

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

The pages that follow are the record of an attempt to present a small contribution to the general study of English Medieval Saints Legends, in as complete form as time and conditions have permitted. The legend here edited is in no sense peculiarly representative of medieval legends, yet it may serve to indicate the general tone of the species of literature to which it belongs.

Until, as Dr. Horstmann has observed, the combined intelligence of generations yet to come has been applied to the problem, many of the most vital questions relating to English Legendary must remain unsolved. Perhaps the best service which can now be rendered, is to continue to present, as Dr. Horstmann has so long been doing, accurate reprints of existing versions, together with textual studies of the kinds familiar to scholarship.

The texts, here printed for the first time, have been carefully transcribed from their originals and collated by scribes at the several libraries where the manuscripts are kept. I regret exceedingly that, owing to delay on the part of one scribe, this edition must go to press lacking the table of variants from MSS. Stowe 946 and Lambeth 223, which are the only existing versions of this legend not included. Moreover, many definitive results, which students of even a single legend have reason to expect, have been omitted but not overlooked. I shall hope to supplement these deficiencies as time and ability may permit.

In presenting this result of a few months' work, I wish to acknowledge, first of all, my great indebtedness to the strong, clear-sighted judgment of Professor Cook, under whose guidance my graduate work has received direction. I wish also to express my thanks to Professor Skeat, who sent me advance proof-sheets of the Ælfrician version of the Life of St. Cecilia, and at the same time gave suggestion and encouragement.

I.

THE LIFE AND ACTS OF ST. CECILIA.

From the long list of saints and martyrs whose acts are celebrated by the Western Church, there is separable a group of Roman virgin martyrs. To this group, with St. Agnes, St. Agatha, and St. Lucy (the two latter being undoubtedly of Sicilian origin), St. Cecilia belongs. St. Cecilia is also frequently associated in the modern mind with the Greek St. Katherine, probably through the intensifying and relating of the emblematic idea, which gave to St. Katherine the province of literature and philosophy, as it made St. Cecilia the patroness of sacred music.

The attempt to reach conclusions concerning the historic St. Cecilia is one full of difficulties, although the veneration paid to the saint may be traced with considerable ease to a very early period. The Roman church regularly interweaves the significant features of the legend into the celebration of the canonical hours on November 22 and April 14, and the legend is also quite generally included in the collections of Saints' Lives produced in the monasteries of the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries.

From the medieval legends comes the following account of St. Cecilia:

St. Cecilia was a maiden of noble blood—ingenua, nobilis, clarissima, who lived in Rome under the prefecture of Almachius, and the spiritual rule of Pope Urban I. Although she had been baptized and had lived a Christian from her infancy, she is given in marriage to a rich young pagan named Valerian. St. Cecilia, consecrated to God and to virginity by a secret vow, withdraws from her friends on the night of the marriage feast, and, in communion and prayer to God, hears heavenly music to which she responds, singing in her heart, in corde decantabat, that she may be preserved in her purity.

Valerian though skeptical as to the heavenly visitants which Cecilia alleges to have seen, and toward the Christian faith in general, is at last persuaded by her to rise from his bed and go by night for instruction and advice to Pope Urban, who lives in hiding among the Roman catacombs. Valerian's faith is confirmed during his interview with the Pope by a vision of an old man who bears the roll of the Gospel in his hand and explains its meaning. Valerian is baptized and returns to Cecilia, by whose side he finds a second spiritual visitant. This angel foretells their martyrdom, promises as a reward of Valerian's faith the salvation of his brother, Tiburtius, and places in their hands two wreaths of immortal flowers, which breathe a wonderful fragrance. The heathen, Tiburtius, hearing the rumor of his brother's conversion, appears shortly in a casual fashion at Valerian's house. His attention is, however, immediately arrested by the fragrance of the flowers, and the conversation is turned upon sacred things. Cecilia, according to some medieval versions, explains at length the doctrine of salvation, and finally Tiburtius consents to go with Valerian to Pope Urban. There he is baptized and the two brothers enter at once upon the active Christian career which is to lead to their martyrdom. They convert many pagans and at night seek for the cast-away bodies of martyrs to bury them. In this act of devotion they are at last detected and brought before Almachius, prefect of the city. Their own assurance in this ordeal is strengthened by Cecilia, who speaks to them from without the prison door and exhorts them to be stalwart knights in the service of God. Their conversation with the prefect at the time of their trial is variously elaborated in different versions, but is usually characterized by their introduction of the parable of the slothful and industrious husbandmen. At last, refusing to offer sacrifice, Valerian and Tiburtius are condemned to death, on which occasion many hundred people are converted, together with Maximus, the jailer, who sees the souls of the two martyred men borne aloft on the wings of angel messengers. Maximus speedily suffers death for his belief and the bodies of the three martyrs are cast without the city walls. Here Cecilia finds them and brings them to the catacombs for burial.

The wealth of the widowed Cecilia then appeals to the greed of the tyrant Almachius, and he sends messengers to possess themselves of all the property that can be found. Cecilia, however, convicts the messengers of sin, converts them to Christianity, and they go away empty handed, whereupon Cecilia proceeds to distribute her goods to the poor and Almachius finds his attempt baffled. He sends for Cecilia, who appears before him in all her Christian boldness and defies his power, which she asserts is as a "bladder blown full of wind." She claims her own high birth and announces her allegiance to God, who is the Lord of life, whereas Almachius is, at best, only 'dethes lord'.

From the midst of a sorrowing group of men and women, Cecilia is led to her own house, where she is shut up in the caldarium and placed in a boiling bath, yet she emerges, after a day and a night, in all content and without injury. Then the executioner is sent, who, according to the law of the country, is allowed three blows by which to strike off a head. By the intervention of some supernatural power the blows are only partly effectual, and Cecilia, though mortally wounded, lives three days, in which time she makes complete disposition of her property, consecrating her palace as a church and home for the maidens who have been under her guidance, and converting many hundred souls through her preaching. And this was, the legend tells us, two hundred and twenty-three years after that our Lord came to earth.

This legend is greeted to-day on the one hand by the popular conception of a mystical St. Cecilia vested with the emblems of music as her sole attribute, an estimate which modern art has done much to confirm; on the other hand, by the almost universal voice of skepticism on the part of the historical critic¹ as to the authenticity of her Acts.

The proof as to whether such a person as Cecilia ever existed at Rome, surrounded by the personages Valerian, Tiburtius, Maximus, Urban and Almachius, who provide the setting for the incidents of her life as set forth by monastic scribes after an interval of ten centuries, rests, so far as it can be at all determined, upon the testimony of four authorities:—First, the records of the saint as found in ancient calendars, martyrologies, and breviaries; second, the historic accounts of the early Church; third, the compilations of hagiographers, and fourth, the accumulating information of archeologists.

The Martyrologies were compiled from letters and brief records which were written, it may be supposed, under the same

The legendary accounts of her are not worthy of credence. McClintock and Strong, Cyclop. of Eccles. Lit.

The acts of St. Cecily are generally considered of very small authority. Alban Butler, Lives of Saints.

It is also unfortunate for Cecilia's claim to a footing on the solid soil of history that the earliest writer who makes mention of her, Fortunatus, bishop of Poitiers, represents her to have died in Sicily between the years 176 and 180. . . . It is absurdly stated in the Biographie Universelle that Cecilia's name is found in the most ancient martyrologies, whereas, as may be seen from Baronius, the earliest of these documents was compiled by Pope Clement I. who died A. D. 100. Encycl. Brit.

impetus as that which, in the early Christian church, collected and preserved the Apostolic records. Many early documents assure us of this activity.

Clement I. in 93 A. D. divided Rome into seven ecclesiastical districts which he apportioned to faithful churchmen that they might search out with care the acts of the martyrs.¹ Another record by Anastasius reports the continuation of this work under the papacy of St. Fabian 236–249, shortly after the supposed time of our saint.² Of Pope Anteros, 235–236, we are told³ that “he diligently sought out the acts of the martyrs from the notaries, and laid them up in the church, for which thing he was made a martyr by the prefect Maximus.” Cyprian⁴ directs his church officials to record the days of the martyrs, and says that this custom has been practised by Tertullus. We know from Sozomen⁵ that municipalities under the same civil rule frequently had their own feast days on which they celebrated their local martyrs.

These and similar records perished undoubtedly during the Christian persecutions which accompanied and succeeded these centuries, yet there is ground for belief that they provided the first authentic step in the series which finally led to the Acts of a St. Cecilia.

Eusebius in the early part of the fourth century affirms⁶ that with the judicial acts and records of the time, he has considered also the letters of the faithful in the compilation of his Martyrology. Of this only the fragment containing the lives of the Martyrs of Palestine⁷ remains. A Latin compilation supposed to be based upon Eusebius⁸ is preserved by the *Martyrologium Vetustissimum*⁹ attributed to Jerome (330–420). It contains references to the saints of the Cecilia legend, which show some discrepancies and repetitions. These occur, as the more familiar later records give us reason to expect, on 22 November, the day of St. Cecilia, 14 April, the day of Valerian, Tiburtius, and Maximus, and 25 May, the day of the martyr Urban.¹ Additional records are then given for 16 September and 21 April.

The reference to St. Cecilia on XVI Kal. October (September 16) is found again in the martyrology and breviary of Corbeiensus Dacherius. Also in the Epternacensis Martyrology the words “Romæ Cæciliæ” occur on this day, and the Richenovien-sian, the Augustan and the Labbeanian calendars give here the name “Cæciliæ” without title or place. The frequent repetition of the date 16 September in these earliest calendars, gives rise to doubt concerning the authenticity of the now commonly accepted date, 22 November, for the commemoration of Cecilia's birth. The later date, some critics² believe, celebrates the consecration of the church of St. Cecilia in Trastevere in Rome. No evidence, however, is able to place this earlier than 434-440 (see p. 20). In the meanwhile the calendar of Fronto³ (pope, 372-5), and most of the Latin collections⁴ succeeding, mark Cecilia's festival on 22 November, and those of Valerian and Tiburtius, overlooking Jerome's second allusion on XI Kal. May (April 21), on 14 April.

The early Roman Sacramentaries, consist usually of a series of prayers for intercession and praise to the appropriate saint for the day, with vague allusion to the martyrdom and triumph of the one thus commemorated. Through these, the early veneration of St. Cecilia may be traced, and some intimation gained as to the character of her acts. The Sacramentarium Leonianum, which is the oldest of the accessible church uses, is attributed by Blanchini (1735) to Pope Leo the Great (440-461). It contains a long celebration of the martyrdom of St. Cecilia on 22 November.¹ To Gelasius I. (pope 462-496), is attributed the authorship of the Liber Sacramentorum in which In Natalis Sanctæ Cæciliæ is celebrated with similar forms on 22 November and the preceding day.² It is a series of prayers on both days. Her martyrdom is also celebrated in the important sacramentary of St. Gregory I. (540-604), which is given in full.³

Parallel with the liturgical growth in the Roman church appear the independent liturgies of foreign churches. Such a liturgy belonged to the church of Milan and has been ascribed to Ambrose (334-397). This liturgy, which at all events was of very early origin, commemorates Cecilia.⁴ The office taken from a service of about the year 1130, makes the instruction concerning the offerings suitable to the occasion its most prominent feature.⁵

The Gallican Liturgies, which also preserved a distinct type until, by the command of Charlemagne, the Roman order of service was instigated, have an independent celebration of St. Cecilia. This service is believed by Thomasius⁶ to have been in use in Gaul in the sixth century. It contains little of the history of St. Cecilia and is chiefly an ascription of honor to the saint and supplication for her intercession.⁷

The Mozarabic Liturgy, supposed to be the ritual of Southern France and Spain at the beginning of the eighth century, and attributed to Isidore of Seville, who lived until the latter part of the seventh century, contains an elaborate office of St. Cecilia ¹ A part of this service is as follows: X Kal. Dec. In die festivitatis hodiernæ, qua sancta Cæcilia in tui nominis confessione martyris effecta est. for 22 November, both in the Missale Mixtum and the Breviarum Gothicum.¹ The former especially is more specific regarding the life and martyrdom of St. Cecilia than any church office yet considered. It mentions the penance of the hair-cloth garment, the attendance of the angels, the immortal flowers, the conversions of Valerian and Tiburtius, their martyrdom and ascent to glory. Urban's name is mentioned once, and St. Cecilia is recorded to have suffered martyrdom by fire. The place and time of her death are not mentioned.

Venantius Fortunatus (530-600?), one of Cecilia's earliest chroniclers, has placed her martyrdom in Sicily,² but has assigned no dates.³ He also shows by his verses,⁴ written at the consecration of the church of St. Andrew, by Vitalis, bishop of Ravenna, that Cecilia was commonly venerated in the sixth century. Brower⁵ believes that Fortunatus received the impression that Cecilia had been born in Sicily from the fact that in his time she was held in especial veneration in that country.

Bede (673-735), was familiar with the life of St. Cecilia, and refers to her twice in the Ecclesiastical History.⁶ Concerning his martyrology, which is of especial interest in this case, he says at the conclusion of Bk. V:—"A martyrology, concerning the festivals of the holy martyrs, in which all that I could find, not only on what day, but also in what form of strife and under what judge they prevailed over the world, I carefully wrote." The extracts from this martyrology are given in full.⁷

in whose history poetical pieces in meter are often inserted," also refers to Cecilia.¹

The English bishop Aldhelm (640?-709), mentions Cecilia twice. His prose account² relates her musical powers, concerning which he approaches the modern conception of a Cecilia of music and angels and flowers.

The Liber Pontificalis of Anastasius who died A.D. 721, the surviving document drawn from more ancient records and interesting for its subsequent relations, mentions the martyrdom of Cecilia³ as one of the significant events of St. Urban's papacy. The interdependence however of the Urban and Cecilia history is such as to give to neither the value of separate and corroborative testimony.

From the group of ninth century martyrologists,⁴ when the passion for investigation of church history was at its height, Cecilia receives due and constant attention. From these sources a connected story of her life in miniature begins to appear.

Rabanus Maurus (786-856), Archbishop of Mayence, who compiled a martyrology based upon the Liber Pontificalis and also upon the work of Bede, gives on X Kal. December the first brief record of St. Cecilia.⁵

Odo, Archbishop of Vienna, toward the middle of the ninth century compiled a calendar on the basis of the Parvum Romanum, an old martyrology discovered by him and esteemed of superior authenticity.⁶ The account of Odo, since it elaborates several points and adds some details, is of particular value in the study of the Acts of St. Cecilia. On X Kal. December is given an account which in abstract is as follows:

On the X Kal. December, Cecilia, the blessed virgin was born at Rome. She converted her husband Valerian and her brother Tiburtius to the faith, for which they endured martyrdom. Urban the Pope, moreover, as the result of her preaching, baptized no less than four hundred souls, among whom there was an illustrious man named Gordian.

Thereupon Almachius commanded that the blessed Cecilia be brought to him, and when she held true to the faith, he commanded further that she be conducted to her own home and burned to death in its bath.

Cecilia remained therein an entire day and night without injury, as if it had been a cold place. Hearing which, Almachius sent messengers who should behead her. These struck three blows but were not able to strike off her head. She lived after that for three days. Then St. Urban, bearing away her body by night buried it with the bodies of the popes. This blessed virgin lived during the times of the emperors Marcus Aurelius and Commodus.

On the XVIII. Kal. Maii in Rome, via Appia, in the cemetery of Prætextatus, the holy martyrs Tiburtius, Valerian, and Maximus under the prefect Almachius slain by the sword, (the last, beaten with leaden plumbets until he gave up the ghost).

On the VIII. Kal. Junii. In Rome, via Numentana, in the cemetery of Prætextatus, St. Urban, bishop and martyr, by whose teaching, in the time of the persecution of Alexander, many martyrs were crowned.

Usuard who compiled the martyrology which bears his name died in 876 or 877. The martyrology was adopted in most of the churches of France, Italy and Germany and is important since it became the basis of the Roman martyrology. He follows Maurus closely.¹

During this period the Greek menologies continued to borrow the Latin legend. The great Menology of the Greeks,² and the Menology of Sirleti³ follow Jerome's reference for 14 April and 22 November, and add that the martyr suffered under Diocletian (283-290).⁴ The Ephemerides, the Græcorum Metricus,⁵ and the Martyrologium Græcum of Seberus also commemorate November 22.

The Greek Simeon Metaphrastes,⁶ scribe to the emperor Leo VI. (886-911), in the tenth century compiled from many sources an important but unauthenticated⁷ work which includes an elaborate account of St. Cecilia and her associates.⁸

By Metaphrastus and Surius his translator, it is claimed that Urban I. was Bishop and Pope of the Christians at the time of Cecilia's death and consequently under the temporal rule of Alexander Severus (222-230). This in general is the accepted statement of the medieval legends.

Proceeding from the monasteries of England, in the time of Bede to the eleventh century there was a host of calendars and missals, in Latin, intended for the celebration of great festivals and fasts, Sundays and Saint's days. Of them all, only a few escaped the adversities of the time of King Edward VI (1547).¹

The Sarum, York,² Bangor, and Hereford missals, drawn directly from the Sacramentaries of Leo, Gelasius, and Gregory, celebrate the office of St. Cecilia on her usual days.

The earliest English life of St. Cecilia is found in the martyrology attributed by Cockayne³ and others to Alfred (849-901). The Old English text in full for both days is as follows:⁴

Nov. 22.

This, it will be seen, does not differ materially from the main line of Latin legends which have as their significant points Rome, Urban, Almatheus or Almachius, the attempted martyrdom of Cecilia by fire, her final execution, and her request that her home be hallowed for a church.

Just before the middle English period, and distinct in its literary qualities from the martyrologies and church uses which surround it, is the long account of Cecilia given by Ælfric (10th century)³ in his Saints' Lives.⁴ Cecilia is represented as a Roman virgin living in the days of the emperors "who cared not for Christ."⁵

Ælfric's version contains most of the material, including the theological arguments, of the finished legend as it appeared in the Middle Ages, in the Latin of Jacobus a Voragine, the French of De Vignay, the English of Caxton, Bokenam, and Chaucer, and the closely related family of monastic legends which overlaps both boundaries of the Middle English period.

—Ælfric's Saints' Lives, XXXIV, 1-4.

Among the ancient churches of Rome one of the first to be designated by a special title was the church of St. Cecilia across the Tiber, of which mention is made in the first Roman Synod held under Pope Symmachus in the year 499.¹ The church is mentioned again by Gregory the Great,² 590, in defining the movements of a great procession. It was dedicated under Pope Sixtus III (432-440),³ and is supposed to occupy the site of St. Cecilia's house,⁴ in compliance with her request.⁵

In 817 it became the duty of Pope Paschal to rebuild this church, which after three centuries was falling in ruins. In accordance with a not unusual custom, Pope Paschal celebrated the reconsecrating of the edifice by the translation of many bodies of martyrs from their first resting places in the now neglected catacombs, to places of more security and veneration. In this particular translation, the securement of the body of St. Cecilia for the church which bore her name became of peculiar moment.⁶ Following the guidance of the old records, he searched for the body of the saint in the catacombs of Prætextatus on the Appian Way, but without success. He therefore abandoned the search upon the conclusion that her tomb had been rifled during the invasion of Astulfus, king of the Lombards, in 755, but is said to have had a vision⁷ of Cecilia which revealed to him the true locality of her resting place. "It is true," she said, "that the Lombards sought me, but the favor of my all-powerful friend, the mother of God, forever a virgin, protected me. She did not permit them to take me away, and I am now buried in the same place where I have always reposed." Again he sought, and this time inter suos collegas, in and about the papal crypt in the cemetery of Calixtus, and the explorations of De Rossi determine that the "Cecilian crypt," which abuts at its corner upon the papal crypt, was the place where Cecilia was found by Paschal in the year 821.⁸

The earlier archeologist Bosio (1629), endorses De Rossi.¹

Anastasius' account² tells that the body was found uninjured by time, lying on the right side, the hands together, thrown forward and down, the knees slightly bent. She was clad in rich garments, her head enveloped in a covering which left only the chin and neck exposed, and linen cloths stained with blood were lying at her feet. Contrary to the custom of burial of that day, the body had been enclosed, Paschal asserts, in a cypress coffin. This he overspread with a covering of silk and deposited it incorrupt and beautiful in a marble sarcophagus under the new altar of the church of St. Cecilia in Trastevere, together with the bodies of Valerian, Tiburtius and Maximus, which he secured with little difficulty from the lately restored cemetery of Prætextatus³ across the Appian Way, and the body of Pope Urban I, from the papal crypt of the cemetery of Calixtus.

In honor of these saints Paschal founded a monastery⁴ near the church of St. Cecilia, where the sacred offices were celebrated day and night.

Gregory VII, in the eleventh century, revived the memory of the sacred relic by renewing the altar of the church and erecting a silver statue of the virgin (1075).

It was under this altar five centuries after the time of Paschal, that the body of St. Cecilia was found by Cardinal Sfondrati of the title of St. Cecilia, October 20, 1599.

The account of this discovery is given in a long description by Baronius who was commissioned by Clement VIII, pope at the time, to examine and report the remarkable occurrence. He alleges⁵ that her body was taken from its place still incorrupt and answering perfectly to the description given by Pope Paschal five hundred years before. The body in its cypress case was carefully enclosed in a second case of silver and re-deposited with such supreme veneration that they forbore to touch even the tissue covering which Paschal had thrown over the figure. Above the altar was placed this inscription which may still be read :

followed by an account from which these lines are taken:

' Hic requiescit corpus S. Cæciliæ virginis et martyris, quod a Paschali primo Pont. Max. ipsa revelante, repertum, et in hanc ecclesiam translatum, et sub hoc altari una cum corporibus SS. Martyrum Lucii et Urbani Pontificum, necnon Valeriani, Tiburtii et Maximi reconditum, iterum post annos fere octingentos, Clement. VIII, Pont. Max. cum iisdem SS. Martyribus lucem aspergit, die xx. Octobris, anno Dominicæ Incarnationis MD. IC.'

Over the saint's tomb was placed the celebrated recumbent statue of "St. Cecilia lying dead" executed by Stefano Maderno, a sculptor in the employ of the cardinal, who, according to the inscription,¹ had himself seen the body when it was exhumed.

Such is the ancestry of the Cecilia legend and the history of her relics, now traced to medieval times; a considerable body of testimony to, at least, the faithful acceptance of the story through these centuries and the long and continuous endeavor to secure its perpetuation. There can be little doubt from such witnesses, that the Acts of St. Cecilia rest upon a basis of fact. It is also doubtless the case that pious exaggeration and misapprehension, together with errors fixed by centuries of historical inaccuracy and insufficiency, have together conspired to produce a medieval account which, as it stands, is antagonistic to its own veracity. To disentangle the false from the true involves a piece of argumentation which might be a fruitless task, were it not that the facts of St. Cecilia's life involve closely matters and personages otherwise of historic interest.

St. Cecilia is reported by Fortunatus to have died in Sicily; by the Greeks, to have suffered in Rome under Diocletian (284-305); by Metaphrastes, in Rome under Alexander Severus (222-230); by Odo, Usuard, and Bede in Rome under the Emperors Marcus Aurelius and Commodus (176-180). The medieval legends, as may be seen, follow in these respects the general account of Metaphrastes and the majority of the Latin versions.

The first difficulty then is a chronological one.

As far as can be known, the assignment of a date is all inferential on the part of the several writers. The time of St. Cecilia's martyrdom is determined by the uniform reference to her close association with Urban, and this Urban whom the Acts designate as Pope, was Bishop of Rome under the Emperor Alexander Severus, who ruled from 222 to 235. Urban was elevated to his position about the time of Alexander's accession.¹

The Acts maintain that at the time of St. Cecilia the Christians were undergoing severe persecution, so much so that the pope himself was obliged to live in hiding, the bodies of martyred Christians were refused burial, and an acknowledgment of the Christian faith was punishable with death. Now of such a persecution on the part of Alexander Severus, no record exists, though it must here be granted that the early accounts of his reign are inadequate. An auspicious calm is supposed to have been enjoyed by the Christians throughout Alexander's reign.² They were allowed to build churches³; many of the rules for the government of the church were esteemed worthy of incorporation into the law of the Empire⁴, and even the household of Alexander was said to have included many who professed the Christian faith.⁵ One of these was apparently⁶ Mammæa herself, mother of the Emperor, and Alexander, from his desire to erect a temple to Christ,⁷ seemed disposed to give the Christian God recognition among the pagan deities.

There must be admitted also to this examination, the probable character and influence of Alexander's counsel. Foremost among the advisors of the youthful Emperor and his mother was Ulpian, a man of integrity and power in the time of Septimus Severus (202-211). This man, it is held,⁸ cherished a conservative spirit of unfriendliness toward the Christians, and it has been possible therefore to attribute to his influence the persecution and martyrdom, not of Cecilia and her associates alone, but of five thousand Roman Christians!⁹ Here our faith is something baffled, for while it is possible to believe that the spirit of the times during the life of Alexander would have given little heed to a local or temporary relapse to the old ¹Tillemont, basing his conclusion upon Baronius, Ann. 226, §§ 1; 12; places Urban's accession in the year 223 or 224. See Hist. Eccl. iii. pp. 258, 682. Lipsius, Chron. du Röm. Bish. considers 222 the probable date. The Bollandists give the following: Tempus martyrii ex sede S. Urbani Papæ sciri potest, quem sedisse ab anno CCXXXII, quo Callistus decessor passus est, usque ad annum CCXXX quo S. Pontianus ei successit, alibi deducimus. Acta Sanct. May 25.

severity, the presumable gentleness and purity of the reign will not permit on any known ground, belief in the existence of a Christian persecution of such proportions.

That the matter could have remained unnoticed is the more improbable on account of the high rank of the *gens Cæcilia*¹ and the gens Valeria.²

There can be but little doubt that St. Cecilia "ibore," as the legend tells, "of noble kynde," and Valerian "of gret nobleye and of richesse," belonged to these families,³ though a non-conclusive fact to the contrary, is the omission of her name from the list of 139 (15 women) names of this gens cited in a recent publication.⁴

These things being so, can the incidents of the Cecilia story, making allowance for some natural growth in the way of exaggeration, be considered an unofficial (as regards Alexander,) act of Alexander's reign?

The direct persecutor of the Christians according to the written acts, was not Alexander, (a circumstance which endorses the assumption that Alexander was recognized as disassociated from direct connection with the persecution), nor any of Alexander's known counsellors, but Almachius, according to the Bollandists, Turcius Almachius, prefect of the city of Rome during the Emperor's absence at one of the engagements of the Persian War⁵ which was being waged intermittently throughout this period. The office of prefect during the reign of Alexander was one of authority. Forty chosen magistrates formed his counsel.⁶ The names of many notable men of the time (among others, Gordian, who figures in some of the legends as a friend and convert of Cecilia's,) have been preserved by the compilations of Tillemont,⁷ but error has perhaps connived with chance in leaving the name of this man, if he ever did exist, unknown.¹ The list of Roman prefects is broken at the point where this inquiry makes it available.

The prefect of Cecilia's time, whoever he was, did not recognize Cecilia for her high birth, nor, this being affirmed, did he hesitate to extend to her the penalty of the law. This in itself is not an unusual occurrence, for these virgin martyrs, whether reputed so to increase the dramatic features of the episode, or in accordance with fact, were often people of rank and distinction. Such martyrdoms are, of course, frequent in history. It is, however, a consideration worthy of attention, that this, an execution of some importance, failed to reach the cognizance of Alexander Severus, and of his biographers.

The martyrdom of Cecilia clashes certainly with no historic conditions of Christian favoritism if placed either earlier in the reign of Aurelius and Commodus, according to the testimony of Odo and Usuard, or later in the reign of Diocletian, according to the Greeks. The Greek account, probably more remote from the true sources and more subject to change through transmissions, is not sustained by later critics.

On the other hand critics of importance² are more and more overlooking the assertions of the medieval legend,³ Latin and English, and on the authority of the ninth century martyrologists, transferring the authentic parts of the story to the time of the philosopher Aurelius and his son Commodus, when the persecutions of the Christians were, strangely, so prominent.

Tillemont combines the authority of Odo and Usuard with the old reference of Fortunatus, 'Cæciliam Sicula profert', and believes the saint to have suffered martyrdom in Sicily about the year 178, and that her body was later transferred to Rome.⁴

⁴ Nous ne croyons pas mesme qu'ils nous puissent assurer que Ste Cecile ait jamais vu S. Urbain, y ayant assez d'apparence, qu'elle a été martyrisée en Sicile des le temps de M. Aurele et de Commodo, vers l'an 178. Hist. Eccl. III. 260.

Il y a donc assez d'apparence qu'elle a souffert effectivement en Sicile, et que son corps ayant été transporté à Rome des les premiers siecles, Hist. Eccl. III. 690.

To accept either of the theories, however, involves a new difficulty. Pope Urban I certainly lived at a later period and under the rule of Alexander Severus. To satisfy this point, these critics point out the fact that history shows two Urbans,¹ one a pope, the other a bishop of an outlying Roman district. The latter was undoubtedly martyred for the cause about the year 180,² and buried on the Nomentan Road opposite the Appian Way.³ The proximity of the crypt of St. Cecilia to the papal crypt, where Pope Urban was interred, they consider a plausible reason for the later confounding of the two Urbans and the association of the name of Cecilia with that of the pope. The accounts of Pope Urban's martyrdom they consider a feature transferred to this from the Cecilia legends, and original with the Cecilia legends rather than with the history of Urban. The medieval legend of Cecilia, it is well to remark, does not in any extant form contain an allusion to Pope Urban's untimely death, though it does intimate that he was subject to such persecution,⁴ and this confusion of names and circumstances, if confusion it is, has existed, as has been shown, in the martyrologies from a very early period.⁵

For the confirmation or rejection of their hypotheses, later critics are able to draw upon the accumulating information of antiquarians and Roman archeologists. Two recently discovered itineraries may first be made of service. These itineraries record the topography of the streets and catacombs of Rome at about the seventh century, before the practice of transferring bodies from their original resting places began. These two notable records, the older probably the Itinerary found at Salzburg,⁶ and the other incorporated by William of Malmesbury (1143) into the Gesta Regum Anglorum,⁷ mention the tomb of Cecilia, and locate it close to the tomb of the popes.

² Lipsius, Chron. der Röm. Bish., objects to the theory of their having been an earlier bishop Urban, resident at Rome, as unsupportable and improbable.

These adjacent tombs have received most careful and scholarly investigation through the explorations of De Rossi, who demonstrates¹ that the Cecilian crypt, not later than the year 500, was the resting place of one whom we have every right to believe was St. Cecilia. He conjectures from inscriptions that the tract of land occupied by the Calixtan cemetery had been in use by the Cæcilian gens since the first half of the third century. A vacant recess, in the wall opposite the papal side, he believes to have been the spot where the saint was interred. By the side of the recess is a painting which De Rossi attributes to the seventh century. It represents a woman richly attired, a halo about her head, her hands extended and in the background a profuse decoration of roses. Near this is a fresco of the Lord and a figure of a bishop with the name S. VRBANVS, inscribed below. Certain graffiti on the walls of the tomb near the recess, which record the names of priests of the ninth century, are to be taken, De Rossi believes, as the official seal set at time of the transference of the body by Paschal I.

The Acts are generally agreed in saying that the bodies of Valerian, Tiburtius, and Maximus, were taken to the cemetery of Prætextatus for burial. De Rossi has discovered in the crypt of St. Cecilia a tablet to the memory of a Septimius Prætextatus Cæcilianus, a Christian. The occurrence of this name, he believes, suggests a relation between the families, and accounts for the fact, that, while St. Cecilia of the blood of the Cæciliæ found burial in the tomb of her gens, her husband and his brother were layed not far away, but in a tomb of less importance, where Cecilia's relationship gave her access.

The picture of Cecilia, however, was not the first with which the tomb was decorated. Traces of older mosaic may be detected on the edges and underneath the present paintings. This fact, together with the lateness of the date of the paintings, that of St. Urban being perhaps of the 12th century, points to two conclusions, (1), that the tomb continued to be held in veneration even after, as is generally admitted, the bodies were removed by Pope Paschal; (2), that the tomb was not the saint's first resting place, and that the seventh century painting commemorates either directly or remotely some translation to this place from Prætextatus or Sicily or wherever it might have been that the saint was first buried.

On the basis of Odo's Martyrology then, and by the aid of later explorations on the site of the legend, the following statement may be secured. Cecilia died in 176-180 under the Christian persecutions of Aurelius and Commodus. There is some historic foundation for an earlier Urban, who satisfies the requirements as to proximity and position sufficiently to have been the friend and advisor of Cecilia. That on account of the fierce persecutions of the time, a record of such individual martyrdoms as those of Cecilia, Valerian, Tiburtius, Maximus, and Urban, were probably never made. That Almachius still remains a historic enigma, and that many features of the legend in the light of subsequent investigation, viz., a late emblematic design on the tomb of Maximus, parallelism between the theological arguments of the Acts and the writings of Augustine and Victor Vitensis¹ (5th century), and the probably late autocracy of the Turcian family, point to an origin later than the second century, for certain features of the story.

To assume the composite nature of this, in common with many similar legends, is probably the most legitimate solution of the difficulties. The outline of the story, which may be regarded as reasonably authentic, has been modified and enlarged by other items, perhaps historic in themselves, incorporated in the whole through the natural inaccuracy of a scribe, who writes at a distance from his subject and attempts to reduce legendary material to historic form. Logic can probably never smooth the present discrepancies of the legend. History may some day contribute an element which will modify or enlighten.

To the modern mind St. Cecilia is well known in literature, art and music. Perhaps along these lines the subject merits a few words.

St. Cecilia is universally regarded as the patroness of musicians.² Her musical attributes as commonly accepted, are given in their length and breadth by Mrs. Jameson.³

"As she excelled in music, she turned her gifts to the glory of God, and composed hymns, which she sang herself with such ravishing sweetness, that even the angels descended from heaven to listen to her."

"She played on all instruments, but none sufficed to breathe forth that flood of harmony with which her whole soul was filled; therefore she invented the organ, consecrating it to the service of God."

There is record of a musical society established in Louvain in 1502 which bore the name of the Saint, and in Rome, an Academy of Music was dedicated to her patronage in 1584. Since 1571, the first authenticated occasion upon which St. Cecilia's day was celebrated by musical performances, many learned organizations have been formed for the same purpose. The practise was first adopted in England in 1683, when a musical society was incorporated which held a series of musical festivals on November 22. Similar musical celebrations became frequent throughout England, Italy, Germany, France, Scotland, and Ireland, until innumerable musical societies and celebrations have been and are being named in her honor.

For these occasions music has been adapted to Dryden's Ode to St. Cecilia's Day, and Alexander's Feast, to Pope's Ode to St. Cecilia, and to other less known poems, by such composers as Handel, Henry Purcell, and John Blow. Several full masses have also been composed for the Society of Artist Musicians at Paris by Adam, Niedermeyer, Dietsch, Gounod, and Ambroise Thomas.¹

It is evident from the Acts that this idea has grown from a very casual reference. It is there related that when all were making merry "with mouth and menstralys" at the wedding festivities, Cecilia went apart from the rest and sang in her heart the song of David, Fiat cor meum immaculatum in tuis justificationibus ut non confundar (Ps. 119, 80).

The versions, it is true, do not all assert that song was only in her heart and unexpressed, but at most, song with Cecilia was a passing and not essential characteristic of temperament,² suggestive, certainly, of no inventive activity on her part which would lead to the construction of the reed instrument known as the organ. It would indeed be a loss to much of the higher significance of the legend if the exalted, spiritual penetration of Cecilia were allowed to be devoted to so material ends.

Moreover the reference to music is quite as marked in connection with other saints of the calendar. It was the words 'cantantibus organis', undoubtedly, which originally gave the wrong impression and suggested the association of Cecilia with the organ as an instrument of praise.

Her miraculous power of drawing an angel from Heaven appears in the Acts as a power she held indeed, but not by ⁴ The organ is mentioned in Job XXI, 12, and Ps. CL. 4. The Pandean Pipes, so called, record in their name a current Greek and Roman belief as to this primitive form of organ. reason of her gift of song, rather, on account of her purity of life, which gave her command over things celestial.

To further establish the popular belief it may also have been that the praises to Cecilia, inaugurated by Paschal at the completion of his act of veneration, were of a conspicuously musical character.¹ This might even have created the impression that the services were chosen for their special significance to the life of Cecilia. The most signal recognition of such association is chronicled in art by Raphael about the close of the 15th century. In this familiar painting, Cecilia is represented with a small reed instrument in her hands, while at her feet lie the broken and rejected instruments of secular music.

Previous to the fifteenth century the early mural paintings in the Catacomb of San Lorenzo (6th or 7th cent.), the niche of St. Cecilia in the Catacomb of Calixtus, the colossal mosaic of the Byzantine painters of about the time of Paschal I, the triptych of Cimabue in the chapel of St. Cecilia at Florence, and the decorations of Fra Angelico, had portrayed the more dramatic scenes from the life of the virgin martyr, and in portraiture had given her the palm branch and book as distinctive emblems.

During, and after the fifteenth century, the pictures of St. Cecilia with the organ or singing are frequent. One of the earliest of these representations is by Van Eyck (1370), followed by Garofalo, Van Leyden, Luini, Paulo Veronese, Salimbeni, Giulio Campi, Guido Reni, Domenichino, Moretto, and Carlo Dolci. Romanelli in the middle of the 17th century represented her with a violin. Coincident with this, there continued to be representations of historic scenes from her life. In these, the wreaths of roses and lilies, the attendant angel, and the palm branch betokening her victory are occasionally introduced. Such are the paintings of Raphael, who treats the subject a second time, the fresco of Francia, and the paintings of Procaccini, Pinturicchio, Spada, Poussin, Dominique, and Giulio Romano.¹

In literature Cecilia first appears in the ascriptions of praise to virginity and the like, of the Latin hymn writers. The earliest of these poems is one attributed to Paulinus of Nola (353-431), a writer of ascetic verse. Aldhelm, in the seventh century, celebrates the holy Cecilia in verse in the De Laudibus

From the ninth century a number of hymns have survived. One of these is in the Breviarum Gothicum.² In the same century, a Latin hymn by Prudentius of Troy (861) is recorded, and one by Wandelbert (813-870), poet and priest of Treves. The reference to Cecilia forms part of the so-called metrical martyrology³ of the latter. In the tenth century there is a hymn of about two hundred lines written by Flodoardus.⁴

With an Italian poem entitled La Trionfatrice Cecilia, Vergine e Matiri Romana, by Castelletti, 1594, begins a more modern series of odes and lyrics. Santeuil (1630-1697), the most celebrated of modern Latin poets, has written three hymns to her honor. All of these have little to do with historic matters, but they preserve another slender line of perpetuity for the legend, until the time when the celebrated odes of Addison, Dryden, and Pope, with those of a host of minor poets, Shadwell, Congreve, D'Urfey, Hughes, Yalden, and Barry Cornwell, do much to immortalize but little to elucidate the name and fame of Cecilia. The Welsh poet, Lewis Morris, in a recent poem of some ascetic fervor,⁵ follows the tradition quite closely.

Tennyson's picture in the Palace of Art must be chiefly an original conception:

There, in a clear walled city on the sea
Near gilded organ-pipes—her hair
Bound with white roses—slept St. Cecily;—
An angel looked at her!

Porro Cæciliæ vivacem condere laudem
Quæ valeat digne metrorum pagina versu?
Quamvis harmoniis præsultent organa multis,
Musica Pierio resonent et carmina cantu;
Non tamen illexit fallax præcordia mentis

HISTORY AND ARRANGEMENT OF THE VERSIONS.

The Cecilia Legend is preserved in the following Middle-English manuscripts:

MS. Ash(mole) 43	1300
MS. Stowe 946	1340
MS. Cott(on) Cleop(atra) D IX	14th C.
MS. Laud 108 (appendix)	15th C.
MS. Lamb(eth) 223	1400
MS. Trin(ity) Coll(ege) C(am)br(idge) R 3. 25	1400
{ MS. Cott(on) Tib(erius) E VII	1400
{ MS. Harl(ey) 4196	1400
MS. Bodl(ey) 779	15th C.
MS. (Barbour, Cambridge Univ. Lib.) Gg. II. 6	15th C.

It is also found in the Early English of Alfred's Book of Martyrs, in Ælfric, Saints' Lives MS. Cott(on) Jul(ius) E VII, in the Second Nonnes Tale of Chaucer, 1373, in Osbern Bokenam's Lives of Saints, MS. Arundel 327, 1443-6, and in Caxton's Golden Legend, 1483. There is, besides these English Lives, the Greek of Simeon Metaphrastes in the translation into Latin by F. L. Surius, the Latin of Jacobus a Voragine (1290), the Medieval French of Jehan de Vignay (1300), and a Middle High German version in the editions of (1) Köpke, (2) Schönbach, and (3) Pfeiffer (prose), all of the 14th century.

This edition seeks to incorporate in some accessible form all of the Middle English versions. Of these MS. Ash. and MS. Cott. Tib. E VII are made the central texts, MS. Ash. for the reason that it is probably the oldest of existing versions, and MS. Cott. Tib. E VII because it represents the distinct type of the later Northern group. About these central texts the related versions or redactions are grouped. In cases where it has been practicable the hitherto unprinted versions are given in this edition as variants of the central text. The Latin of Voragine is given in full for comparison, since it may be considered a contemporaneous and independent version.

Of almost equal age with MS. Ash. is the mass of the collection in MS. Laud which as a whole is probably the older of the two. Horstmann assigns the date 1285-95 to the latter. Some estimates place it earlier. The life of Cecilia however which is given in the appendix to this manuscript is one of three Vitæ which are written in a later hand, assigned by Horstmann to the fifteenth century, making it therefore contemporary with MSS. Lamb., Trin. Coll., and Cott. Tib.

The authorship of MS. Ash. is sometimes attributed to Robert of Gloucester, and placed as early as the last quarter of the thirteenth century,¹ and is, therefore, the oldest and leading manuscript of this legend. It contains 94 legends including several readings from the Temporale.²

MS. Stowe 946,³ formerly 669, is in the King's Library of the British Museum. It contains only the latter half of MS. Ash., 35 legends, beginning with St. Michael.

In point of date, MS. Vernon Bod. Lib. Oxf. (1380), which originally contained the Cecilia legend, should be next mentioned. An index of the MS. shows 'seynt Cecile virgyne' for fol. 62. This unfortunately lies within one of lacuna of the MS. (fol. 57-64) where leaves have been lost.

Only a fragment of MS. Cott. Cleop. D IX⁴ containing the

² Horstmann, Eintl. Alteng. Leg. 1875, p. vii, gives the following description of the manuscript: MS. Ash. 43, in der Bodley'schen Bibliothek zu Oxford, früher dem Silas Taylor gehörig, Pergament, Quart., eine der werthvollsten Legenden-handschriften, ist gleichfalls im Anfang defekt, da die drei ersten Blätter, mit der Circumcisio und Epiphania domini, Hillarius und dem Anfang von Wolstan, ausgefallen sind; es beginnt mit fol. 4 und zählt 269 fol., von denen jedoch fol. 151 doppelt numerirt ist. Die letzten Blätter, mit dem Schlusse von Thomas Becket und S. Edward, haben sehr durch Brand gelitten, fol. 265-269 sind fast ganz zerstört (nur kleine Läppchen sind noch übrig). Ueberschriften finden sich am oberen Rande nur bis S. Peter, von späterer Hand; Bezeichnungen am Anfang der Legenden fehlen. Bei einzelnen finden sich Notizen am Rande von späterer Hand. Ein Inhaltsverzeichniß fehlt; doch findet sich ein solches zu MS. Ash. 43 auf einem Blatte im MS. Ash. 50 (welches jedoch keine Legenden enthält) von späterer Hand, und zwar von S. Wolstan an; es kann also erst nach dem Ausfalle der ersten Legenden auffertigt sein.

³ The legends contained therein have been discussed with extracts taken from the beginning and end of each, by E. Stiehler, Anglia, VII. 405. He believes the MS. belongs to an earlier period than the end of the 14th century, according to the Stowe catalogue notice. He discovers that the MS. is also undoubtedly the work of three different hands. The meter and general form show it to be closely related to MS. Ash. The MS. is not pag'd and contains, not 294 leaves (according to Stowe Catalogue) but 304. The titles of the legends, some in Latin, some in Old English are given on the top margin of each sheet. There are many glosses in Latin and modern English by the hand of Thomas Astle, Keeper of the Records in the Tower. Different parts of the MS. are not equally well preserved, many of the pages being torn and injured. There are only a few colored initial pages. Stiehler points out that the history of the separate legends of the collection varies considerably.

⁴ Vellum, XIV Century. Folio ff. 7, 40 l. to a page, Brit. Museum. The volume contains various chronicles and other historic documents including a fragmentary copy of the S. Eng. Legendary. Ward, Cat. of MSS. Vol. II. MS. Cotton Jul. D. IX in Britischen Museum zu London, Pergament, in klein 8°, aus dem 15 Jhd. Nichts weiter als eine (orthographisch freie) Abschrift des MS. Ash. 43, mit derselben Ordnung der Legenden und mit ganz demselben Text, nur dass am Ende einige Legenden (zum Theil aus MS. Egert.) hinzugefügt sind. Das MS. is von Werth, einmal indem es, vollständig und ohne Lücken erhalten, auch die in MS. Ash. zu Anfang fehlenden Legenden (also mit dem Text des MS. Ash.) enthält, sodann weil es öfter den Text des MS. Ash., w. derselbe fehlerhaft erschien, nach der gewöhnlichen Lesart verbessert. Es zählt (die Zahlen stehen in römischen Ziffern neben dem Anfange der Leg.) 107 Legenden (auf 305 Blättern, die Seite mit 32, später mit 40 Zeilen); . . . nur selten finden, sich Titel am Anfang der Legenden, niemals am oberen Rande. Auf dem 1ste Blatte steht als Titel der Sammlung von späterer Hand: Tractatus festivalis in rythmo anglicano. Ein Inhalts Verzeichniß fehlt. . . . im allgemeinen liegt ihr Text in der Mitte zwischen MS. Harl. 2277 und MS. Ash. 43 (häufig mehr nach MS. Ash., hin), indem sie bald die Lesarten des einen, bald die des andern der beiden bieten, während die andern Versionen nur selten benutzt sind; in der Zahl und Ordnung der Legenden stimmen sie fast ganz mit MS. Harl., nicht mit MS. Ash. überein. Ausserdem verfahren sie mit dem Texte vielfach sehr willkürlich und nehmen keinen Anstand, denselben im Einzelnen zu verändern. Auch unter sich stimmen sie nicht völlig überein, doch stehen sie einander näher, als die verschiedenen Versionen. Horstmann, Eintl. Alteng. Leg. 1875, p. xxvi.

last eight verses of St. John the Evangelist, together with Thomas Beket, Theophile, and Cecile, remains. The legend of Cecilia is drawn from MS. Ash., though in the other legends the manuscript follows Harleian 2277, Egerton, and Laud. This edition gives the text in full.

MS. Lamb. 223¹, a Midland version, about 1400, contains texts peculiar to the Laud and Vernon MSS.

MS. Trin. Coll. Cbr. R 3. 25,² about 1400, is closely related to MS. Ash. It has 116 legends including selections from the Temporale. The order in the latter part has been changed. This edition gives it as a variant of MS. Ash.

MS. Bodley 779³, Oxford, 16th Century, contains the latest version of the Cecilia legend. It has a long list of 135 legends increased from the original by the including of many new Pope's lives. The version is given in full in this edition.

The two Northern versions of this legend are next to be considered. Both of these are given in the succeeding pages. MS.

² MS. Trin. Coll. Cbr. R 3.25, klein fol., perg., aus dem Anfang des 15th Jhdts., ganz von derselben Hand geschrieben, hat 276 Blätter, die Seite zu je 52 Versen, und ist vollständig und ohne Lücken erhalten. Am Ende folgt, von der Hand des Schreibers, ein Index, wovon unten ein Stück abgeschnitten ist. Diese Sammlung enthält nicht allein die gesammten Legenden des MS. Harl. ausser Anastasia, sondern auch die zusätzlichen des MS. Ash. Sonst tritt der Einfluss der Laud-Version nicht hervor. . . . Die Ordnung der Legenden ist oft gestört in der Reihe ausgelassene Legenden sind später nachgetragen. Horstmann, Einf., Alteng. Leg. 1881. p. xlix.

³ Die letzte der grossen Legenden sammlungen ist MS. Bodl. 779 zu angehörig, ein dicker Folio-band, aus Papier, im Ganzen 310 Blätter enthaltend, obwohl nur 306 gezählt sind (2 Blätter sind doppelt gezählt). Titel am oberen Rande der Blätter finden sich bis fol. 209; außerdem stehen Ueberschriften in roth, oft aufgeklebt, über den meisten Legenden. Fol. 175 b und 176 sind unbeschrieben. Die Seite enthält durchschnittlich 56 Zeilen, später wird die Schrift kleiner und enger. Diese Handschrift ist vollständig erhalten. Diese Sammlung ist aus allen MSS. zusammengelesen, und dazu noch mit vielen neuen, nirgends sonst vor handenen Legenden bereichert. Die Reihenfolge der Legenden ist ganz willkürlich und planlos; sie gehören meist nur nach einzelnen kleineren Gruppen zusammen.

. . . Auch sonst zeigt dieses MS. die grösste Willkür. In den mit der ersten Version gemeinsam Legenden steht der Text zwar auf Seiten dieser, insbesondere des MS. Ash. 43, doch zeigen sich auch Spuren der Einwirkung anderer MSS., besonders des MS. Laud L. 70, in welchem sich viele Lesarten wiederfinden. Dazu ist der Text noch häufig willkürlich verändert, und vielfach fehlerhaft und verderbt, und voll von Schreibfehlern. Auf dem ersten Blatt findet sich ein Inhaltsverzeichniß, von derselben Hand, auf der ersten Seite in rother, auf der zweiten in schwarzer Schrift. Horstmann Einf., Alteng. Leg. p. xxxiv.

Cott. Tib. E VII¹, 14th Century, believed to be older than its supplemental form in MS. Harl. 4196, is the central version of the short line group. The same text occurs in MS. Harleian 4196, fol. 191a–193b and is printed by Eugen Kölbing, Eng. Stud. I. 235.

With this is placed a version in the Lowland Scotch dialect, MS. Camb. Univ. Lib. Gg. II. 6, of about the year 1400. This is supposed to be the work of John Barbour, the author of the Bruce. There are about 50 legends in the collections containing in all 33,533 (Horstmann) verses. These legends have been recently edited for the Scottish Text Society and the editor's account of the MS. is given.²

MSS. Cott. Cleop. D IX, and Bodl. 799 are herewith printed for the first time, and the table of variants of the closely-related MSS. Laud 108, Camb. Univ. R 3. 25, Stowe 946, and Lambeth 223 reveals all essential differences between them and the foundational but not original Ashmolean manuscript.

There has been no attempt made in the present edition to determine the absolute inter-relation or chronology of these manuscripts, except so far as they reveal themselves in the mere presentation.

² The MS. is eleven inches in length, three and thirteen-sixteenths broad, and two and a half inches thick. The paper was once probably white; it is now of a dirty white or whitey-brown color, the combined effect probably of age and use. It is in a fair state of preservation, and has been tenderly dealt with by the binder. The original stamped brown calf binding of the fifteenth century, from which the clasp is wanting, still remains, but in a somewhat dilapidated condition, and bearing signs of ancient repairs. The sheets are loose and the binding is separate. At the beginning there is an index, with the names of the saints in Latin and the numbers of the Legends. On the last fly leaf of the MS. occur the words, "Katherine Graham with my hand, Finis," in the handwriting of the seventeenth century, which may perhaps justify the inference that a now unknown Catherine Graham was formerly its possessor.

The MS. appears to have had originally 364 leaves each of them written on both sides. . . . The handwriting belongs to the Scottish type of the 15th century, and is small, cursive, careless, and very difficult to read. In one or two places it is illegible. The greater part of the writing is by one hand. There are a number of lacunæ in the text. Metcalfe, Scot. Text Soc., Lives of Saints, Vol. i. p. viii. (These lacunæ are all recorded by Metcalfe, and by Dr. Horstmann, Einl., Alteng. Leg. 1881. p. lxii.)

The Northern and the Southern groups are the provincial expression of the same faith, the same learning, and the same traditions. The Southern group, which subdivides itself into Southern and South-Midland types, shows the variation resulting from individuality in the person and in the monastery at work upon the transcribing of one or more primitive texts, to which MS. Ashmole stands probably more directly related than any extant version.

The two manuscripts which are taken as the central texts have been subjected to such emendation as the concurrence of the variants, and an examination of the grammatical forms of each unavoidably suggest. These emendations are all indicated by the italicized letter or letters within brackets, and the marginal notes. No change merely for the sake of uniformity has been permitted; only such as contribute to the intelligent reading of the version. The punctuation of the versions has not been made upon a uniform basis. That of MS. Ash. follows the manuscript pointing as given by Dr. Furnivall in the reprint of the Chaucer Society Publications. MS. Cott. Tib. follows in the main the punctuation of the Horstmann edition. MS. Gg. II. 6. is punctuated and capitalized according to the combined authority of Horstmann and Metcalfe. In the two new reprints, MS. Cott. Cleop. has been allowed to stand with simply the manuscript pointings, while MS. Bodl. which in the original is entirely without points, has been punctuated and capitalized according to modern methods.

GRAMMATICAL OUTLINE OF THE CENTRAL VERSIONS.

The vocabulary of the earlier dialect, MS. Ashmole 43, contains less than 18 per cent of words of Romance origin; that of MS. Cott. Tib. E. VII, about 24 per cent. Grammatical inflections are extremely variable in MS. Ashmole, and in MS. Cott. Tib., reduced almost to the minimum of modern English. The context in both manuscripts is often the sole guide for constructions. Each has distinct marks of its respective Southern and Northern origin.

MS. ASH. 43.

NOUNS.

Declension.

The genitive case, singular, is formed in -s, or -es. depes 204, godes 231, lordes 105.

The dative and accusative singular are not distinguishable. The dative, sometimes independent of the nominative form, ends in -e, zere 89, pinge 62, but usually follows the form of the nominative. Examples of variations are the following: ds. dep (2 times), depe (3 times), as. dep (3 times); ds. rede 210, red 30, as. rede 112; ds. lyue 202, 206 (Laud lyf 202, lif 206); ds. fure 224, as. fur 218.

The plural is usually in -s or -es without distinction of case, np. wreches 158; gp. frendes 5; dp. walmes, 231; ap. godes 211; vp. knygtes 168.

Plurals are found in -n or -en in breperen 134, screwen 182, rosen 71, heden 173, soulen 174, 176, erthtilien 152, fon 138, lilion, lylion 91, 71, scourgen 178.

Plural by vowel mutation shows men, 38, 254, and its compounds, wimmen 222; fet (Laud feet,) 49. clopes ap. 7, and good dp. 245, have sg. and pl. alike. Proper names are uninfllected.

PRONOUNS.

i. Personal.

The personal pronoun in this version is thus inflected: (A blank indicates that the form is omitted in the version).

Singular.

N. Ich	pou, þe	he, heo, it, hit
G. my, mi, myn	þi, þine, þin	his, hire
D. me	þe	him, hire
A. me	þe	him, hire it

Plural.

N. we	ȝe	hi
G. our, oure	ȝou're	hor
D. —	ȝou	hem, þem
A. ous	ȝou	hem

2. Demonstrative:

The demonstrative pronouns are þat and þis. þat has the instrumental form, þe - - - - þe, correlatives, 230. þis runs through ns. ds. as. np., uninflected. ap. has þes 60, but þis 180.

The definite article þe approaches the demonstrative signification in several instances (see Gl. þat). There is also the inflected þen of the as. 33, 42, 131, 189. þulke is used 83, 128, 237, 260.

3. Relative:

The relative pronoun þat is not inflected, save for the variant ns. þet 110. Ho has as. wen after to, 136. Wat is uninflected.

4. Interrogative:

Wat, wuch and ho are used as interrogative pronouns.

5. Indefinite:

The indefinite pronouns employed are eche, eiper, me, nogt, noper, noping, oper (see Gl.). The disjointed selue 110, is used with reflexive force.

VERBS.

1. Weak Verbs.

The regular conjugation of the verb is as follows: (The blanks signify that no instance of the tense is given in the text). Pres. Ind. Sg.

1. — or -e: lif 212, kepe 207, mete 100, owe 183, sende 39.

Pl.

1. _____
2. _____

3. e or -ede : caste 179, burede 139, bileuede 145.

The infinitives usually end in -e; several in y or ie : burie 136, deie 78, 216, hie 238, crie 38, halwy 250.

The past participle usually has i- as its sign, this being lost in several cases when the participle assumes an adjectival force.

The present participle has only one illustration in the text, wepyng 156. There is also sepende 229, a derivative adjective.

The imperative has witep 73, figtep 169, sei 39, wepe 225.

The optative shows the following forms, 1 sg. ileue 27, ise 31; 2 sg. nost 189, grante 16, segge 212; 3 sg. seop 25, underzete 21; 3 pl. teche 39.

The preterite plural frequently adds -e to the preterite singular. com 46, come 140; song 10, 11, songe 9; nom 58, nome 140; ber 56, bere 174.

ADJECTIVES.

Weak adjectives show an inclination to take -e as their sign, but the usage is not uniform, strong: good 25, 115, 247; weak: gode 69, 128, 163, 171, 176, but gode 139, strong; old, 46, 109, weak: olde 40, 45, 75, but strong: olde 47, and weak: old 55; strong: schort 201, weak: scorte 227, strong: wit 77, weak: wite 56, 65, 91, 184. Many words like suet show no variation, while stalward 168, and stalwarde 168, are both weak.

The vocative usually uses the sign of the weak adjective, leue 95, 99, 107, 113, 127, stalwarde 168. The plural cases apparently cling to the use of final -e though not invariably.

The comparative of the adjective is found in brigzore 70; bet 64, betere 186; mo 182, 232; soper 111; woder 112, verisore 92.

The cardinal numerals o 61, 62, 129, on 61², 71, one 84², two 76, 86, 257, to 70, twei 139; þre, four, twenti, hondred, are used; the ordinal þridde 253.

ADVERBS.

Terminations.

-liche: folliche 185, stalwardliche 169, stilliche 3, 10, tristiliche 18, uolliche 236, sodenliche 94; -e, the most frequent suffix: bi-hinde 193; dere 236; ȝare 120; ȝerne 4, 119; harde 23, lasser 158, 159; longe 126; -e (< en): bi-hinde 193, aboute 88, amidde 219, wiþpinne 68, wiþ-poute 179.

The old genitive derivation remains in enes, 190, 246 (Adj. eny.) The negative particle ne, frequently employed, appears (-ny) as a verb suffix in wilny 81. It is frequently agglutinated with verb forms as nost, nolde, not, nele, nabbej.

þo (then, when); þei (although), 91, 145, 147, 148, are characteristic of the MS.

The frequent adverbial prefix a- is never written o- or on- as in Cott. Tib. E. VII., but aboute 88, adown 49, amidde 219, arigð 101; -ward is employed in hamward 238.

The comparative form of the adverb is given in lengore 230, more 54, lasser 158, 159; the superlative in mest 11.

PREPOSITIONS.

The prepositions with their dependant cases are to be found in the glossary.

To is frequently employed in this Southern dialect as sign of the genitive case. The prefix a- of prepositions, as in the adverb, is invariable in place of Tib. E. VII. -o, on.

MS. COTT. TIB. E. VII.

NOUNS.

Declension.

The genitive case is denoted by (1) the preposition of, marterdom 236, chastite 128, 208, angell 262; (2) ending -s, -es, maysters 388, christes 315, 319, 344; (3) without sign of case, broper 218. The dative and accusative singular show no inflexional sign. Plurals are formed without case distinction by (1) termination -s, -es, -is, or -ys, angels 358, wordes 80, sawles 356, bodis 355, hertis 202, bodys 202;

- (2) vowel change, men 134, 321, fete 269, breþer 291, 308, wemen 6;
 (3) alike in sg. and pl., folk 163, 359, clothes 32, 113, sede 128, 132, paines 352, 434; (4) irregularly, knese 437, heuides 199, 354.

PRONOUNS.

1. Personal.

The personal pronouns are thus inflected in the text:

Singular.

N. I	þow, þe, (t)ou, ou, ȝe	he, scho, it
G. my, mi	þi, ȝoure, ȝine	his, hir
D. me	þe, ȝow	him, hir, it, yit
A. me	þe, ȝow	him, hir, it

Plural.

N. we	þe, ȝow	þai
G. oure	ȝoure	þaire
D. us (vs)	ȝow	þam
A. us	ȝow	þam

2. Demonstrative.

The demonstrative pronouns are þat or þo and þis with corresponding plurals þa and þir.

3. Relative.

The text shows the following forms for the relative pronoun; ns. what 118, 157, 170; gs. whas 260; ds. wham 462, what 281; as. what 211, 213, 290, etc. Plural throughout, what.

4. Interrogative.

This form of the pronoun occurs only in composition in for-whi 228.

5. Indefinite.

The indefinite pronouns used are any 67, ilkane 321, no-man 95, none 142, 430, nowþer 89, oþer 198, sum 433. Among these there is no instance of inflexion.

ARTICLES.

The definite article is þe with occasionally an apparent old neuter þat 198, 377. The indefinite article has the forms a 23, 60, 284, 420, 452, preceding a consonant, and ane 63, 87, 147, 418, preceding a vowel.

ADJECTIVES.

The adjective is irregular in its use of final -e to distinguish strong and weak forms, and, saving the occasional occurrence of -e, it is without case endings. Instances of variation occur in the following, ns. mast, gs. moste 126; dp. maste 384; ns. both, dp.

M. W. G.

bathe 200, ap. bath 90, both 224; ns. chast, as. chaste 129, dp. chast 201. Only one comparative form of the adjective occurs, verrayer 266. The cardinal numerals a 162, 163, 164, 426, twa 81, 195, 308, thre 430, 431, 436, 438, 446, are employed.

VERBS.

I. Weak Verbs.

The inflexion of the verb is as follows:

Ind. Pres. Sg.

1. Usually without termination: gern 116, luf 66, say 103, trow 173, haue 60.
 2. } es: askes 228, dwelles 168, trowes 167, grantes 181, likes 229,

The signs of the preterite, sg. and pl., are -t: baptist 178, 327, comfort 331, gert 354, pl. 415, left 434, sent 443; wirschipt 397; -d: cumand 349, 371, 403, entred 247, feld 253, had 149, pl. 33, 310, herd 225, 267, 323, 348, 367, 399, 422, mad, made 45, 97, 215, 222, 459; said 46, 58, 78, 93, willd 338, wond 307, answerd 92, 226, herd 43, honord, 294; -ed: pained 405, granted 318, kissed 248, 249, 269, lifted 156, married 23, trowed 18, turned 319, granted 345, lifed 293, 309, 389, trowed 360, 396, turned 360, 393; -id, -yd; heuyd 125, sesid, 16, 441, lemid 194, prechid 298, 315, without ending: put 352, led 240, 358, fed 38, trow 333; irregular: biline 327.

The optative gives eight forms in the three persons of the singular. They are without termination except sawe 49, 144, and file 68.

The imperative ending 2 sg. is -e, -es and sometimes without termination, greue 62, 93, luke 62, kepes 201, ask 212, mak 452.

The infinite inclines to the dropping of final -e.

The present participle ends in -and: assentand 207, brinand 416, calland 42, kneleand 191, lifand 438, playand 15, 421, precheand 308.

The past participle has the endings -d, -t, -ed, -id, -de; and -n, -ne, -en.

The following, not derived from the umlaut series of strong verbs, form their preterites and past participles regularly, but with change of vowel.

II. Strong Verbs.

The strong verbs are less numerous than the weak. Disregarding the seven verbs with irregular preterites just preceding there are thirty-eight. For these verbs eighteen infinitives are given in the text, twenty have been constructed on the analogy of other forms and related verbs. The termination for the infinite thus results, -e, eleven, without ending, twenty-eight.

Like the weak verb, 1 sg. of the strong verb takes no termination. 2 sg. shows only one form, -e instead of -es, bede 69. 3 sg. has three instances, termination -es; thinkes 381, biddes 423, waxes 133, also tase 159, dose 66. Uninflected, gaf 285, tell 323, 367, wit 67; impersonal, think 251; contracted, bus 61.

In the preterite sg., the sign continues to be -de, talde 242, and the similarity continues as in weak verbs between the forms of the 3 sg. and 3 pl.

The optative among strong verbs shows the forms 2 sg. gifes 124, 1 pl. gif 224, 3 pl. fall 365.

The imperative 2 sg. has tak 106, 131; teche 451; tell 107, 109.

The one case of pres. pt. is schineand 193.

From the old reduplicating verbs we have the following, in eo:
bifell 324, 368, byfell 304, fell 153, 269, knew 13, 28.

In e: (hete 257).

From old preterite presents: durst 29, 76; mot 127; may 5, 9, 83, 94, 95, 110, 130, 376, might 170, 222, 265, 286, 289, 357, 448, moght 56, 442; sal(l) 72, 86, 111, 117, 212, 279, suld 31, 311; will 79, 213, 241, willed 338, wald 142, 207, 219, 312, 351.

Anomalous verbs are represented in the text by the following forms: inf. be, pt. was, pp. bene; inf. ga, pt. gode; inf. do, pt. did.

ADVERBS.

Adverbs usually end in -ly: trewly, parfityly, smertly, stoutly, halily; once in -i: wiseli; frequently in -e: wele, tite, rathe; otherwise without ending or irregular.

PREPOSITIONS.

A list of the prepositions in their proper order may be found with their respective case government in the glossary. Since noun inflections in this text are so little to be relied upon, we must decide in many instances the case employed by the methods of Mn. English, in general the dative being the case of the indirect object, the accusative the case of the direct. The genitive is frequently expressed by means of the preposition of. Source, possession (benefit, instrumentality, interest,) with the preposition of, seem to convey a more distinctively dative than genitive idea.

PHONOLOGY OF THE STRESSED VOWELS.

[The vowels and diphthongs here given are classified alphabetically according to their Middle English forms. The stem only of a word series is given, except in cases of compound words and where an inflection serves to make the placing of a word intelligible. There has been no attempt made to classify words according to their Middle English sounds. References given at the head of each group apply to the general type of the group, cases of special reference immediately follow the word under consideration. METRICAL ANALYSIS OF THE VERSIONS.

The metrical analyses here given of the central versions of this edition are in the main illustrative, each, of a group of legends. The Southern and Midland type is represented by MS. Ash. 43, the prevailing type in the Northern legends by MS. Cott. Tib. E. VII. In contrast to the uniformity of the long-line couplets of the South, is the variety in line length, stress, and strophaic arrangement, of the later Northern group. For this reason the meter of MS. Cott. Tib. E. VII. does not stand as an analysis of so characteristic a form for the legend, though it was an easy and therefore a popular rime-form for a great variety of literary productions of the 14th century.

MS. ASHMOLE 43.

I. METRE.

1. Latin Septenary (Schipper, Eng. Met., I. §§ 113-115), iambic, 4+3 stress, in couplets with an equal proportion of masculine and feminine end-rime; usually masculine cæsura. Several lines in this version are French Alexandrine (Schipper, I. § 54), 3+3 stress, usually masculine cæsura, riming, masculine or feminine, with its adjacent septenary.

The standard line, most free from irregularities of contraction and elision, reads as follows:

- 8 Gerláns & trésours ál of góldelþe hére néxt hire líche.
 110 þing þét ne mái him súlue hélp|hous mái it hélpé þé.
 133 Cecíle, vor héo wómman wás|atóm heg móst abíde.
 134 Ac þís breþéren þát weré mén|abóute wénde wíde.
 135 & wén me mártréð crístenmén|þudér he wólde góð.
 136 & stéle to wén hi mígte bést||& búrie hém anón.

so also ll. 7, 16, 36, 40, 41, 63, 64, 68, 72, 95, 96, 97, 98, 100, 111, 114, 123, 126, 128, 129, 133, 137, 144, 173, 175, 177, 190, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 210, 220, 227, 235, 240, 243, 245, 251, 254, 255, 256.

Beside the lines reducible by slurring and elision to the above type, the following have an irregular number of syllables, ll. 31, 58, 75, 104, 106, 119, 124, 126, 127, 151, 152, 153, 161, 162, 171, 180, 201, 203, 205, 207, 228, 253. These vary from five (l. 27), and six (ll. 58, 104, 127, 153, 180, 203), to eleven (ll. 75, 152) syllables in the first hemistich, and from three (l. 153) to nine (l. 126) in the second hemistich.

Probable Alexandrines are the lines:

- 27 Líf þou wólt, lefmón||þat ích ileúe þís.
 58 Seyn Úrbán hím nom ́p||& gan hím uorþ léde.
 104 "Le" séde valérián||wel mé bi-hóueþ só.
 107 þo séde þis hóli máide||tybórs leué broþér.
 138 Ho mádæ hem só hardí||to bén þeempéours fón.
 146 & tóke þat wás awórþ||no sémblance nádde.
 180 þis þré holí martírs||to-gádere heg búredé anón.
 203 Wén þou mígt deþ gáue||me þencþ bí pur rígt.
 257 þis wás two hóndred gér||& þré & twénti rígt.
 258 Aftér þat oúr lord wás||In is modér alíg.

Also 153, 204, 207, 232. Some of these (ll. 27, 58, 153, 173, 180, 203,) MS. Laud. enlarges to septenary form.¹

2. The cæsura: The principal cæsura occurs regularly after the fourth foot, immediately following an accented syllable. Not infrequently a final -e that may or may not be elided occurs before the cæsura. See ll. 1, 3, 5, 6, 8, 13, 15, 16, 19, 23, 33, 36, 39, 41, 48, 51, 61, 68, 69, 70, 71, 73, 81, 88, 90, 94, 100, 105, 107, 108, 110, 115, 122, 123, 124, 128, 130, 132, 142, 147, 148, 153, 156, 157, 161, 172, 173, 174, 178, 185, 186, 188, 193, 194, 195, 196, 198, 200, 202, 203, 206, 215, 220, 221, 222, 225, 227, 231, 233, 237, 239, 240, 241, 243, 250, 260.

An extra syllable other than -e at the end of the first hemistich, forming a feminine cæsura is found in,

- 31 Lif ich ise þat in folie lóuestlan noþer þen me.
 50 & sede þat cicile him sende þúder||to esce cristendom.
 102 Non we beþ verst of slepe awáked||nou we mowe uerst ise.
 192 To clepe me fol þat am þi máistre||ne suxstou my poer.

A secondary cæsura may be detected in the following, in the first member:

- 1 Séyn Cecíle | of nóble kúnne||ibóre wás at róme.
 15 "Suéte héorte" | quáþ þis máide||" uor lóue þat þou hást to mé.

There may be two cæsuras in the first member:

- 73 "Witeþ þis" | he séde | In tréwe lóue||wiþ chást bodí & cléne.
 89 "Broþér" | he séde | "hóu geþ þis"||þis týme óf þe gére.

One cæsura may occur in the second member:

- 92 I né miȝtē hém verísore smúl||me þencþ | þen ích nou dó.
 113 Séyn cecíle him cúste anón||" lóue tybórs" heg séde.

These examples may be multiplied.

¹ 27. "Líf þóu wilt," séyde Valérián,||þat ích I-léue þís,
 58. Seint úrbán nóm him ́p agén,||and gan hím forþ léde.
 153. In héuest whán þe swýñkeres móweþfair schéf and goðd and rype
 173. Opón þe móru, to þé mauméts||þis góðe mén were bróuth
 180. Þesé þre holí martírs||ge búredé to-gádere anón
 203. Seþe þóu mygth gáue deþ ánd nō líslime þinkþ bē pur ryggt.

3. Enjambement: There is apparently little effort to lighten the metrical effect of the poem by the running-on of the first to the second hemistich, or of line to line. One probable example of the run-on line is,

- 143 "Síre, we wóldę," quebę bís obér, "þát we wúrpí wére 144 Hor knáues uórte hábbę ibé þat gé lette quélle þére.

and the following may fairly be regarded as examples of the running-on of the first hemistich.

- 153 In héruest wén hi mówe váir corn répe
258 Aftér þat oúr lord wás in ís modér alít.

The poem is somewhat lightened by the inversions of the conversational passages. Considerable shifting of word stress is unavoidable, in words both of Germanic and Romance origin. An incomplete list follows:—Jústice, 137, Jústicé, 161, Justice, 149, 172, 175; Cécile, 167, Cecíle, 67, 69, 133, Cécilé 113; bróper, 95, 114, broþér, 82, 107; léfmon, 27, lefmón, 20; Vrbán, 40, 51, 66, 129, Vŕban, 58; Týbors, 82, 87, 107, 131, Tibórs, 111, 127; Valérián, 52, 60, 79, 81, 95, Válerían, 57, 117; þorú, 97, þóru, 5; schollép, 155, schúllep, 156. The metre allows the retention of the French pronunciation in richesse, 6.

4. Arsis and Thesis: The acephalous line is a frequent type produced by the omission of the first thesis:

- 21 Váste hé stont hér by mé& íf he úndergéte.
23 Þát he nólde hárde smyte& bý-nymé þé bi mígte.
56 Hór wiþ wíte véstéméns|a súþe uair wrít he bér.

so also II. 1, 14, 15, 19, 21, 23, 33, 39, 46, 56, 61, 66, 82, 87, 93, 99, 119, 124, 127, 131, 140, 143, 156, 157, 159, 163, 165, 166, 168, 169, 182, 185, 198, 200, 206, 207, 212, 224, 228, 242, 244, 250, 256.

By the omission of the first thesis of the second hemistich, two accented syllables come together:

- 30 In clánnessé ichúlle þi wílle dó|ái aftér þi réd.
34 Þou móst byléu on ihésu críst|& icrístned bé.
54 & móre tiraúnt þen ény wólf|ás a lómb þus milde.

So also II. 31, 44, 53, 58, 60, 61, 75, 81, 82, 105, 107, 108, 109, 121, 127, 139, 143, 145, 146, 149, 152, 153, 164, 186, 187, 189, 206, 209, 213, 215, 218, 222, 237, 238, 239, 241, 247.

An arsis and a thesis are wanting in the second hemistich of the following lines:

- 124 Fól he wére þat ít woldę lésé|vor ény stríf.
153 In héruest wén hi mówe|váir corn répe.
201 A wréchę caróinę þou mígte geuę dép|þat wél schort ís.
205 & wén þou déþes sérgaunt árt|deþ þí lord ís.
252 Vpe ís poer þér-Innę wére idó|In álle wíse.

A trisyllabic measure, produced by doubling the thesis, must frequently be employed to reduce the redundancy of the line. (Ellis, E. E. Pron. p. 334.)

5 Þóru híre fréndes stréngþe||ispóused heo wás to a man.

12 Let lórd myn hérte un-wémmed bélþat Iné be confoúnded nóst.

93 Só vol ícham óf þis smúl||& so múché it is ín my þógt.

125 An wén þer ís so muri lífþat we schúllþe her-áfter auóngē.

Other instances may be found in ll. 13, 28, 31, 33, 35, 40, 45, 52, 57, 62, 67², 70, 77, 78, 86, 91², 93², 106², 112, 118, 119, 120, 125², 130, 131, 152³, 154, 155, 163, 170, 171, 174, 183, 187, 188², 191, 202, 207², 208², 215, 216, 219², 226, 228, 230, 233, 234, 237, 248, 250, 253.

5. Elisions: A final vowel occurring before a vowel or aspirate h before a vowel, in another word, is usually elided. Syncope is illustrated in the metre by the following: werde 7, trist-íliche 18, togadere 180, caroine 196, 201, creature 223, louest 25, seop 25, clepeþ 52, ouer 62, lilion 71, welluwe 75, tokeneþ 77, 78, scholleþ 84, neuere 90, poer 189, 252. Syncope in preterite endings in ll. 5, 48, 102, 135, 145, 180. Heo is frequently slurred as in ll. 2, 3, 5, 180, 230, 231, 233. Diæresis is found in conseil 17, wardeyn 20, vestemens 56, emperoürs 140, sergäunt 205, pencþ 203, iugément 142, 221.

Final -e:

The following classification of the use of final -e in MS. Ash. 43 is made on the basis of Ellis' enumeration and suggestions for the study of Chaucer. (E. E. Pron. p. 339-42.)

In many cases an allowance must be made for a possible double reading of the lines. In doubtful cases the choice here given has been influenced by grammatical and rhetorical stresses, and by reference to MS. Laud, 108.

(a) Final -e was elided before a following vowel: ll. 7, 12, 19 (89 times).

Doubtful cases: ll. 29, 173, 218, 237, 253, 260.

(b) Final -e was elided before h: ll. 3, 32, 50 (47 times).

Doubtful cases: ll. 4, 14, 19, 33, 53, 110, 132, 166, 184, 222.

(c) Final -e, when the sign of an oblique case, was elided before a consonant: ll. 1, 3, 10 (68 times).

Final -e, when the sign of an oblique case, was not elided before a consonant: ll. 12, 13, 14 (39 times).

(d) Final -e, when the sign of verbal inflection, was elided: ll. 2, 3, 4 (66 times).

Final -e, when the sign of verbal inflection was not elided: ll. 7, 27, 28 (39 times).

(e) Final -e is elided in the nominative case: ll. 7, 10, 36 (12 times).

Final -e, in the nominative case is not elided: ll. 44, 113, 150², (10 times).

(f) Final -e, in hire, elided: ll. 3, 4, 8 (25 times).

Final -e, in hire, probably not elided: ll. 13, 235.

(g) Final -e in hadde, habbe, not preceding a vowel or h, elided: ll. 14, 67, 132, 147, 254.

Probable exceptions: ll. 74, 132, 150.

(h) Final -e in adverbs and prepositions, elided: ll. 3, 14, 18 (19 times).

Final -e, in adverbs and prepositions, not elided: ll. 4, 7, 10 (18 times).

(i) Final -e, at the end of first hemistich, permitting a possible pronunciation: ll. 1, 3, 5 (76 times).

(j) Medial -es- is pronounced: ll. 5, 7, 9, 47², 60, 76, 105, 144, 147, 157, 158, 168, 183, 204, 205, 208, 231, 250.

Medial -es-, pronounced as s: ll. 86, 96, 108, 109, 149, 231, 251.

II. RIME.

i. Masculine end-rimes in this version number 66, feminine, 64. With four exceptions,—broþer : þoper, 108; ibe : ise, 102; isogt : ibroȝt, 120; drinkeþ : swynkeþ, 152, and one case where two words are employed, it nys : it is, 148, the feminine endings are secured in the final -e's. These final -e's exist in infinitives in twenty-five cases. In five cases, the infinitive rimes with an infinitive, 41:42, 75:76, 177:178, 187:188, 217:218. Twice the infinitive rimes with a participle, 3:4, 243:244; twice with an opt. sg. 21:22, 187:188; three times with a pt. sg. 59:60, 175:176, 219:220; ten times with substantives, ns. 239:240; gs. 37:38; ds. 57:58, 155:156, 161:162, 35:36; as. 23:24, 167:168, 169:170, 189:190; twice with an adjective, ds. 73:74, ap. 237:238; once with an adverb, 125:126.

The rime in this version is practically pure. A difference in quantity which is to be detected in some word-pairs, is too slight to warrant citation since the short vowels allow of being lengthened. There is difference of consonance in clene : ȝe[m]e, 25-6, and (?) seruice: wise, 251-2.

Words from West Germanic sources rime with those of Norse origin in, take:make, 217-18; lawe:dawe, 141-2, laste:caste, 75-6, 219-20, sone:bone, 79-80, 97-8, toke:boke, 71-2, fulle:smulle, 67-8.

Words of West Germanic origin rime with Romance words in the following: man:-an, 5-6, 45-6, 81-2, 129-30, -an:can 117-18, 15-16, 17-18, her:poer, 191-2, rome:come 1-2, mahon:adon, 183-4

-ture:fure, 223-4, -tise;wise, 41-2, lif:strif, 123-4, seruice:wise, 251-2.

2. Alliteration: Alliterative passages are distributed quite evenly throughout the poem, and are of sufficient distinctness and frequency to noticeably bind the lines, though their introduction is not coincident with logical or rhetorical stresses. The following are examples.

- 85 þe angel wende wiþ þis word!
 143 "Sirę, we wolde," queþe þis ober! "þat we wurþi were.
 173 Hor heden he het boþe of smyte!
 194 Vor it nys botë as a bleddorę! iþlowe uol of wynde.

So also; ll. 2, 10, 38, 59, 68, 220, 238, 240, and others. Alliteration between words of the same root is found in

9 Wen þe menstrales songe hor song of hor menstrasie, and lines 14, 34, 90, 187, 195.

Assonance:

There is one case of end-assonance, clene: zeme (MS. zene) 25-6.

MS. COTT. TIB. E VII.

I. METRE.

1. French short couplet: (Schipper, I. §§ 117-124), each verse consisting of four (usually) iambic feet; a masculine cæsura occurs regularly after the second stress. Correct masculine rime is the rule, the possibility of feminine rime being secured, for the most part, through the final e's.

The first lines represent the prevailing type of scansion.

Jhésus Críst, ful óf peté,
 To mánkind ís of mércy fré
 And schéwes his póuste & his míght
 Of(t)-síthès herę únto súm men síght
 5 So þát we máy his míghtes kén,
 Als wéle in wémen áls in mén,
 And áll-þermóst in máydens gíng
 þat will be bóun to his bidíng.

2. The Cæsura:

The cæsura may be strongly marked by rhetorical stresses as
 31 Þe day was sett||þai suld be wed
 and ll. 1, 10, 16, 27, 56, 63, 66, 127, 307, etc.

The cæsura may be felt most strongly after the first stress:

48 Lórd||þou mák my hérт all cléne
 363 He sáid:||I sé, þairę sáwles ilkáne,
 so also ll. 59, 79, 105, 212, 216, 218, 231, 363, 413.

Or after the third stress as

- 148 All cléd in lynnén clóth[ful cléne
343 Þarfórē besē nōght abáist, [to tāke.

Occasionally two cæsuras are introduced:

- 93 Gude sír[scho sáid[greué noght hē
136 A spóws[scho tóke[with hír to dwéll.

Also ll. 227, 311.

The verse is but slightly retarded by cæsura in ll. 11, 15, 21, 26, 33, 36, 46, 60, etc.

Rhetorical pauses often are not coincident with metrical pauses as in ll. 62, 63, 74, 104, 147, 148, 343, 445.

3. Enjambement:

A pause in the thought usually occurs at the termination of the line. There is frequent skilful illustration, however, of the run-on line.

- þan say I, syr, þat þou soll se
104 þe Angell,—þat I tell to þe
Woman, if þou will þat I trow
80 þir wordes þat þou sais me now,
Bitwix vs twa here lat me se
82 Him þat þou sais so lufes þe,
So þat I may my-self assay
84 Whether he be angell uerray

So also ll. 29-30; 117-18, 120-21, 146-7, 156-7, 211-12, 217-18, 229-30, 261-2, 275-6, 286-7, 289-90, 332-3, 337-8, 359-60, 363-4-5, 387-8, 393-4, 407-8, 441-2, 455-6.

4. Arsis and Thesis:

The omission of the thesis gives an acephalous line in

- 1 Jhésus Críst, ful óf peté

and ll. 16, 25, 29, 48, 55, 58, 85, 97, 112, 117, 120, 134, 140, 173, 176, 180, 212, 219, 221, 232, 233, 255, 257, 269, 279, 291, 313, 316, 325, 344, 348, 397, 400, 411, 414, 419, 424, 426, 433, 437, 440, 446, 456, 458.

A double thesis must be read in ll. 130, 132:

- 130 þat tó þairé sáwl may mékill aváil,
132 Of þe sédē þou háis in Cícoll sáwn—

also ll. 23, 27, 136, 156, 174, 178, 198, 199, 226, 239, 243, 250, 252, 254, 266, 272, 274, 283, 318, 339, 383.

5. Elisions:

Elision or slurring takes place in ll. 63, 64, 80, 82, 125⁸, 136, 151, 159, 196, 347, 364, 372, 399, 408. Medial -e- is syncopated in richely 35, halely 122, parfitely 323, wisely 451, reuerence 460. e in the preterite suffix -ed is syncopated in ll. 18, 149, 127, 263, 269, 300, 209, 321, 393, 396, 398², 405, 447, 458. -id, 282, 298, and -yd, 125. As exception to this we have -ed in ll. 156, 248, 249, 263, 293, 319, 360², 441; -id in 16, 24, 194, 315, -(t)ed in 318, 345.

Other vowels than e being chiefly the essential vowels of pronouns, are not agglutinated to the succeeding word beginning with a vowel, or vowel preceded by h. As illustration of this non-elision before vowels, note in ll. 8, 15, 46, 114, 209, 235, 277, 333, 418, 420, 442; vowel before h + vowel, ll. 116, 122, 125, 132, 186, 224, 373, 375, 382, 417, 434, 444. Diæresis is not noted except in the possible case of sawñi, 132. Word accent is subject to fluctuation, throughout, through the exigencies of metrical stress. In proper names this becomes particularly noticeable, Cicill and Cicill; Valírián 24, Válirian 406, Válirián 178, Valirian 159, Úrbán 106, Urbán 124, 120.

-es as a substantive termination is pronounced -es, ll. 32, 42, 94, 103, 116, 125, 164, 175, 224, 234, 251, 299, 302, 326, 335, 352, 354, 362, 363, 380, 436, 438; is, 355.

-es, verbal, occurs ll. 3, 128, 129, 230, 423. Elsewhere e is not elided in -es.

-es (substantively), 5, 23, 30, 36, 77, 80, 107, 182, 193, 199, 225, 265, 270, 319, 344, 356, 365, 384, 408, 409, 419, 430, 431; (verbally), 133, 167, 168, 181, 201, 210, 228, 229, 255, 328, 381.

Final -e:

1. Final -e is usually elided in any position as shown in the following enumeration.

(a) Elided before a vowel: ll. 6, 12, 14, 21 (62 times).

Exceptions: 71, 112, 166, 261, 286, 242, 289.

(b) Elided before h + vowel; ll. 66, 76, 122 (21 times).

Final-e before a consonant is elided:

(a) Before case forms: ll. 37, 43, 62 (49 times).

(b) Before verbal inflections: ll. 49, 62, 68 (23 times).

(c) Adverbial -e: ll. 13, 55, 66 (23 times).

2. Final -e before a consonant is not elided:

(a) Before case forms: ll. 38, 109, 219, 386.

(b) Before verbal inflections: ll. 108, 420.

(c) Adverbial -e: l. 158.

The possessive pronouns furnish the following additional cases of elision:

oure, 14, 224, 259, 461; gowre, 59, 61, 73, 337; paire, 40, 130, 199, 240, 299, 301, 304, 312, 318, 354, 355, 356, 363, 365, 382, 395.

II. RIME.

1. The normal rime for version Cott. Tib. E vii. is the masculine. From a total of 231 couplets, 120 are masculine, and 11 are feminine (ll. 15-16, 85-6, 115-16, 131-2, 171-2, 237-8, 261-2, 375-6, 423-4, 433-4, 453-4). Besides these feminines there is a considerable number which admit the possible pronunciation of final -e. This final -e, as shown above, was rarely pronounced when medial in the line. There are indications, however, that final -e at the end of the line was sometimes retained for euphony, since it must be remembered that the Saints' Lives were intended for the ear of the listeners, not to satisfy with well matched words the eye of the priest who read. Mak (inf.) occurs twice medially, ll. 350, 391 but make (inf.) l. 427, final, rimes with strake; man rimes with Valirian, ll. 169-70, 233-4, 253-4, but Valiriane: allane 243-4, Valiriane: tane 295-6, Ualiriane: slane 379-80. Opposed to this, note the variableness in dede (ppl. adj.): stede, 457-8, and stede: ded (ppl. adj.) 153-4; also of unmistakably silent -e in cum: martirdome 235-6, and convers: reherce 361-2. There are 74 of these quasi-feminine rimes. It is safe to say the pronunciation was variable, and left to the individuality of the officiating monk.

Of the 74 couplets in -e, 23 rimes are made by combination with infinitive endings, classified as follows:

Infinitive: infinitive.....	7
Infinitive: other verb forms.....	3
" noun (oblique cases).....	9
" adjective (strong).....	4

The remaining 20 of the rimes employed, 16 masculine, 4 feminine, require a transferred or "hovering accent" (Schwebende Betonung, Schipper, §119), to satisfy the metrical requirements. They are, (-ing-rimes), ging: biding, 7-8; thing: beginning, 97-8; asking: thing, 215-16; king: tibing 347-8; e-rimes; pete: fre, 1-2, be: chastite, 127-8, 207-8, charite: degre, 293-4; he: menze, 319-20, cuntre: thre, 429-30; participial (-and-rimes), land: precheand, 307-8, stand: brinand 415-16. Others have varying formations, ll. 101-2, 225-6, 235-6, 313-14, 387-8, 397-8, 409-10, 439-40.

The rime is usually pure, even where it involves secondary lengthening of Middle English forms. The following list includes all the cases of difference in quality. cum: -dome, 235-6;

ȝode: gude, 389-90; gude: mode, 21-2, 381-2, 405-6; boke: luke, 149:50, knew: Jhesu, 13-14.

Words of West Germanic origin rime with the following Norse derivatives: wrathe: scathe, 75-6, gaste: haste, 119-20, 455-6, allane: tane, 259-60, ilkane: tane, 363-4, haste: maste, 383-4, take: sake, 71-2, 275-6, 343-4, 407-8; haue: craue, 117-18, 211-12, 229-30, 289-90, rathe: bathe, 119-200, meke: seke, 141-2, mele: hele, 213-14, wed: cled, 31-2, lite: smite, 353-4, mis: blis, 357-8, skin: kyn, 25-6, will: untill, 59-60, 287-8, 317-18, 351-2, hym: lym, 139-40, scill: will, 447-8, toke: boke, 155-6, done: bone, 227-8.

West Germanic rimes with Romanic; tane: -ane, 197-8, -ane: allane, 243-4, haue: saue, 163-4, 255-6, -ane: slane, 379-80, mayne: ogayne, 185-6, certayne: ogayne, 263-4, man: -an, 23-4, 169-70, 253-4, -an: þan, 121-2. leue: greue, 61-2, he: menȝe, 319-20, nere: clere, 43-4, reches: les, 387-8, knew: Jhesu, 13-14, be: chastite, 127-8, 207-8, cuntry: thre, 429-30, went: entent, 41-2, 425-6, end: amend, 109-10, end: descend, 145-6, sent: present, 313-14, sent: entent, 443-4, angell: tell, 95-6, wise: seruise, 397-8, multiplise: wise, 133-4, desire: fire, 413-14, wist: baptist, 177-8, gin: syn, 67-8, hows: spows, 247-8, -us: þus 329-30.

Words of Romance origin in some cases rime with those from Norse, tase: place, 159-60, -ane: tane, 295-6, bill: till, 157-8, 165-6.

3. Alliteration:

Alliteration is a frequent though not essential feature of the verse. It occurs for best illustration in the following lines:

- 38 Full fele folk þaire frendes fed.
- 45 Scho made hir melody omang.
- 100 Mast of might and of mercy fre.
- 112 Cleth þe all in cþething new
Whitte clathes and clene shall he gif þe
- 125 He heuyd his handes to heuyn on hight
- 246 Por halines he of him herd.
- 278 To tak his trrowth & trewly trow
- 375 His saul was hastly hent to heuyn

also ll. 5, 8, 18, 89, 110, 111, 112, 143, 148, 149, 196, 218, 276, 299, 326, 357. Alliterative phrases like the following occur: milde of mode, 12, 22; moste of might, 100, 126; fers and fell, 136; lemild of light, 194; mede of marterdome, 236; baynly bow, 334; gaf þe gaste, 456.

Legenda Aurea.

