Supporting displaced Ukrainians with cash and legal assistance

Kharkiv, Ukraine – Olga along with her 12-year-old daughter and their pets arrived in the Rivne region in eastern Ukraine in August 2024, having been evacuated due to hostilities in Donetsk. They are currently staying at a collective site for IDPs. To support their basic needs, Olga registered for UNHCR cash assistance, while NGO partner Right to Protect provided her with legal assistance. She says: “The money we received from UNHCR will go towards buying the essentials, a kettle and a bed. We live in a small room that we share with other IDPs like us, and I want to provide my daughter with as much comfort as possible.” Despite the adversity, Olga remains determined to find employment and enroll her daughter in a local school. © UNHCR

PROTECTION

2024 TARGET

515,000

Refugees from Ukraine supported with protection information and services through UNHCR and partners.

- Bulgaria: During August, UNHCR held six focus group discussions in Sofia to assess socio-economic and financial inclusion challenges faced by refugees. Refugees from Ukraine identified the lack of language courses as a key barrier to employment and vocational training. High accommodation costs and real estate agency fees were also highlighted. Refugees stressed the need for accommodation support as they work to establish their lives and find employment. The results of the discussions will inform UNHCR's future protection response.
- Hungary: To assess the impact of the legislative changes on state-subsidized accommodation, UNHCR conducted field monitoring visits to several collective shelters to gather information for advocacy, identify cases with specific needs, make referrals and provide counselling to affected individuals. In coordination with partners, UNHCR monitored shelters as the legislative changes took effect, when over a hundred refugees lost their accommodation at certain locations. UNHCR worked with civil society, municipalities, and shelter operators to identify alternative shelter options. In addition to monitoring activities, UNHCR is continuing advocacy regarding legislative changes affecting refugees in subsidized shelters, including identifying solutions for evicted families.
- Lithuania: As part of regular protection monitoring, on 9 August UNHCR undertook a monitoring visit to Pastogė child welfare centre in Kanaus (west of Vilnius), which is among the institutional care facilities housing unaccompanied and separated children (UASC) from Ukraine. Ten children from Ukraine are currently present at the centre — with four preparing to attend university and the others in secondary school, most of whom are aged 16+. UNHCR continues to monitor the situation of UASC in the country while supporting local capacities for caregiver institutions.
- Moldova: The UNHCR-led PSEA Network trained 16 staff from Moldova's National Centre for Prevention of Abuse to Children on PSEA standards. This training equipped frontline workers with critical knowledge and essential skills to identify, prevent, and respond to abuse, enhancing child protection and creating safer environments for vulnerable children in Moldova.
- Poland: In August, UNHCR responded to 227 calls through its Counselling Line/RCC, totaling 3,740 in 2024. Refugees from Ukraine made up 86 per cent of the callers.

- Romania: On 29 August, UNHCR held an awareness session with 25 Roma refugees from Ukraine at the Roma Education Center in Bucharest. The session—which included adolescents and adults—focused on GBV prevention and self-defense techniques. Managed by the Roma Education Fund, the center provides vital educational and integration support for Roma refugees.
- Slovakia: As part of Accountability to Affected Populations (AAP) response, UNHCR shared its Protection Brief III with refugee communities in Ukrainian, Slovak, and English languages via its Communication with Communities (CWC) channels. The brief provides information on how UNHCR supports the government and municipalities in enhancing protection and inclusion, its advocacy for refugee rights as well as how it uses information gathered from assessments.
