						Any qualitative and quantitative information regarding reported injuries in Antarctica (at the three bases and any field camps) for some period of time, say 2000 to present. It would be helpful if the data included: Types of injuries, frequency or count of the injuries in each type location of the injuries (base name or field camp name) population count at the base at the time the injury occurred (seasonal average population at that location is fine for this if it's an easier number to obtain) additionally any information on the cost of injuries to the Antarctic program. This could include, monetary cost of individual workers comp or insurance payouts for each injury lost time at work due to individual injuries Seasonal or annual accident insurance / workers comp costs for the program. Lastly, any information regarding workers comp claims made that didn't have a specific injury report associated with them
