SOUTHERN REGION

Recently a Department of State sponsored Middle East Technical Manager Hydrometeorological Workshop convened at Norman, OK. There were 18 Middle East participants at the workshop from Egypt, Jordan, Israel, Oman, Tunisia, Palestine (PLO), and Mauritania. The purpose of the workshop was to promote world peace and international scientific advancement. The group of distinguished visitors spent one week in Washington, DC and one week in Oklahoma. One of the topics on the agenda was the Cooperative Observer Program. Bob Manning

(Southern Regional Cooperative Program Manager) participated in the workshop and made a presentation on the Cooperative Observers Program and how true volunteerism works in the United States. Also, a field trip was made to the Chickasha, OK, coop station in Beverly Reese's (HMT, Norman) area of responsibility. Pictured below is Ms. Reese explaining the various types of weather equipment at the station. The visitors were very impressed with the Nation's Cooperative Observer Program and voiced interest in starting something similar in their countries.

GATES RECOGNIZED BY WEATHER SERVICE

Local weather expert and Times employee LEROY GATES was recognized recently by the U.S. Department of Commerce for COMPLETING 40 YEARS AS A COOPERATIVE OBSERVER for the National Weather Service.

According to Elbert W. Friday, Director of the National Weather Service, Mr. Gates has furnished records over a period of years which "have made a significant contribution to our knowledge of the climate of the United States."

Mr. Friday added, "The observations which you and others have taken through the years are in constant use, and are and will continue to be important in helping solve problems concerning the conduct of our industry, commerce, and agriculture."

Mr. Leroy was also commended last year, along with the city of Thomasville, which was recognized by the National Weather Service for 100 continuous years of weather recording.

A 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD was presented to LEROY GATES, OBSERVER, THOMASVILLE, AL. William Kent, CPM/BHM, made the presentation. Assisting him were former CPM, Ron Ferguson (right) and Jeff Garman (not pictured) from the Weather Service Office, Mobile, AL.

CLEWELL MARKS 40TH YEAR AS OBSERVER

A 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD was presented to CLEMON G. CLEWELL, OBSERVER, WATONGA, OK. The award was presented by Maxie Brown (right), HMT/Norman, OK.

Clemon G. Clewell (left) was congratulated on his 40-Year Length-of-Service Award by Al Abernathy the new HMT at Norman, OK.

CLEMON CLEWELL, official cooperative weather observer at Watonga, has been awarded the US government's 40-YEAR EMBLEM.

He also received a PLAQUE AND LETTER OF APPRECIATION from the Department of Commerce for his outstanding contribution to the field of meteorology.

Since 1953 Clewell has been faithfully recording at 7 a.m. every day Watonga's temperature highs and lows and precipitation amounts. He said he has received some relief help occasionally from his family members and neighbors, including Ernie Hoberecht.

Clewell previously received the Holm Award, given to a limited number of outstanding observers across the nation each year.

Clewell has been instrumental in observing and reporting the weather to the National Weather Service at Norman. At the end of each month, daily reports are mailed to the National Climatic Data Center, Asheville, NC, where they are published in Oklahoma climatological data and become part of the permanent record of the world's weather.

"Clewell is one of the many cooperative observers across Oklahoma who help make our job at the National Weather Service more efficient," said Maxie R. Brown, of the Norman-based center. "His dedication throughout the years has been a great service to the nation and to our job of observing and recording the world's weather."

"The National Weather Service, Norman office, joins the Secretary of Commerce, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administrator and the Weather Service Director in congratulating Clemon Clewell on this outstanding record of public service."

LEE HARGUS, OBSERVER, BUFFALO, OK, was presented a 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD. Pictured with Mr. Hargus is his wife. Presentation was made by Maxie Brown, HMT/OUN.

JOHN GRAVES AND WIFE, BILLIE, TIMPAS 13 SW, CO, were presented a 25-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD by Mike Elias.

FRANKIE STOKER, HASWELL, CO, was presented a 20-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD by Mike Elias.

JAMES WATKIN (pictured right) WANATAH 4 WNW, IN, was presented the JOHN CAMPANIUS HOLM AWARD by Robert Kenyon, CPM/IND. Assisting in the presentation were Jim McIntyre, MIC/MAWSC, and Bill Nelson, CPM/LOT.

