

New Hurricane Safety Videos, Podcasts, now Available from NOAA

A new series of public service videos, produced by NOAA's National Hurricane Center and National Weather Service, for the 2011 hurricane season are now available for viewing and downloading.

Seven high-definition videos, each with a daily hurricane-related topic as part of National Hurricane Preparedness Week (May 22-28), are available in both English and Spanish.

The videos feature the expertise of National Hurricane Center Director Bill Read, hurricane specialists Dan Brown and Robbie Berg, National Weather Service meteorologists Gladys Rubio, Robert Molleda and Dan Gregoria, and FEMA Administrator Craig Fugate.

Also available are seven audio podcasts in English and Spanish.

Themes:

Day 1: The Hurricane Season

Day 2: Storm Surge

Day 3: Wind

Day 4: Inland Flooding

Day 5: The Team Effort

Day 6: Get a Plan

Day 7: What to Do Before/During/After a Storm

The videos and podcasts are located at: www.hurricanes.gov/prepare

Contact: nhc.publicaffairs@noaa.gov