POLISH HELP IS REFUSED Heavy Fighting in Posnowitz Woods Results in Poles Falling Back.

By the Associated Press. OPPELN, Upper Silesia, June 1.—A grave situation is reported at Beuthen, where the Germans attacked the French garrison.

Sharp fighting followed, in which the Germans were repulsed. A number of them were killed.

The Poles, who also were fighting the Germans, made an effort to help the French. The French, however, refused this aid.

By the Associated Press. OPPELN, Silesia, June 1.—In heavy fighting this afternoon in the Posnowitz woods, near Gross Strehlitz, the Poles were compelled to fall back before the onslaught of the Germans.

The Germans report their casualties as twelve dead and thirty-one wounded, who were taken to Krappitz. The Poles left 180 dead on the field. Their wounded were removed.

The Polish forces were entrenched deep in the forest, and the Germans were unable to enter. Eventually the Germans entered the forest, and desperate fighting ensued at close range with machine guns, rifles and revolvers. To-night the Poles had fallen back still further.

By the Associated Press. PUBLIC HEARINGS SOON Police Administration First to Occupy Attention of Albany Investigators.

At the outset of its investigation into the city administration's conduct of municipal affairs members of the Joint Legislative Committee have been anxious to question Thomas J. (The) McManus in connection with certain transactions with one of the big departments.

It was learned yesterday that the committee's process servers have been unable to locate Mr. McManus, prominent for more than twenty-five years in Tammany affairs. The agents of the State have been searching the city for the political leader and yesterday reported he could not be found.

Senator Schuyler Meyer, chairman of the committee, and his associates have communicated with Alderman McManus, brother of "The," and said he agreed to escort McManus to the committee's offices at 88 Park Row. But it was stated that after waiting two days no word had been received, and another effort had been unsuccessful.

REPARATIONS COMMISSION MAY DEMAND U. S. PAY FOR GERMAN SHIPS SEIZED HERE

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 1.—The delicate question as to whether the United States ought to pay the Reparations Commission for the 800,000 tons of German shipping seized at the outbreak of the war is likely to come up in the near future in connection with the settlement with Germany for all payments in kind she has made to the Allies.

The Maritime Subcommittee of the Reparations Commission has submitted its final report, which shows that the subcommittee and the Germans now agree on the figures of tonnage delivered as 2,100,000 tons. The Germans' original claim was 4,000,000 tons.

The Reparations Commission has never recognized the Lloyd George-Wilson agreement regarding German shipping seized in American ports. It may be necessary for the Allies to reach an agreement before the Reparations Commission can fix the amounts that should be paid in for the shipping turned over.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—The United States regards the question of German shipping seized in this country at the outbreak of hostilities as a closed incident. The United States derived no direct benefits from the peace settlement by way of money or territory. It did insist upon a division of German shipping. When the question was before the Allied Council proposals were made that all of the German shipping seized, including that taken in the United States, be pooled and distributed on the basis of percentage of losses from U-boats and otherwise. This proposal was not acceptable to the United States and was not pressed.

GERMANY TODISARM AT ALIES' DEMAND, BUT BAVARIA BALKS

Chancellor Outlines His Plan of 'Restoration and Reconciliation.'

WILL FULFIL PLEDGE British and French Warn Munich of Penalties Unless Guards Disband.

HIGHER TAXES PREDICTED Dr. Wirth Says Upper Silesia as Result of Plebiscite Remains German.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, June 1.—Chancellor Wirth told the Reichstag today in outlining the Government's programme that "restoration and reconciliation would be the keynote of the new Government's policy." He added that the Cabinet was determined disarmament should be carried out loyally and that disarmament would not be the occasion of the imposition of further penalties by the Allies.

A despatch to the Tagliche Rundschau from Munich says the British Consul and the French Minister have warned the Bavarian Government that its refusal to disarm the Einwohnerwehr will bring about the application of penalties against Bavaria.

Embarrassing to Chancellor. This refusal, which came on the eve of Chancellor Wirth's presentation of his programme before the Reichstag, caused great dissatisfaction in Government circles. It is viewed as embarrassing to the new Chancellor. There is criticism of the Bavarian Ministry for having delayed its official reply to demands of the German Government until the time limit fixed for filing the list of civilian guard organizations to be disbanded had expired.

Chancellor Wirth in telling the Reichstag that it was the Government's intention to fulfill Germany's obligations under the allied ultimatum, declared he recognized Bavaria's difficulties with regard to the Einwohnerwehr and was thankful of her promise to secure their voluntary surrender. He said he expected Bavaria to observe the time limit of the ultimatum.