James has an avid interest in the weather. He has taken thousands of school children on tours of the agriculture weather station and answered hundreds of questions from locals about the climate records over the 26 plus years he has been an observer. Significant data were recorded by James at two locations for over 15 years. Owing to the different soil types and elevation differences these two stations, which were about 1500 feet from each other, had significantly different climate records.

JOHN MUSHRUSH, OBSERVER, HOOPESTON, IL, for OVER 41 YEARS, was presented the THOMAS JEFFERSON AWARD at the Hoopeston American Legion.

John, who is 68, has been a volunteer observer for the National Weather Service since May 1951. He reads the instruments daily, and records high and low temperatures and rainfall amounts. John has acquired the weather records for Hoopeston dating back to 1902 and has made graphs in ten-year segments depicting the average temperature and precipitation. He uses his graphs for presentations at schools and organizations throughout east-central Illinois, and to keep a continuous picture of the climate in the Hoopeston area.

Attending the award ceremony were several local area dignitaries and political figures; led by Representative William Black, who started the proceedings by reading a letter of congratulations from President Bush for John's outstanding accomplishments. This was followed by an entourage of National Weather Service Representatives, lauding the praises of John Mushrush and his perfect record of continuous, accurate, and timely weather observations over the past 41 years. These guests were Bill Buckingham, CPM, IL; Roger Kenyon, CPM, IN; Al Shipe, Hydrologist, IN; John Curran, MIC/AM, IN; and presenting John with the actual award, Paul Daily, MIC/AM, IL.

Several other dignitaries were present for John's award presentation. One of which was Dr. Wayne Wendland, State Climatologist for IL, with the Illinois Water Survey, located on the campus of the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana.

CENTRAL REGION

A third-generation volunteer observer at Mapleton (her brother took observations for a time at the site established by their father), Scheer shares her weather enjoyment and sense of responsibility with her entire family. Her sister, Dorothy Pope, is the observer at the second Mapleton observation site.

Stepping up to receipt of the Jefferson Award seems a natural progression for someone as meticulous and humble as Mrs. Scheer, but her awards are definitely earned. "We don't just give awards out automatically," Central Region Cooperative Program Manager Tom Sinclair said from his Kansas City, MO, office. "The Weather Service only gives out five Jefferson Awards each year, so we're pretty particular about who receives them. Mrs. Scheer just has an outstanding record of observations and goes the extra mile in making sure everything is accurate and timely."

Slogging through mud puddles right after torrential rains and through snow drifts on the heels of blizzards hasn't been any more exciting or any easier for Mrs. Scheer than it would be for anyone else. There is a simple reason she has continued her dedication through her 48 years of service, a reason that emphasizes Mrs. Scheer's worthiness for the Jefferson Award. "We look on it as an opportunity to serve," she said.

The National Weather Service honored MAPLETON, IA, OBSERVER MAY SCHEER by presenting her the THOMAS JEFFERSON AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT. The ceremony was held at the Community Center.

Iowa Area Manager J. John Feldt and Iowa Cooperative Program Manger William R. Newman presented the agency's most prestigious volunteer award to Mrs. Scheer. Newman noted that, "Weather observing has been a significant interest in her life and she is top of the line."

Mrs. Scheer, 82, became the official observer for the Mapleton station in 1945, inheriting the family job started by her father, who established the station in 1936. Mr. Newman noted, "Her enthusiasm and willingness remain impressive. She is very enthusiastic and cooperative. She has displayed unusual accuracy, neatness, completeness, and promptness in her records for MORE THAN 48 YEARS."

Equipped with only a thermometer and a rain gage, the standard tools of the volunteer weather observer's trade, Mrs. Scheer is none-the-less looked to as the weather expert in Mapleton. She receives frequent calls asking how low or high temperatures were or how much precipitation fell. Noting, in a 1988 article, that "When you're out in the country, you watch for the signs, circles around the sun and moon, halos..."to indicate what weather is coming. Scheer is quick to note that, "I can just tell you what we've had, not what we're going to have."

