3. Select “Insert Above” to add an additional row for the continued caption. Then select your new row and “Merge Cells” if necessary.

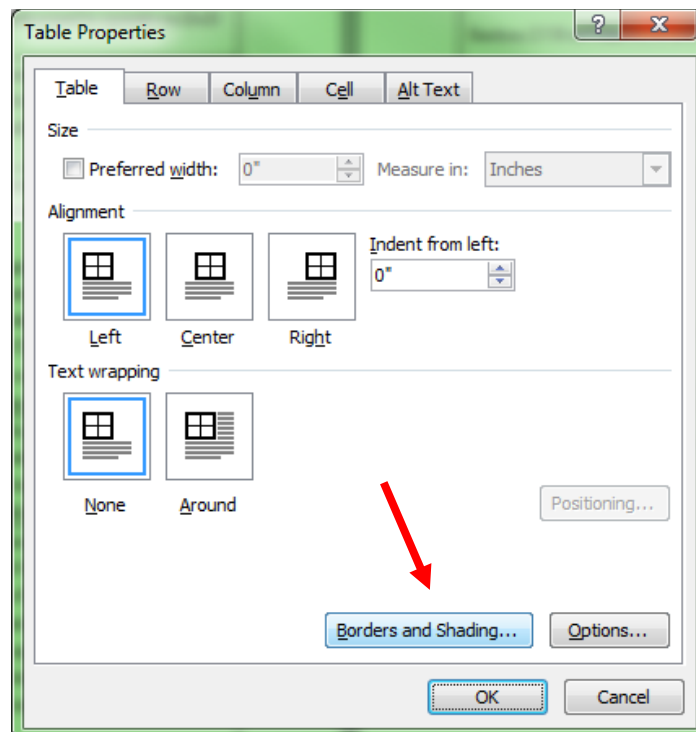

4. Type the original caption in the new row and add “, Continued.” Do not use the caption feature this time. Using your template styles, format the caption.

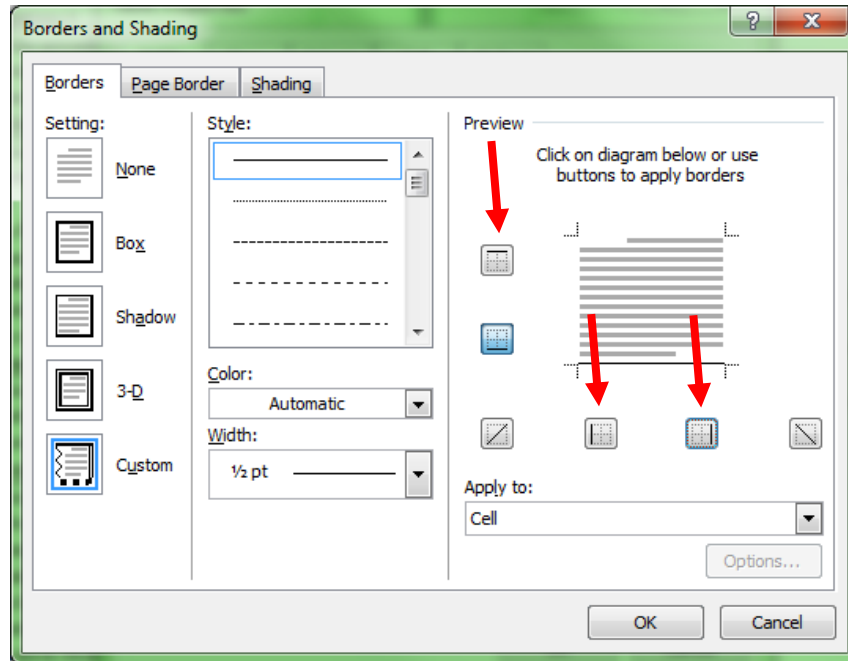

5. If appropriate, copy additional header text from the table on the first page and paste it to the new second table. If your table is more than two pages, designate this and the Continued caption row as “Repeat Header Rows.”

6. Select the Continued caption row. From the Table Tools Layout ribbon, select “Properties” on the left-hand side. Then select “Borders and Shading.”

7. Select “Custom,” then deselect the top, left, and right borders of your cell so that your preview only shows a line below the cell text; hit okay.

8. Your table should now look like this:
