DECISIONIMPLEMENTATION*HUNDRED AND THIRTY-SECOND SESSION OF THE COUNCIL
(Rome, 18-22 June 2007)*ACTIVITIES OF FAO AND WFP*REPORT OF THE TWENTY-SEVENTH
SESSION OF THE COMMITTEE ON
FISHERIES (ROME, 5-9 MARCH 2007)

Continue, as the only global fisheries body, to promote the implementation of the Code of Conduct for Responsible Fisheries, its related International Plans of Action and the Strategy for Improving Information on Status and Trends in Capture Fisheries, and strengthen the role of Regional Fisheries Management Organizations (para. 7)

Increase technical and financial assistance to developing states, in particular as regard their efforts to meet requirements for international market access (para. 10)

REPORT OF THE EIGHTEENTH
SESSION OF THE COMMITTEE ON
FORESTRY (ROME, 13-16 MARCH 2007)

Continue leadership role in the Collaborative Partnership on Forests and strengthen activities in the area of monitoring, assessment and reporting on forests at the national, regional and international levels (para. 14)

Enhance cooperation with the United Nations Forum on Forests to achieve the purposes of the non-legally binding instrument on all types of forests (para. 14)

Facilitation of the implementation of the Code and its International Plans of Action is an on-going priority activity of the Fisheries Department, embracing most normative and field work. Work towards this end will be continued.

The Fisheries Department has an important ongoing programme of work in developing countries, including trade issues, and will continue these activities. Extra-budgetary funds are also being sought to support and strengthen this work.

The Assistant Director-General, Forestry Department continues to serve as the Chair of the Collaborative Partnership on Forests (CPF). FAO has proposed, and other CPF members have agreed, to use the FAO Global Forest Resources Assessments (FRA) as the framework for monitoring, assessing and reporting on forests. Additional monitoring parameters on policies, institutions and environmental indicators will also be included in FRA 2010.

The next cycle of Regional Forestry Commissions in 2008 and the Nineteenth Session of the Committee on Forestry (COFO) in 2009 will provide an opportunity for countries to consider actions designed to achieve the goals included in the non-legally binding instrument for all types of forests. FAO is fully committed to supporting country and regional initiatives in this regard.

DECISION

Continue efforts to strengthen the Regional Forestry Commissions, stressing the importance of an effective regional link between global forest policies and COFO, and implementation on the ground (para. 15)

Assist interested Member Nations to develop comprehensive strategies for bioenergy (para. 16)

Prepare an analytical report on the social, economic and environmental impacts of changes in the use of wood for energy generation (para. 16)

Continue to accord high priority to forests and climate change, and assist Member Nations in developing more effective strategies for adaptation (para. 17)

Continue to work with the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change on the potential benefits of reduced deforestation in reducing carbon emissions (para. 17)

IMPLEMENTATION

In the spring and summer of 2007, the Executive Committees of all six Regional Forestry Commissions met to plan their work programmes for the medium-term, and to set the respective agendas for the next cycle of Commission meetings in 2008. All six Commissions will focus on strengthening regional links between global policies and actions on the ground. In addition, the COFO Steering Committee, which comprises the chairs of all six Commissions, will meet in the summer of 2008 to ensure that Nineteenth Session of COFO in March 2009 continues to emphasize linkages between global policies and actions at the regional and national levels.

FAO is preparing a concept note for the development of national bioenergy strategies. The Director-General has also invited Ministers to discuss these issues at a Special Event on Forests and Energy during the FAO Conference in November 2007.

Two analytical reports on this issue will be published by FAO in the autumn of 2007 to address impacts on both OECD and G-77 countries. These reports will be available for consideration by Members prior to the Special Event on Forests and Energy in November 2007.

FAO is developing a capacity-building programme to assist in better responding to the potential opportunities under the proposed instrument on reducing emissions from deforestation. The Forestry Department is also leading regional studies of forestry adaptation strategies in Africa and Latin America. Moreover, Decentralized Forestry Officers participated in a workshop in September 2007 on strategies to assist developing countries in implementing more effective forestry programmes and in accessing funding sources to reduce deforestation and afforestation, as well as on promoting reforestation measures in mitigating climate change.

FAO hosted the UNFCCC Workshop on Adaptation Planning and Strategies in September 2007 that dealt with adaptation in the forest and other sectors within its mandate.

DECISIONIMPLEMENTATION

Continue efforts in assisting developing countries to implement sustainable forest management by addressing the social, economic and environmental dimensions of forests and trees outside forests (para. 18)

FAO continues to provide input to intergovernmental deliberations on a UNFCCC instrument to reduce deforestation emissions (including through a Side Event at the UNFCCC Scientific Body for Scientific and Technological Advice in May 2007 and planned events at the UNFCCC Conference of the Parties in December 2007). FAO is also involved in recently-launched related initiatives by the Government of Australia and the World Bank.

Continue support to countries in developing their capacities for forest information (para. 19)

FAO continues to support national efforts to increase countries' capacity to assess forest resources and to strengthen policies and institutions, primarily through support extended for national forest assessments and programmes. The National Forest Programme Facility hosted by FAO has currently expanded its support to 60 developing partner countries as a result of increasing donor assistance.

FAO support to national forest assessments continues to increase, but is subject to the availability of extra-budgetary resources. The Global Forest Resources Assessment (FRA) programme will sponsor eight Regional Workshops and a Global Workshop for all countries in 2008 and Regional Training Workshops on Forest Policies, Laws and Institutions are planned for French-speaking and English-speaking African countries in 2008, following a successful Workshop in Latin America in 2007. National and Regional Workshops are also planned in 2008 for national correspondents for forest products information. A Forest Information Management Project in Central America, planned for late 2007, will serve as a pilot for other Sub-regions.

Following the publication of the “Livestock’s Long Shadow – Environmental Issues and Options” and of the publications stemming from the inter-institutional process on “Livestock in a Changing Landscape”, the Organization will organize consultations agreed with all the relevant stakeholders, including from the private sector and from relevant government units of the targeted countries, to produce the outputs envisaged.

The “Livestock in a Changing Landscape” process is underway, and major publications on status and action requirements, including on livestock as important direct and indirect water users, have been produced. The focus is shifting from crop management and improvement systems to in enhancing resilience to the effects of climate variation.

An information document will be submitted to the Thirty-fourth Session of Conference in November 2007 for consideration by the Thirty-fourth Session of the Committee on World Food Security (CFS) in 2008. See document C 2007/INF/21.

The Organization is currently leading the development of the State of Food and Agriculture 2008 (SOFA) entitled: Bioenergy: Can it Fuel a Rural Renaissance? The report will examine bioenergy, especially liquid biofuels, and address the biophysical and economic potential, global and local environmental impacts, agricultural commodity price impacts and implications for poverty and hunger, and will explore policy options conducive to positive results for people and the environment.
