturer at the Department of Political Science, University of Ghana. He holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Ghana. Dr Aggrey-Darkoh's research focus is in the areas of public policy, public administration, parliamentary democracy and political theory. He has also published extensively in refereed journals.

Prof. Philip G Altbach is research professor and founding director of the Center for International Higher Education in the Lynch School of Education at Boston College, USA. From 1995 to 2013, he was the J Donald Monan, SJ University Professor at Boston College. He was the 2004–2006 Distinguished Scholar Leader for the New Century Scholars initiative of the Fulbright program. He has been a senior associate of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and served as editor of the Review of Higher Education, Comparative Education Review, and as an editor of Educational Policy. Altbach has published extensively on international higher education and student politics, including Turmoil and Transition: Higher Education and Student Politics in India, and Student Politics in America, among many other books. He co-edited the International Handbook of Higher Education, and his most recent books include (with Jamil Salmi) The Road to Academic Excellence: The Making of World-Class Research Universities. Dr Altbach holds BA, MA and PhD degrees from the University of Chicago.

Mr Bekele Workie Ayele is a senior lecturer in the School of Education, University of Gondar, Ethiopia. He is currently a PhD candidate of Curriculum Design and Development at Addis Ababa University, Ethiopia, and defended his dissertation in June 2015 on 'Internationalisation of Postgraduate Curriculum at Addis Ababa University: From Design and Development to Practice'. He is also the project leader of Internationalisation of Higher Education in sub-Saharan Africa: A Comparative Study of East and West African Regions. In addition, his research focuses on ICTs and internationalisation; quality assurance; research networks; indigenisation of higher education; and student politics. He has published in local and international scholarly journals, chapters in books and books.

Dr Pascal Bianchini is a research associate at entre d'études en sciences sociales sur les mondes africains, américains et asiatiques (CESSMA) in Paris, France, and visiting lecturer at Gaston Berger University in Saint Louis, Senegal. He obtained a PhD in African Studies from the University of Bordeaux (Centre d'études d'Afrique noire) and a PhD in Sociology at the Diderot University (Paris VII). He has published several articles and books in the field of sociology of education in Africa (especially on Senegal, Burkina Faso and Rwanda). His research focused initially on educational policies and social movements (e.g. student organisations, teachers' unions) and has extended to other subjects such as social mobility, intellectuals, etc. He is currently investigating political activism in the 1960s and the 1970s in Senegal. His publication list is to be viewed at <http://cessma.univ-paris-diderot.fr/spip.php?article121>.

Dr Gérard Birantamije holds a PhD in Political and Social Sciences from the Université Libre de Bruxelles. He is a lecturer and director of quality assurance at Université du Lac Tanganyika in Burundi. Birantamije's research focuses on issues of security sector reform, governance and peace-building policies in the Great Lakes Region. He has recently published several chapters in books including 'The Construction of a Civil-Military Regime through Security Sector Governance in Burundi' (with Pascal Niyonizigiye) in Peacebuilding in sub-Saharan Africa: African Perspectives (edited by SK Ewusi 2014), as well as articles in scholarly journals such as 'Sending peacekeepers abroad, sharing power at home: Burundi in Somalia' (with Nina Wilén and David Ambrosetti) in the Journal of Eastern African Studies (2015).

Dr Mlungisi Cele obtained his PhD in Educational Studies from the University of the Western Cape, Cape Town, South Africa. He is working in the South African Department of Science and Technology responsible for policy, strategy and planning and is currently seconded as acting CEO to the National Advisory Council on Innovation (NACI). Prior to this he worked as a researcher at the University of the Western Cape's Education Policy Unit. His research interests include student and youth politics, higher education policy, and science and technology policy. Dr Cele has published previously in international books and scholarly journals including a chapter in the book Youth and Higher Education in Africa: The Cases of Cameroon, South Africa, Eritrea and Zimbabwe published by CODESRIA in 2009.

Mr Godlove N Chifon is a lecturer in the School of Hospitality, Fashion Design and Tourism Management at the National Polytechnic Bambui, Bamenda, Cameroon, and a part-time lecturer at the Higher Institute of Hospitality, Management and Technology (HIHMATech) Bamenda. He holds a Bachelor of Arts in Geography and Environmental Management from the University of Dschang, Cameroon, a BA (Hons) and a masters in Development Studies from the University of the Western Cape, Cape Town, South Africa. The focus of his current PhD research is student activism and student participation in higher education governance. Chifon is passionate about student affairs issues. In addition, his teaching and research interests concern the travel and tourism industry, tourism marketing, tourism planning and management. Chifon's masters thesis was Sustainable Tourism and Poverty Alleviation in South Africa published in 2011. For this purpose he obtained a scholarship award from DAAD, the German Academic Exchange Service, from 2008 to 2010.

Dr Emmanuel Debrah is a senior lecturer at the Department of Political Science, University of Ghana. He holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Ghana and currently serves as the Chair/Head of the Department of Political Science, University of Ghana. He is also an adjunct lecturer at the Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration (GIMPA). His research interests are in the areas of public administration, public policy, decentralisation and local government, and administrative leadership. Dr Debrah has published extensively in internationally refereed journals all over the world.

Dr Samuel Fongwa is a post-doctoral fellow and researcher at the Centre for Research on Higher Education and Development at the University of the Free State, South Africa. Dr Fongwa has been involved in various higher education-related projects, including the 2012 profiling of higher education in the SADC region by SARUA, the 20-year review of higher education in South Africa by the Council on Higher Education, the current programme for diaspora support for higher education in Africa through CODESRIA, and a three-year British Council-funded project on graduate employability. Dr Fongwa holds a BSc, BA Honours, MEd and PhD. He has presented his research at national and international academic forums, and published both locally and internationally. His research interests include higher education and development, community engagement, graduate employability, higher education policy and partnerships in Africa.