Cæcilia, virgo præclarissima, ex nobili Romanorum genere exorta, et ab ipsis cunabilis in fide Christi nutrita, absconditus semper evangelium Christi gerebat in pectore, et non diebus neque noctibus a colloquio divinis et oratione cessabat, quamque virginitatem conservari a domino exorbat. Cum autem cuidam juveni, nomine Valerianus, desponsata fuisset, et dies nuptiarum instituta esset, illa subitus ad carnem siliicio erat induita, et desuper de auratis vestibus tegebatur, et cantantibus organis illa in corde soli domino decantabat dicens: “fiat, domine, cor meum et corpus meum immaculatum, ut non confundar;” et biduanis et tridiuanis jejuniis orans commendabat domino, quod timebat. Venit autem nox, in qua suscepit una cum spouse suo cubiculi secreta silentia, et ita eum alloquitur: “o dulcissime atque amantissime juvenis, est mysterium, quod tibi confitear, si modo tu juratus asseras, tota te illud observantia custodiare.” Jurat Valerianus, se illud nulla necessitate detegere, nulla prodere ratione. Tunc illa ait: “angelum Dei habeo amatorem, qui nimio zelo custodit corpus meum. Hic si vel leviter senserit, quod tu me polluto amore contingas, statim feriet te, et amittes florem tuæ gratissimæ juventutis, si autem cognoverit, quod me sincero amore diligas, ita eminasti, domine Jesu Christe, pastor bone, Cæcilia famula tua quasi apis tibi argumentosa deseruit ; nam sponsum, quem quasi leonem ferocem acceptit, ad te quasi agnum mansuetissimum destinavit." Et ecce subito apparuit sexen quidam niveis vestibus indutus, tenens librum aureis litteris scriptum. Quem videus Valerianus præ nimio timore quasi mortuus cecidit, et a sene levatus, sic legit: "unus Deus, una fides, unum baptismata, unus Deus et pater omnium, qui super omnes, et per omnia, et in omnibus nobis." Cumque haec legisset, dixit ei senior: "credis ita esse an adhuc dubitas?" Tunc exclamavit dicens: "non est aliud, quod verius credi possit, sub coelo." Statimque illo disparsente, Valerianus a sancto Urbano baptisma suscepit, et rediens, Cæciliam cum angelo loquentem in cubiculo invenit. Angelus autem duas coronas ex rosis et liliis in manu habebat, et unam Cæciliæ, et alteram Valeriano tradidit, dicens: "istas coronas immaculato corde et mundo corpore custodite, quia de paradyso Dei eas ad vos attuli; nec unquam marcescent, nec odorem amittent, nec ab aliis, nisi quibus castitas plauerit, videri poterunt. insensibilia et muta, ita ut Tiburtius responderet ac diceret: "qui ista non credit, pecus est." Tunc Cæcilia osculans pectus ejus dixit: "hodie te fateor meum esse cognatum, sicut enim amor Dei fratrem tuum mihi conjugem fecit, ita te mihi cognatum contentus faciet ydolorum. Vade igitur cum fratre tuo, ut purificationem accipias et angelicos vultus videre valeas." Dixitque Tiburtius fratri suo: "obsecro te, frater, ut mihi dicas, ad quem me ducturus es." Cui Valerianus: "ad Urbanum episcopum." Cui Tiburtius: "de illo Urbano dicens qui totiens damnatus est et adhuc in latereb̄ commoratur? hic, si inventus fuerit, cremabatur; et nos in illius flammis pariter involvemur, et dum quærum sumus divinitatem latentem in coelis, incurremus fuorem exurentem in terris." Cui Cæcilia: "Si hæc sola esset vita, juste hanc perdere timeremus; est autem alia melior, quæ nunquam amittitur, quam nobis Dei filius enarravit. Omnia enim, quæ facta sunt, filius ex patre genitus condidit, universa autem, quæ condita sunt ex patre procedens spiritus animavit. Hic igitur filius Dei in mundum veniens verbis et miraculis aliam vitam esse nobis monstravit." Cui Tiburtius: "cerite unum Deum esse asseris, et quomodo nunc tres esse testarisi?" Respondit Cæcilia: "sicut in una hominis sapientia sunt tria, scilicet ingenium, memoria et intellectus, sic et in una divinitatis assentia tres personæ esse possunt." Tunc cœpit ei de adventu filii Dei et passione prædicare, et multas congratulat̄ ipsius passionis ostendere. "Nam ideo," inquit, "filius Dei est tentus, ut genus humanum dimittatur peccato detentum; benedictus maledictus, ut homo maledictus benedictionem consequatur; illudi se patitur, ut homo ab illusione dæmonum liberetur; spineam coronam accepit in capite, ut a nobis sententiam auferat capitalem; fel suscipit amarum, ut sanaret hominis dulcem gustum; expoliatur, ut parentum nostrorum nuditatem operiat; in ligno suspenditur, ut ligni prævaricationem tollat." Tunc Tiburtius fratri suo dixit: "miserere mei, et perduc me ad hominem Dei ut purificationem accipiam." Ductus igitur, et purificatus, angelos Dei sæpe videbat, et omnia quæ postulabat, protinus obtinebat. Valerianus igitur et Tiburtius elemosinis insistebant; et sanctorum corpora, quos Almachius praefectus occidebat, sepulturae tradebant. Quos Almachius ad se vocans, cur pro suis sceleribus damnatos sepelirent, inquisivit. Cui Tiburtius: "utinam illorum servi essemus, quos tu damnatos appellas! Qui contemserunt illud, quod videtur esse et non est, et invenerunt illud, quod non videtur esse et est." Cui praefectus: "quidnam est illud?" Et Tiburtius: "quod videtur esse et non est, est omne, quod in hoc mundo est, quod hominem ad non esse perducit; quod vero non videtur esse et est, est vita iustorum et pena malorum." Cui praefectus: "non puto, quod mente tua loquaris." Tunc jubet adstare Valerianum dicens ei: "quoniam non est sani capititis frater tuus; tu saltem poteris sapienti dare responsum; constat plurimum vos errare, qui gaudia respiciunt et omnia inimica gaudiis affectatis." Tunc Valerianus "se vidisse ait glaciali tempore otiosos jocantes, et operarios agricolas deridentes, sed aestivo tempore, dum advenissent gloriosi fructus laborum, gaudentibus illis, qui putabantur vani, cœperunt flere, qui videbantur urbani. Sic et nos nunc quidem sustinemus ignominiam et laborem, in futuro autem recipiemus gloriam et æternam mercedem. Vos autem nunc transitiorum habetis gaudium, in futuro autem invenietis æternum luctum." Cui praefectus: "ergo nos invictissimi principes æternum habebimus luctum, et vos personæ vilissimæ perpetuum possidebis gaudium?" Cui Valerianus: "homuniones estis, non principes, tempore nostro nati, citius morituri et Deo rationem plus omnibus reddituri." Dixit autem praefectus:

"quid verborum circuitu immoratur? offerte Diis libamina et illæsi abscedite." Sancti responderunt: "nos Deo vero quotidie sacrificium exhibemus." Quibus præfectus: "quod est nomen ejus?" Cui Valerianus: "nomen ejus invenire non potiris, etiamsi pennis volaveris." Præfectus dixit: "ergo Jupiter nomen Dei non est?" Cui Valerianus: "nomen homicidæ et stupratoris est." Ad quem Almachius: "ergo totus mundus errat! et tu cum fratre tuo verum Deum nosti?" Valerianus respondit: "nos soli non sumus, sed innumerabilis multitudo hanc sanctitatem recepit." Tradunt igitur sancti in custodiâ Maximi. Quibus ille ait: "o juventutis flos purpureus, o germanus fraternitatis affectus quomodo ad mortem quasi ad epulas festinatis?" Cui Valerianus ait, quod, si crediturum se promitteret, gloriani animarum eorum post mortem videret. Et Maximus: "fulminibus igneis consumar, si non illum solum Deum confitear, quem adoratis, si contingat, quod dicitis." Ipse igitur Maximus, et omnis ejus familia, et universi carnifices cederunt; et ab Urbano, qui illuc occulere venit, baptismâ suscepserunt. Igitur dum aurora nocti finem daret, Cæcilia exclamavit dicens: "eia milites Christi, abjecite opera tenebrarum, et induimini arma lucis." Quarto igitur milliaris ab urbe sancti ad statuam Jovis ducuntur et dum sacrificare nolent, pariter decollantur. Tunc Maximus cum jurejurando assurrit, se in hora passionis eorum angelos vidisse fuligentes et animas eorum quasi virgines de thalamo exuentis, quas in gremio suo in cœlum angeli detulerunt. Almachius vero audiens Maximum christianum effectum, eum plumbatis tamdiu cedi fecit, quounque spiritum excussit. Cujus corpus sancta Cecilia iuxta Valerianum et Tiburtium sepelivit. Tunc Almachius facultates amborum cepit inquirere, et Cæciliam tamquam Valeriani conjugem coram se fecit adstare, jussitque, ut ydolis immolaret, aut sententiam mortis incurreret. decora et nobilis ultro se morti traderet, dixit ad eos: “hoc, boni juvenes, non est juventutum perdere, sed mutuare, dare lutum et accipere aurum, dare vile habitaculum et accipere pretiosum, dare brevem angulum et accipere forum pellucidum. Si quis pro numero solidos daret, nonne velocius festinaretis? Deus autem, quod accepit simpliciter, reddet centuplum. Creditis his, quae dico?” Et illi: “credimus, Christum verum esse Deum, qui talem possidet famulam.” Vocato igitur Urbano episcopo, CCCC et amplius baptizati sunt. Tunc Almachius sanctam Cæciliam ad se vocans ait: “cujus conditionis es?” Et illa: “ingenua sum et nobilis.” Cui Almachius: “ego te de religione interrogo.” Cui Cæcilia: “interrogatio tua stultum sumit initium, qua duas responsiones una putat inquisitione concludi.” Cui Almachius: “unde tibi tanta presumptio respondendi?” At illa: “de conscientia bona, et fide non ficta?” Cui Almachius: “ignoras, cuius potestatis sim?” Et illa: “potestas vestra est quasi uter vento repletus, quem si acus pupigerit, omnis protinus rigor pallascit et quidquid in se rigidum habere cernitur, incurvatur.” Cui Almachius: “ab injuriis cœpisti, et in injuriis perseveras.” Cæcilia respondit: “injuria non dicitur nisi quod verbis fallentibus irrogatur; unde aut injuriam doce, si falsa locuta sum, aut te ipsum corripi calumniam inferentem, sed nos scientes sanctum Dei nomen omnino negare non possumus, melius est enim feliciter mori, quam infeliciter vivere.” Cui Almachius: “ad quid cum; tanta superbia loqueris?” Et illa: “non est superbia, sed constantia.” Cui Almachius: “infelix, ignoras, quia vivificandi et mortificandi mihi tradita est potestas?” Et illa: “contra veritatem publicam probo te nunc esse mentitum, vitam enim viventibus tollere potes, mortuis autem dare non potes semivivam cruentus carnifex dereliquit. Per triduum autem supervivens, omnia quæ habebat, pauperibus tradidit, et omnes quos ad fidem converterat, Urbano episcopo commendavit dicens: “triduanas mihi inducias postulavi, ut nos tuæ beatitudini commendarem, et hanc domum mean in ecclesiam consecrare.” Sanctus autem Urbanus corpus ejus inter episcopos sepelivit, et domum suam in ecclesiam, ut rogaverat, consecravit. Passa est autem circa annos domini CC. et XXIII tempore Alexandri imperatoris. Alibi autem legitur, quod passa sit tempore Marci Aurelii, qui imperavit circa annos domini CCXX.

MS. COTT. TIB. E VII. [fol. 271 a—274 b.]

Jhesus Crist, ful of pete,
 To mankind es of mercy fre
 And schewes his pouste & his might
 Of(t)-sithes here unto sum men sight,
 5 So þat we may his mightes ken,
 Als wele in wemen als in men,
 And all-þermost in maydens ging
 þat will be boun to his bidding.
 þat may men by ensaumple se
 10 Of saint Cecill, þe mayden fre, ^(¹MS. Harl. mede.)
 þat born was of ful gentill blode
 And euer was haly & milde of mode,¹
 And in hir hert ful wele scho knew
 All þe lare of oure lord Jhesu.
 15 Unto him was scho prayand euer,
 Night and day, and sesid neuver.
 Of pape Urban scho was baptist
 And trewly trowed in Jhesu Crist.
 With hir frendes scho was ful dere
 20 And with all oþer folk in-fere,
 Bycaus scho was both fayre & gude
 And untill all folk milde of mode.
 Hir frendes maried hir till a man
 þat named was Valirian;
 25 Long he was and faire of skin
 And komen of ful nobill kyn,
 Bot hathin he was & unbaptist
 And knew no-thing þe law of Crist.
 Cisill durst none oþer do
 30 Bot alf hir frendes tald hir to.

þe day was sett: þai suld be wed.
 In clathes of (g)old¹ þai both war cled;
 Bot Cicill had þar-of no pride— (¹MS. cold.)
 Ful hard clothing was next hir hid;
 35 Outward scho was richely arrayd,
 So alls hir frendes had puruayd.
 þus on þis wise when þai war wed,
 Ful fele folk þaire frendes fed.
 When þe bridal was broght till ende,
 40 þat ilka man þaire wai gan wende,
 Cicill es þan to chamber went,
 Calland to Crist with gude entent.
 þai herd grete noyis, þat war hir nere,
 Of angels sang and organs clere;
 45 Scho made hir melody omang
 And al þus said scho in hir sang:
 Fiat cor meum et corpus meum im-
 maculatum, ut non confundar:
 þat es on þis maner to mene:
 “Lord, þou mak my hert all clene
 And saue my body unfiled within,
 50 So þat I be noȝht schent with syn!”
 When scho had tald all hir talent
 þus unto god with gude entent,
 With hir husband scho went to bed,
 Als þe law wald, for scho was wed.
 55 Bot in hert ful wele scho thought
 To kepe hir clene, if þat scho moght.
 So by hir lord when scho was layd,
 Vntill him al þus scho sayd,
 Scho sayd: “sir, if it war gowre will,

þan thurgh grace of þe haly gaste
 120 Up he rase and went in haste
 Vntill þe gude bisshop Urban,
 And halely talde he to him þan,
 With him and his wife how it ferd.
 And when Urban his tale had herd,
 125 He heuyd¹ his handes to heuyn on hight (H. heuyn.)
 And said þus to god moste of might:
 "Lord Jhesu Criste, loued mot þou be þat sawes þe sede of chastite
 And gifes unto men cha[s]te cown-saylle
 130 þat to þaire sawl m[a]y mekill availe!
 þou tak þe fruit now als þine awin
 Of þe sede þou has in Cicill sawn —
 For it waxes and multiplise,
 Als men may se on þis wise.
 135 A spows scho toke, with hir to dwell, þat als a lion was fers and fell
 And rebell both by night and day
 Ogains þe lessons of jি lay:
 Now meke to þe has scho made him
 140 Als a lamb, in sawl and lym — (H. moke.)
 For war he noght unto þe meke,²
 Saluyng of me wald he none seke.
 And, sen he has to saluyng soght,
 Lord, saue him and forsake him
 noght!"
 145 þis when he had his praier end,

Byfor þam sone þai saw descend
 An ald man and stode þam bitwene,
 All cled in lynnен cloth ful clene,
 And in his hand he had a boke
 150 All of gold letters, on to luke,
 Valirian, [when] he saw þis sight,
 Might noght luke ogains þat light:
 For drede he fell doun in þat stede
 And still he lay als he war ded.
 155 þe ald man þan his right hand toke
 And lifted him up, and bad him loke
 What thing was wretyn in þat bill þat he had þare broght him till.
 Valirian þan þe letter tase
 160 And þus wretyn in þat place:
 Unus dominus. vna fides. vnum baptisma.
 þat es on þis maner to mene:
 "A god es euer all-bydene,
 And als a faith all folk shall haue,
 And a baptym, all sawles to sauie."
 165 When Valirian had red þis bill, þan said þe ald man þus him till:
 "Trowes þou þis als þou may rede,
 Or dwelles git þi hert in drede?" (H. answer.)
 þan answerd¹ þus Valirian: [man —
 170 "What thingh might be till erthli
 To rede or els with mowth to neuyn —
 More forto trow vnder þe heuyn?
 In my wit I trow ful wele
 þat here es writen euer-ilkadele."

