I AM GRATEFUL to the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library, Yale University, for their assistance and for permission to quote from the following unpublished items from the Richardson Papers: the MS of Pointed Roofs, a MS fragment relating to the Foreword to Pilgrimage, and unpublished letters from Dorothy Richardson to John Austen (6 October 1945), Bernice Elliott (28 August 1940), Peggy Kirkaldy (6 May 1931) and Shiv K. Kumar (10 August 1952); and from the Bryher Papers, unpublished letters to Bryher ([Spring 1935], October 1938, 5 October 1945); to the Henry W. and Albert A. Berg Collection, The New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations for permission to quote from unpublished letters to Flora Coates (20 January 1944), Edward Sackville-West (23 November 1938), and Owen Wadsworth (27 January 1938); to the Pennsylvania State University Libraries for permission to quote from an unpublished letter to Henry Savage (3 June 1951); to the University of Ottawa Library, particularly the Interlibrary Loan department, for friendly long-term support; and especially to Mrs. Sheena Odle, the former executor of the Richardson Estate, for a copy of the Estate MS of March Moonlight, and to Mrs. Elizabeth Howell, the current executor, for permission to quote from it; also for permission to quote from the unpublished materials noted above. A sabbatical leave from the University of Ottawa enabled me to do much of the groundwork for this study.

My personal debts begin with my wife, Dorothy F. Thomson, whose thorough knowledge of Dorothy Richardson's text has been an unfailing help. They continue with the late Gloria Fromm whose scholarship and wise counsel encouraged me, and Harold Fromm who has been always generous and helpful. Kelly Barratt St-Jacques, while writing her doctoral dissertation, "'But who was there to describe her?' The Manuscripts of Dorothy M. Richardson's Pilgrimage" (University of Ottawa, 1991), brought to my attention and discussed with me all manuscript variants relating to time. I am grateful to Gillian Hanscombe for her sound advice, and to Lisa Pottie and Peader Cornelius Loughran for discussion of Richardson matters. Michael Johnson has been a great help in finding material relating to England. And Pauline Marrian generously shared her experience as one of Dorothy Richardson's close friends. The last word is for my editor, Robert Langenfeld, who has been a Gibraltar of good sense.
