

U.S. ARMY FUTURES COMMAND

Command Sgt. Maj. Brian A. Hester

Command Sergeant Major

Command Sgt. Maj. Brian A. Hester acts as the principal advisor to the commanding general and staff on matters of health, welfare, morale, professional development and the effective utilization of personnel assigned to the command.

Hester enlisted in the Army as an infantryman in 1990, completing his first assignment with the 2nd Infantry Division in South Korea. He went on to serve in roles based in North Carolina, Louisiana, Maryland, Hawaii, South Carolina, and Iraq, fulfilling numerous leadership responsibilities and completing three tours in Iraq, two tours in Afghanistan and one tour in Kosovo.

Hester holds a bachelor's degree in liberal arts from Excelsior College and has completed multiple military education courses, including Ranger School and the Joint Special Operations Forces Senior Enlisted Academy.