Cled in quhytare thinge þane snaw,
 & in his hand (he) bare a buke,
 110 pe quhilk rycht fare ves one to luke,
 With goldine lett[er]is wrytine brad.
 Quhame quhene Valeryane sene had,
 He fel for rednes in þa¹ sted f. 355 b.
 As a mane þat had bene ded. (MS. past.)
 115 Bot rath he gung mane raisit hym
 & bad hym rede pe buk with-in.
 & he red: & fand (wrytin) pare:
 "par is a god, forout mare,
 & bot a treucht, & a baptyme,
 120 þat sal al leilemene saf fra pyne,
 A fadir, a makare of al,
 A-beoute althinge & euir be sal."
 & as he had red þis wryt,
 pe bischope sais: "trewis þu It
 125 Or art þu get of dout
 Of It þu come here about?"
 Valaryane pane loud cane cry
 & sad: "na thinge sa weile trev I
 Vndir hewine as I trew It
 130 þat I saw wrytine in gone wryt."

- 175 Whils Valirian þir wordes gan say,
þe ald man was sone o way —
And how he went, no-thing þai wist.
þan þe bisschop Valirian baptist
& bad him trow with conciens clene
180 Als he þare had herd and sene. (¹H. grantes.)
Valirian granted¹ with gude will fol. 192. 215
All his bidinges to fulfill.
þan hame ogain he bad him ga
Vnto Cicill, þat he come fra, (²H. confert.)
185 And confort² him with all his mayne.
þus to his wife he went ogayne.
To Cisill chamber sone he went,
To thank him so had sent
To get saluing of all his sin
190 And gude lifing so to bygyn.
Kneleand in praiers he hir fand,
And sone bifor hir saw he stand
Godes angel, schineand so bright,
þat all þe hows lemid of light;
195 Twa corons in his hand he broght —
So worthi neuer in werld war
wroght:
Vnto Ciscill he toke þe tane,
þat oþer unto Valariane.
Opon þaire heuides he set þam rathe,
200 And all þus said he to þam bathe:
“Kepes þir corons gow bitwene
With chast bodys and hertis clene!
Fro paradis I haue þam broght —
For in þat ilk place war þai wroght;
205 To gow mi lord has þam puruayd.”
þan to Valirian þus he said:
“For þat þow wald assentand be
Vnto counsail of chastite,
- Mi lord Jhesu, of mercy fre,
210 Sendes þe þus bodword by me:
What thing of him so þou will craue,
Ask: and sone þou sal it haue,
What thing so euer þou will of mele —
So þat it be to þi sawl hele.”
Valirian þan made his asking.
And said: “I gern none oþer thing
Ne no-thing es to me so swete
Als es my broþer bale to bete.
Wald my lord, dere Jhesus,
220 Help my broþer Tyburcius
In his law forto be fre
And cristen man, als he mad me,
þat we might both *parf*itely lif
And both oure gastes unto him gif!”
225 When þe angell þir wordes herd,
To Valirian þus he answerd
And said: “þi will it sall be done,
For-whi þou askes in þi bone
þat mi lord likes forto haue 230 Better, þan þe likes it to craue, þarfore, als my lord has won þe
Thurgh Ciscill, his seruand fre,
So thurgh þe now sall he win
þi broþer out of bandes of sin.
235 And þou and he sall samyn cum
Vntill þe mede of marterdome.”
When þis was said, he went up euyn
Wit grete brightnes to blis of heuyn.
And Valirian þan with his¹ wife (¹H. wisth.)
240 Ful haliiy ay led þaire life.
And efter þis, right als god walde,
Tyburcyus, þat I of talde,
þat broþer was to Valiriane,
- þe gung mane þane wanyst away.
& Valeryane but delay
Of sancte Urbane tuk baptyme,
& hame to Cecile went syne
135 & fand hire one hire bed stanand,
& ane angel, þat in his hand
Had twa cronys mad wynly
Of spanyfl rose & quhyt lely;
Of hame to Cecile he gef ane,
140 & ane to Valaryane,
& sad: “þir cronys I brocht now
Of paradyse, to gif til gow;
þe quhilikz gif ge kepe clenly
With hart wnuem:myt & body,
145 þai sal neuir falow, na tyne

&, Valeryane, sene þat þu
150 Has trewit heilesume conseil now,
Ask at me quhat-euzr þu wil,
& I þi garnyng sal fulfil.”
Sad he: “gif sa þat it sal be,
þar is na thinge sa suet, think me,
155 As my nane brothire; þare-for I Ask þat he (als) knaw in hy
þe suthfastnes þat nov I kene.”
þe angel sad til hymne þane:
“For þine askyne is rychtwyse f. 356 a.
160 & to god plesand mony-vise,
þu & þi bruthire, bath
Cronit to god, sal cumre rath,
Of martirdome pe fare crone (¹MS. as.)
To bruk in hewineat¹ goure wardone.”

On a day come him-allane
 245 To luke how þat his broþer ferd,
 For halines he of him herd.
 And als he entred in þaire hows,
 He kissed him, and als his spows,
 He kissed Ciscell and said þus:
 250 "Gude sauore es here omanges vs—
 Of rose and lilyes me think it like—
 Sen I was born,¹ felde I neuer slike,
 So swete sauore feld neuer man." (H. lorn.)

165 Tyburcyane syne enterit þare
 Quhar Cecile & his bruthire ware,
 & feld þe odoure in til hy
 Of pe rose & þe lely,
 & sad: "bruthir, hou hapnis here

 & Cecile sad, þat ves war:

260 "As in a mane thre things ar,

- Tyburcius said to him ogayne:
 265 " And I might godes angell se,—
 A verrayer takin might noght be:
 þan will I turn vntill his lay."
 When Ciscell herd him sogat say,
 Down scho fell and kissed his fete,
 270 And þan scho said þir wordes swete:
 " Now will I grante, whore so I
 wende,
 þou es my kosyn & my dere frende.
 For als þe luf of Jhesu fre
 Has made hi broþer assent to me,
 275 So sall he turn þe forto take
 His might & maumetry forsake.
 And, sir, sen þou es redy now
 To tak his trowth & trewly trow,
 With þi broþer saltou ga
 280 Vntill þe bisschop þat we come fra,
 And be bowsom what he will bid."
 Als scho has demid right so þai did.
 Of þe bisschop was he baptist þan
 And bycome a ful haly man.
 285 So þat god gaf him slike grace,
 þat he¹ might see in ilk a place
 Angels of god ay at his will (1H. be.)

NOTES.

1. Chaucer's well-known Life of St. Cecilia (The Second Nonnes Tale), begins with a Prologue of twelve stanzas, the first four stanzas of which are taken from Jehan de Vignay's Introduction to his translation of Jacobus a Voragine's Legenda Aurea. Caxton's English version of De Vignay has this prologue in free translation. Bokenam enlarges this to 75 lines.

11. sauter: The book of Psalms, frequently found in distinct volumes prepared for the devotional use of both Jewish and Christian churches.

10. stillliche song: Chaucer's lines at this point are:

'And whyl the organs maden melodye,
To god alone in herte thus sang she; 135.

De Vignay says: 'et quant les instrumens chantoient elle chantoit a nostre seigneur en son cuer.'

Caxton: 'and she heeryng the organes making melodye she sang in hir herte onelye tu god.'

Ælfric: 'þa betwux þam sanguim, and þam singulum dreamum sang cecilia symle þus gode and sang smyle swa;' 27.

Bokenam: 'Whyl þe orgons sunge in her melodyous guyse,
Cycyle to god song in thys wyse:' 98.

The M. H. G. version, (Fürstenburg Bibl. f. 47-96), ed. Schönbach:

'ir vasten vnde ir weinon
vor gotte so grose kraft hatte
daz si die engel steteklich zv ir latte.
ir gebet in gottes oren drang
also ein suzes orgenen sanch.'

12. Psalm CXIX. 80.

37. bre mile henne: Here were the catacombs of Calixtus and Prætextatus on the Appian way, used by the early Christians as meeting places for worship. These became also their hiding places in times of oppression. Chaucer has mistranslated this,

'Goth forth to Via Apia.
That fro this toun ne stant but myles three.' 173.

47. as me cristene men þreū: This was outside the city wall.

48. ware me eny ikneu: 'Wherever they (the emperor's servants,) knew of any (Christian men);' ikneu: pt. sg. from OE. gescnēow.

52. 'Is this the cruel tyrant, Valerian, who calls me!'

55. old mon: Bokenam says; 'A man . . . fer runnyn in age,' 231. Barbour: 'a gungman,' 107.

61-2. Eph. IV. 5-6.

85. Tib. 237-8, he went up euyn: cf. the modern expression 'with equal wing'; nicely poised, well balanced.

89. þis tyme of þe gere: The scribe is perhaps thinking of Cecilia's birthday, Nov. 22, for Barbour goes farther to say:

'of Nouember in þe moneth
quhen flouris haldine ar vndirneth.' 172.

120-21. fleme & ihud: This is the common impression about Urban. Ælfric: 'Sé is geutlagod and lið him on digelan for his cristen-dome.' 132.

De Vignay: 'Dis tu de celuy vrbain qui tant de fois a este condamne, & demeure encore en vng lieu secret.' The Chaucerian ring is in the following: 2nd N. T. 309-13.

. . . . 'Urban
That is so ofte dampned to be deed,
And woneth in halkes alwey to and fro,
And dar nat ones putte forth his heed;
Men sholde him brennen in a fyr so reed
If he were found, or that men might him spye;

137. þe Justice: The Southern versions generally, do not mention the name of this justice or governor. Alfred and Ælfric mention him as Almatus or Almachius, Bokenam and Chaucer as Almache. DeVignay and Caxton give him the title of prevost, while Tib. refers to him as 'þe cursed king' 347, 367, 377.

145-8. 'They (the Christians) rejected the thing that was naught although it had a fair appearance, and accepted that which was cast out, and had no fair appearance. For, though the world's happiness has a fair exterior, in truth it is (worth) naught, and though the joy of Heaven seems little, it is, in truth, much.' cf. MS. Gg. II. 6. 325-332.

149. þe Justices seden: Plural; otherwise the text refers to one Justice.

151-154. 'In winter, said Valerian, loafers sit and drink and laugh to scorn the tillers of the soil who busy themselves about future store; in harvest, when they (the toilers) may gather fair grain, they (the loafers) are obliged to go up and down in discomfort, for they have not even a furrow (of grain).' cf. MS. Gg. II. 6. 347-356.

163. gueþe þis gode men: þis appears here and in l. 171 as the plural demonstrative.

165. Maxime, þe gailer: Chaucer calls him 'corniculere,' which term he derived from the 'cubiculario' of Surius, Vita S. Cæcilieæ, XIX. (See Kölbing, Eng. Stud. I. 215). Bokenam also says 'cornyculer' 614. The early legends call him simply 'jailer' except Tib. which says 'þis ilk prince Maximus', 329.

169-70. Tib. 335-6, armurs of light: Rom. XIII. 12.

171. maunet: Chaucer, Bokenam, and Barbour, Caxton, and De Vignay, specify that it is Jupiter who is the object of Almachius' idolatry.

184. þi wite heu: 'thy white countenance,' referring probably to her beauty and gentle breeding, not to palor occasioned by fear.

194. bleddore: This is a favorite metaphor at this point from Ælfric to Chaucer. The former says:

'Ælces mannes miht þe on modignysse færð.
is soðlice þam gelíc swilce man siwige
ane bytte, and blawe hí fulle windes and wyrce siððan an þyrl þonne heo to-bunden bið on hire greatnysse þonne togæð seo miht.' 319.

Chaucer, 2nd N. T: ll. 337-341.

'Your might' quod she, 'ful litel is to drede;
For every mortal mannes power nis
But lyk a bladdre, ful of wind, y-wis.
For with a needles poynt, whan it is blowe
May al the boost of it be leyd ful lowe.'

The M. H. D. version gives it as follows: ll. 1589-96.

'da ist din gewalt anders riht getan
Wan als ein blater, du vast ist geblan:
vnde als shiere ir kraft zerbrichet,
so mat mit einer kleiner nadelon dar in stichet,
als shiere ist och din gewalt gergan gen
den dv von dinen herren hest enphangen.'

223. a þis song þing: 'that this young thing!' a s written þut in Laud and Cmb. R. 3. 25. See Mætzner, Eng. Sprachpr., at, (rel.)

239-245. These lines are omitted in MS. Cmb. R. 3. 25.

242. The MS. form muste and the impersonal me make this the most ambiguous line of the text. The meaning is most apparent in the Bodleian version: 'for whoso knew (by observation or experience,) of no suffering, there might see it.'

247. mony good mon. Laud 108, avoids this expression by the use of 'many a.'

252. Vpe is poer: 'over her (body), his power should be done,' i. e. masses should be said.

257. Ælfric does not mention the year of St. Cecilia's death. Caxton says: 'She suffred hir passyon about the yere of our lord two hundred and xxiii in the tyme of Alexaunder the emperour and it is redde in another place that she suffred in the tyme of marcii aurelii which reyngned abouthe the yere of our lord two hondred and twenty.' Jehan De Vignay says: 'Et elle souffrit mort enuiron l'an de nostre seigneur deux cens XXIII au temps de Alexandre empereur. Et on lit ailleurs qu'elle souffrit au temps de marc aurelien qui fut empereur enuiron l'an de nostre seigneur Sept cens et vingt.' Legenda Aurea mentions the date c. A. D. CCXX. Chaucer omits the allusion altogether, while Osbern Bokenam writes,

'I say þat martyred was Cycyle þe holy uirgyne
The yere of grace, treuly to ternyne,
Two hundyrd twenty & eek three—
Legenda aurea thus techyth me—
The tende kalende euene of Decembre,
Wych tym regnyth, as he doth remembre,
Alexaundyr of Rome þe emperour.—'

Skeat, Notes to Cant. Tales, p. 414, suggests that because Alexander's full name was Marcus Aurelius Alexander Severus, the reason for confusion of this name with that of the earlier Marcus Aurelius becomes apparent.

VIII.

GLOSSARIES.

[The character b follows t; u and v are only discriminated as vowel and consonant. Semicolons are used to separate different groups of meanings, and among the word-citations to separate different case and tense groups. When the designations of mood and tense are omitted, 'ind. pres.' is to be understood; when of mood only, supply 'ind.' if no other has immediately preceded, otherwise the latter. The numbers refer to the line in the version under consideration. The asterisk before a verb indicates a suppositional infinitive which is constructed according to analogous forms found in the version. Letters which are variable in their occurrence in a word are included in parentheses, letters inserted or changed by emendation are italicized and enclosed by brackets. Parallel or related forms in early and modern languages are set off by brackets.]