Dr Ransford Edward van Gyampo is a senior lecturer at the Department of Political Science, University of Ghana. He holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Ghana. Until recently, he was a Visiting Scholar at the Department of Government and International Relations at the University of South Florida, Tampa, USA. Dr Gyampo is also a research fellow at the Governance Unit of the Institute of Economic Affairs (IEA) and an adjunct lecturer at the Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration (GIMPA). His research interests are in the areas of youth participation and student activism, good governance, democracy and development. He serves on the editorial boards of several international journals and has published extensively in peer-reviewed academic journals across the globe.

Mr James Otieno Jowi teaches Comparative and International Education in the School of Education, Moi University, Kenya. He is also currently a PhD candidate at the Centre for Higher Education Policy Studies (CHEPS) at the University of Twente, Netherlands, and was a student leader at the University of Oslo, Norway, and Moi University, Kenya. Jowi is the founding executive director and secretary-general of the African Network for Internationalisation of Education (ANIE). He has published on the internationalisation of higher education in Africa, as well as on matters of student leadership, management and governance in higher education.

Dr Mesbarch W Katusiimeh is a senior lecturer in the Department of Leadership and Governance, Makerere University Business School, Kampala, Uganda. Previously he worked at Uganda Christian University as Head of Department of Public Administration and Governance. He holds a PhD from Wageningen University, an MA degree in Public Administration and Management and a Bachelor's degree in Social Sciences from Makerere University, Uganda. He has a research interest in local and urban governance and the politics of African development on which he has contributed chapters to academic books and articles to refereed journals.

Dr Manja Klemenčič received her PhD in International Studies from the University of Cambridge, UK. She is a fellow and lecturer in sociology at the Department of Sociology, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Harvard University and an associate research fellow at the Centre of Educational Policy Studies, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. Her research interests are in the sociology of higher education; higher education policy and universities in the context of globalisation; student political behaviour: student movements and student unionism; student culture; and comparative politics. Manja is a former secretary-general of the European Students' Union. Her publications include guest editing two special issues on student governance in Western Europe in the European Journal of Higher Education 2012 and on global perspectives in Studies in Higher Education (2014), and several articles and book chapters. She is editor-in-chief of the European Journal of Higher Education.

Dr Lis Lange is Vice-Rector: Academic at the University of the Free State in South Africa. Before joining the University of the Free State, she was executive director of the Higher Education Quality Committee of the Council on Higher Education of South Africa. Dr Lange has served as a member of the board of the International Network of Quality Assurance Agencies in Higher Education (INQAAHE). She is the editor of an academic journal focused on the humanities, Acta Academica. She has undertaken research and published in the fields of history, higher education and quality assurance both locally and internationally. Dr Lange's research interests are focused on the philosophy and politics of education. She has done research on change in higher education as well as on the meanings and possibilities of the notion of transformation, especially at curricular level. Her current work explores the vitality of Hannah Arendt's thinking in understanding higher education.

Dr Thierry M Luescher (Luescher-Mamashela) is Assistant Director: Institutional Research at the University of the Free State in South Africa. Prior to this he was senior lecturer in Higher Education Studies and extraordinary senior lecturer in political studies at the University of the Western Cape, South Africa. Luescher is a member of the HERANA network and a senior researcher in the Centre for Higher Education Transformation/CHET in Cape Town. He obtained his PhD in political studies from the University of Cape Town where he was also a student leader. His research in international comparative higher education is focused on the nexus of higher education with development and politics in developing countries, and particularly higher education governance; student politics; the student experience of higher education, student affairs, and related issues in higher education policy and development. He is editor of the Journal of Student Affairs in Africa and member of the international editorial boards of Makerere Journal of Higher Education and African Higher Education Dynamics. He has published in international and South African journals including Studies in Higher Education and Tertiary Education and Management, the Journal of Higher Education in Africa and Perspectives in Education. He is author/co-author of a number of chapters in book and research reports. His publication list can be viewed at: www.thierryluescher.net.

Mr Taabo Mugume is a researcher in the Monitoring and Institutional Research Unit of the Directorate of Institutional Research and Academic Planning, University of the Free State, South Africa. He has previously worked as research assistant on the HERANA Student Experience and Democracy project at Makerere University, Uganda, and in the Political Studies Department at the University of the Western Cape and Sustainable Livelihoods Foundation, Cape Town. Taabo holds an MAdmin degree in political science (cum laude) from the University of the Western Cape, South Africa. He has co-authored an article for Studies in Higher Education and a chapter in the book Knowledge Production & Contradictory Functions in African Higher Education (edited by N Cloete, P Maassen & T Bailey 2015).

Dr Ibrahim Oanda is Programme Officer: Research and Coordinator of the CODESRIA Higher Education in Africa Leadership programme (HELP). He was previously associate professor in the Department of Educational Foundations, Kenyatta University, Kenya, teaching in Higher Education and Sociology of Education. In addition, Oanda has been leading the Kenyan part of British Council-funded research on Universities, Employability and Inclusive Development. Dr Oanda holds BEd, MEd and PhD degrees from Kenyatta University, Kenya. His recent publications include 'Internationalisation of higher education and implications for research and development trends in African universities' in The Development of Higher Education in Africa; Prospects and Challenges (Emerald 2013) and the co-edited Fifty Years of Educational Development in Kenya: Mapping out the Gains, Challenges and Prospects for the Future (JKF 2015).