NED STUMP (pictured on left with Mrs. Stump), PRAIRIE HEIGHTS HIGH SCHOOL received a 25-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD from Roger Kenyon. Mr. Stump is vocational agriculture department head and ensures that students record daily weather observations. The high school was given a 25-YEAR INTITUTIONAL AWARD for participation in the cooperative program.

CENTRAL REGION

BLOCKTON, IOWA - The National Weather Service honored Blockton volunteer Weather OBSERVER DEAN A. COBB with the JOHN CAMPANIUS HOLM AWARD, the agency's second highest award for volunteer observers, at a ceremony at the Legion Auxiliary Hall.

Iowa Area Manager J. John Feldt and Iowa CPM, William R. Newman presented the award to Mr. Cobb for, "outstanding accomplishments in the field of cooperative observations." The award is named for the Lutheran minister who was the first person known to take systematic weather observations in the American Colonies, beginning in 1644. The award is granted to a maximum 25 volunteer observers each year.

Mr. Cobb, 73, began his tenure as a volunteer Weather Service observer on September 9, 1958, taking over the site two miles south of Blockton that had been established by his father in 1941. He has maintained an exemplary record over the years, according to Thomas P. Sinclair, CPM for the 14-station Central Region headquartered in Kansas City, MO.

An active farmer who received a 35-year service award this year, Mr. Cobb has certainly met the reporting aspect of eligibility requirements. "Observations are accurate, neat, complete, and prompt," Newman said. "His attitude is great and the records perfect. He has given weather information to the public cheerfully and has offered to expand his services."

Mr. Cobb said he comes by his interest in weather naturally, and that it began at an early age. "Since I walked to country school a mile across the fields over hill and dale and across creeks," he said. "I needed to know how to dress appropriately for the kind of day it was, especially in the cold blustery days of winter."

Some of the more memorable weather events he cited from those years of interest include the election day snow storm when Franklin D. Roosevelt became president; the 1936 winter that set a record for continuous day below zero followed by a summer with a record number of days above 100°; the 9 inch-rainfall of August 1937; and the April 1973 blizzard that destroyed many cattle.

"As I have always been on the farm, I have always been a great observer of the weather," Cobb said, "probably because of my father's interest in it. Farmers are usually more interested in weather than many other classes of peoples as the success of their labor is greatly dependent upon the kind of weather that occurs."

HOWARD ROMSDALE, BRADSHAW, NE, began working as one of Nebraska's 320 official volunteer cooperative weather observers in the fall of 1963. Mr. Romsdale said he has taken temperature readings, measured the amount of precipitation daily, and "heard every weather joke imaginable."

He was recently presented a 30-YEAR SERVICE CERTIFICATE by the National Weather Service.

According to Nebraska's Cooperative Program Manager Terry Landsvork, the data provided by cooperative observers is used extensively by the National Weather Service, State Climatologist, and others in the public and private sectors. It eventually becomes a permanent part of the climatic record for the local area and nation.

Using equipment furnished by the National Weather Service, Mr. Romsdale is able to take a variety of weather measurements, transmitting his readings to a special weather computer in Omaha.

Mr. Romsdale said he and his wife Patricia Anne have assisted each other over the years, making sure they record necessary readings.

Although Mr. Romsdale said that taking the readings has become part of the "usual daily routine," there have been some "non-typical days" as a volunteer including when a windstorm blew through Bradshaw last July 8.

"The power was down and I knew I had to get my readings reported to the National Weather Service so I radioed them in from a transmitter in my pickup," Mr. Romsdale said. "Things were a little different that day."

WILLIAM "JOE" NITSCH, HAYES CENTER, NE, was presented a 15-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD by Mike Elias.

LOYD L. WEST of CREIGHTON, NE, was presented a 20-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD on April 28 by Terry Landsvork. He is pictured with his wife, Mary Lou.

Mr. West took over the job in 1973 from his father, Loyd West, who had been the Creighton observer since October 1945. Mr. West is an official observer who, using official NWS equipment, daily records precipitation amounts along with maximum and minimum temperatures.

There are over 260 volunteer cooperative weather observers in the state and nearly 12,000 nationwide. Observers are located at private residents, farms, municipal facilities, utilities, dams, parks, game refuges, radio stations, and many other locations.

Observations were first taken in Creighton in October 1932.

