RISING MILITARIZATION AND SHRINKING CIVIC SPACE

Sexual violence continued to be used as a tactic of war, torture, and terrorism amid deepening political and security crises, compounded by militarization and the illicit proliferation of arms in the wake of unconstitutional changes of government. This trend exposed civilians to heightened levels of sexual violence, amid shrinking civic space and weakened rule of law in settings affected by conflict. State and non-State armed groups continued to target civilians with rape, gang rape and abductions. United Nationsdesignated terrorist groups, other non-State armed groups and transnational criminal networks used sexual violence as a tactic, destabilizing already fragile contexts.

Globally, the trend of increasing recourse to mercenaries, mercenary-related actors and private military and security companies by parties to conflict has been accompanied by increasing violations of international humanitarian law and human rights. Impunity remained the norm.

Survivors are not a homogeneous group. In 2022, violations were documented against women, girls, men, boys and persons with diverse sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as persons living with disabilities, ranging in age from 4 to over 80 years of age.

Patterns of sexual violence continued to be used as part of the repertoire of political violence to intimidate and punish opponents, their family members, and women human rights defenders. Globally, women's human rights defenders, including those advocating for victims of sexual violence, have been targeted with attacks to stem their activism and participation in public life.

Conflict-related sexual violence continued to propel both internal and cross-border displacement with displaced and refugee women and girls exposed to heightened risks. Climate-related displacement and insecurity exacerbated competition for scarce resources, which increased intercommunal violence, including sexual violence.

The gender-based digital divide is nowhere more acute and perilous than in situations of conflict. Disturbing trends of gender-based hate speech and incitement to violence fuelled conflict in which rape and other forms of sexual violence were used to humiliate and destabilize targeted communities. Internet restrictions impeded the ability of survivors to access information, with frequent telecommunications shutdowns hindering access to helplines and other support services.

HARNESSING THE PREVENTIVE POWER OF THE RULE OF LAW

Recommend the Security Council that sexual violence is systematically monitored and incorporated as a stand-alone designation criterion for targeted sanctions to deter the commission of such violence by all parties.

Encourage Member States to adopt a survivor-centred approach to preventing and addressing conflictrelated sexual violence that seeks to empower survivors by prioritizing their specific needs and perspectives.

Foster a gender-responsive security sector, through the development of effective oversight and accountability mechanisms including the establishment of vetting and screening to prevent credibly suspected perpetrators from being recruited, retained or promoted within the security forces.

Call upon all parties to conflict to immediately cease all forms of conflict-related sexual violence in compliance with relevant Security Council resolutions and provide the United Nations with unhindered access to conflict areas and detention centres.

Address chronic funding shortfalls by providing predictable financial support to the conflict-related sexual violence multi-partner trust fund (CRSV MPTF).

Encourage Member States to adopt national legislation on arms and ammunition control and implement the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, the Arms Trade Treaty and other relevant instruments.
