CHAIRMAN WHEELER ANNOUNCES INTERGOVERNMENTAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Chairman Tom Wheeler today announced the members of the FCC's Intergovernmental Advisory Committee (IAC) for 2017-2019. The IAC provides guidance, expertise, and recommendations to the Commission on a range of telecommunication issues for which local, state, and Tribal governments explicitly or inherently share responsibility or administration with the Commission.

BACKGROUND AND MISSION

On September 29, 2016, the Commission announced the reauthorization of the IAC and sought nominations for membership.¹ The term of the previous IAC expired on July 14, 2016. The reauthorized IAC will operate for two years, with an option for the Commission to reauthorize it at the end of the two-year period.² The term will commence with the new IAC's first meeting at the Commission's headquarters in Washington, DC. The meeting date will be announced in a subsequent public notice.³

The 2017-2019 IAC will focus on the role of state, local and Tribal governments in facilitating broadband deployment and adoption, initiatives related to wireless infrastructure deployment, Universal Service programs, consumer complaints processes, and public safety issues.

MEMBERSHIP

The IAC is comprised of fifteen representatives of state, local and Tribal governments with expertise in telecommunications policy. The Commission's rules specify IAC membership in the following categories: four elected municipal officials (city mayors and city council members); two elected county officials (county commissioners or council members); one elected or appointed local government attorney; one elected state executive (governor or lieutenant governor); three elected state legislators; one elected or appointed public utilities or public service commissioner; and three elected or appointed Tribal representatives.⁴

While the Commission's rules authorize a fifteen-member IAC, the Chairman today announced fourteen members and one vacancy. The Commission continues to seek qualified applicants for one elected or appointed Tribal Official to serve as a member of the IAC.

As stated in Section 0.701 (b) of the Commission's rules, elected or appointed officials may designate a government employee to represent them on the IAC and to attend meetings on their behalf, provided that they submit a designation letter that is accepted by the Chairman of the Commission. However, to ensure compliance with the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA), such designation letters must be from an appropriate "elected officer of state, local and Tribal governments."⁵

Candidates are encouraged to provide links to any articles they have authored on relevant topics and/or public appearances available on the web for viewing.

EXEMPTION FROM THE FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT

Pursuant to the "intergovernmental communication" exemption of UMRA,⁶ the IAC is not subject to, and is not required to follow, the procedures set forth in the Federal Advisory Committee Act

⁶ See 2 U.S.C. § 1534 (b).

(FACA), 5 U.S.C. App 2 (1988).”⁷ Because the input that Congress sought to facilitate through the intergovernmental exemption is institutional in nature, the exemption covers federal communications with elected officials (or designated employees) involved in the governmental process at the state, local and Tribal levels. We clarify here that to be appointed to the IAC, under Commission rules, a member such as an “elected or appointed local government attorney” must be on the staff of the municipal or county government represented and be part of the governmental process.⁸ Our compliance with the requirements of section 204(b) of UMRA ensures that the IAC can continue to operate with the informality and flexibility that have proven so effective in the past and that inhere in its FACA-exempt status.