"The nation owes a sincere debt of gratitude to the cooperative weather observers who have quietly and steadily built up what amounts to a priceless national treasure in the finest tradition of volunteer service to their country," said Landsvork. "The United States Government, National Weather Service, and State Climatologist greatly appreciate this service and extend their congratulations to Mr. West for a job well done."

LOWELL SWANSON, OBSERVER, DALTON, NE, was presented a 15-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD by Mike Elias.

LLOYD VAUTHRIN, OBSERVER, FRANKLIN, NE, was presented a 10-YEAR SERVICE CERTIFICATE by the National Weather Service (NWS) on May 19th. Terry Landsvork, CPM/NWSO, Omaha, NE, presented the award. Using equipment furnished by the NWS, Lloyd has taken and recorded daily precipitation totals along with high and low temperatures at his home since April 1983. His readings are the official measurements for the Franklin area and are recorded as such at the National Climatic Data Center, Asheville, NC.

Previous to becoming Franklin's weather observer Lloyd had 28 years of experience as a weather observer at the Harlan County Dam for the Corps of Engineers.

THE AWARD CONSISTED OF A FRAMED SERVICE CERTIFICATE AND A LAPEL PIN. Lloyd Vauthrin received his Award from Terry Landsvork(right).

Lloyd Vauthrin is looking at the Temperature Sending Unit. This unit records and sends the temperature to an inside monitor.

Pictured is PETE KOCHER, OBSERVER, HAGUE, ND, with his 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD AND PIN. Picture and presentation by Vern Roller, CPM WSFO Bismarck. A special thanks to Pete's son Kevin who helps him with the observations.

The National Weather Service honored rural WATFORD CITY RESIDENT C.J. (CEPHAS) GODDARD with the presentation of the JOHN CAMPANIUS HOLM AWARD, the agency's second highest for volunteer weather observers on Wednesday, September 8, 1993.

Donald E. Stoltz, Area Manager for the National Weather Service for North Dakota, along with Vernon J. Roller, CPM/ND, and Pat Allard, OIC/Williston Weather Office, presented the award to Mr. Goddard for "Outstanding Accomplishments in the field of Cooperative Observations."

In nominating Mr. Goddard, Mr. Roller noted that, "Mr. Goddard virtually lives, enjoys, and loves his weather. The Williston Weather Service Office in northwest North Dakota depends heavily on this man when there is severe weather in northwest North Dakota."

Thomas Sinclair, Cooperative Program Manager for the Weather Service's 14-state Central Region headquartered in Kansas City, MO, noted that Holm Award recipients must meet stringent agency and community standards. "All our observers are truly dedicated people," Sinclair said, "but to be nominated for the Holm Award an observer really has to distinguish himself in accuracy, timelines, and consistency of reports; and he has to show himself to be an active, contributing member of his community."

Mr. Goddard, 88, fits both sets of criteria. He established the Watford City observing site November 17, 1971. He has recorded data on temperature, daily and hourly precipitation, and snow depth every day since then, monitoring three rain gages, a barometer, and two sets of specially calibrated thermometers for determining maximum and minimum temperatures. "When the National Weather Service asks for anything special from this man," Mr. Roller noted, "he drops whatever he is doing and always delivers. He is willing to get out and about in the middle of the night in severe weather situations for the good of his community."

KEVIN MILLER IS MOTT'S NEW WEATHER OBSERVER

KEVIN MILLER, MOTT'S OFFICIAL WEATHER OBSERVER, checks the rain gage. Since readings were taken Thursday morning, another 0.60 inch had fallen when this picture was taken early that afternoon.

Mott has a new official weather observer. Kevin Miller assumed duties of that position on June 30. Larry Messer had been the observer since 1991.

Mott's station is part of a nation-wide network which includes 200 reporting stations in North Dakota. Information gathered by these U.S. Weather Bureau stations is used by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to record and forecast weather.

Vernon Roller, National Weather Service, Bismarck, installed the weather station monitoring equipment in Miller's yard. A computer records high and low daily temperatures and daily precipitation. A "manual" rain gage records precipitation for visual observation.

"The have another instrument that measures wind speed and direction," Miller said. "I'd like to get that too." Roller is checking to see if that equipment can be added to the Mott station.

Reports are sent regularly to national stations in Des Moines, IA. Monthly written reports are mailed to Bismarck.

Previous weather station observers included Larry Messer, Vernon Lemke, Dean Johnson, and Gus Fiedler.

SISTER IGNACE, MILWAUKEE MOUNT MARY COLLEGE accepted a 25-YEAR INSTITUTIONAL AWARD from Roland Friedrick.

ROBERT DILLINGER, OBSERVER, DILLINGER, WY, was awarded a 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD.

The JOHN CAMPANIUS HOLM AWARD AND LETTERS OF CONGRATULATION were presented to WILLIAM AND ALBERTA JACKSON, HEART MOUNTAIN, WY, (NEAR CODY, WY). The presentation was made by the Wyoming CPM, Ray Kowrach. The Jacksions are among the homesteaders who developed the Big Horn Basin of north Wyoming.

JAMES I. NEWLAND, OBSERVER, COLONY, WY, was presented a 40-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD. Mr. Newland is a rancher in an isolated part of northeast Wyoming. The presentation was made during annual roundup at a neighboring ranch by the Wyoming Cooperative Program Manager, Ray Kowrach.

Robert Dillinger has been taking the weather observations at his ranch since 1953. The station was started by Jacob Dillinger in 1941. It has been passed down through various family members to Robert. Mr. Dillinger is a old-time rancher who continues to use horses to accomplish ranch jobs. He is active in community affairs and takes great pride in keeping the weather records.

✓ HAROLD ORCUTT (RIGHT), OBSERVER, SOUTH PHOENIX, AZ, received the JOHN CAMPANIUS HOLM AWARD. Anton Haffer, Area Manager for Arizona, presented the award on behalf of the NWS. Mr. Orcutt still works part time as a freight consultant, in addition to being an excellent weather observer.

✓ FOLSOM STATE PRISON, REPRESA, CA, received a 75-YEAR INSTITUTIONAL LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD. George Jackson, Associate Warden, accepted the award which was presented by Elizabeth Morse, MIC/Sacramento (CA) Weather Service Office. The prison, one of the largest facilities of its kind in the country, is 113 years old and has been taking daily precipitation measurements since 1918.

✓ BILL MCKAY, OBSERVER, ORACLE 2 SE, AZ, received a 15-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD. Mr. McKay is now retired from his work in a nearby copper mine. Behind Mr. McKay in the photo is one of several large century plants in his yard.

✓ LOUISE HALLBERG, OBSERVER, GRATON, CA, received a 25-YEAR LENGTH-OF-SERVICE AWARD. Norm Hoffmann, NWS Area Manager for Northern California, made the presentation.

Ms. Hallberg, an outstanding observer who has previously received the John Campanius Holm Award, is also an outstanding citizen of her community.

For the past five years she has conducted tours for school children in the fall and spring. She shows the children her apple orchard, flower garden, and many varieties of butterflies and birds, in addition to explaining the weather station to the older children.

A Social Call

Creede and stayed on her ranch for over 70 years. She continued to visit with guests of the ranch until her death.

* The WRIGHT RANCH IN MINERAL COUNTY, 18 MILES SOUTHWEST OF CREEDE, CO, remains one of the foremost symbols of the pioneering spirit in this area. But the ranch lost a bit of that spirit this summer when MABEL WRIGHT, one of the original settlers there, DIED AT THE AGE OF 94.

She lived on the family ranch for over 70 years and grew to embody the pioneering soul of the ranch. She continued working on the ranch until a year before her death and was influential in the survival of the family-run operations there.

Mrs. Wright was born November 1, 1898, in Lake City. She was one of eight Steele children. Her parents, Charles Steele and Cynthia Weed Steele, were pioneers in Hinsdale County.

Besides her work on the ranch, Mabel had been a WEATHER OBSERVER FOR THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE SINCE 1944. During the recent winters, when Mabel moved into Creede, her brother took over that responsibility.

Even with all of Mabel's accomplishments, the ranch remained her main focus. Charles Steele said, "When she moved to Creede for the winters she could barely wait to get out here again when the snow began to thaw. She loved her ranch."

Dorothy Steele, Charles' wife, said "This ranch was her pride and joy."

Mabel died July 21, but her spirit will never leave the land that she loved and the hearts of all who knew her.