Referring to Germany's obligation to pay 3,225,000,000 marks in 1921, the Chancellor said this was an enormous sum, but that theoretical disputes concerning it would be futile, but he would try to have the percentage of the levy on exports altered.

Heavier Taxes Foreshadowed. The Chancellor foreshadowed a higher corporation tax, a bureau tax, an inheritance tax, a land and property tax and a tax on certain securities. In addition to an increase in indirect taxes. He emphasized the necessity of increased production, general economy and a restriction on imports. He said it was especially important to develop industry, agriculture and the mining of the marines.

Dr. Wirth contended that Upper Silesia was German on economic and historical grounds and said that as a result of the plebiscite it must remain German.

The Reichstag announced today its intention, in connection with the obligations undertaken through the acceptance of Germany's ultimatum, to buy gold coins and gold bars.

It was added that the bank would have to pay 260 marks for each 20 mark gold piece and 24,000 marks for a kilogram (2.20 pounds) of fine gold.

By the Associated Press. WILLIAM J. BRYAN is not going to run for the Senate in Florida, he told the New York Herald today. "Furthermore, he entertained at luncheon the entire Congressional delegation from Florida, including Senator Trammell, against whom it had been said he was to make the race.

It was learned that he made his intentions quite clear at the luncheon, which was given on the Senate marble room portico restaurant. Mr. Bryan, by virtue of having once been a member of the House, was not barred from the floor.

"I have not consulted any person outside of my family in either Florida or elsewhere about my change of residence," said Mr. Bryan, when asked about his political prospects. "I have no plans, however, looking to any political office, except to take an interest in every issue that comes up in Florida, State or national."

NAVY PLANS CRUISE OF FLEET TO EUROPE Ships May Sail in August to France and Britain.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A cruise to European waters by the Atlantic fleet this summer is under consideration at the Navy Department, but has not yet been formally approved by Secretary Denby.

The tentative plan calls for the fleet's departure from New York August 1. Twelve days will be spent in tactical manoeuvres and exercises and the first port would be visited August 12. Half of the fleet would visit one port, probably in France, and the other a port in Great Britain.

Returning, the plan calls for arriving at European waters August 22 and leaving New York September 3. Only battleships, destroyers and fuel and supply vessels are expected to make the trip.

Sixteen Eggs in Storage Await Each Consumer

He advises eating eggs to beat the high cost of living and says there are 1,740,480,000 in storage, or sixteen for everybody in the country.

LONDON, June 1.—The London Times announces the engagement of the Duke of Marlborough to Gladys Deacon, daughter of the late Edward Parker Deacon of Boston, Mass.

Miss Deacon, who has been well known in international society for a number of years, is said to have made her debut in London society under the chaperonage of the Duchess of Marlborough. She is sister of Princess G. Radzwill.

In November of last year Miss Deacon brought a suit in London charging libel against the Daily Graphic and was awarded a verdict of 1500 sterling and costs. The article complained of by Miss Deacon asserted that she was "banished from Germany, where her name was frequently coupled with that of the Crown Prince."

Despatches from London announced that the owners of the Daily Graphic apologized to Miss Deacon and made a formal statement that there was absolutely no foundation for the article. Miss Deacon's counsel declared that the only time she ever met the German Crown Prince was while she was staying at Blenheim Palace with the Duchess of Marlborough.

The Duke of Marlborough was divorced by the Duchess in November last. The Duchess is a daughter of the late William K. Vanderbilt and the now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of New York.

Engagement Once Denied. Ever since the Duchess of Marlborough was granted her divorce there have been persistent rumors that the Duke would rewed, and it was stated in some English newspapers that Gladys Deacon would be his choice. Another rumor had it that he would wed Miss Phyllis Metta Boyd, daughter of Capt. William A. Boyd and Lady Lillian Boyd, a daughter of the late Earl of Munster. When the rumor in regard to Miss Deacon's marriage was positively denied by her sister, Mrs. Henry G. Gray, who was Miss Edith Deacon.

Miss Gladys Deacon is one of the three beautiful daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parker Deacon of Boston, who had lived much of their life in Europe. Mrs. Deacon was Miss Florence Deacon, daughter of the late Admiral Charles H. Baldwin by his first marriage. It was the custom of Mr. and Mrs. Deacon to pass some time with the Admiral and his second wife in Newport, where they had a villa known as Snake Harbor.

Mrs. Deacon after her separation from her husband lived in Europe, sometimes in Paris, and sometimes in Rome. Her two daughters, Gladys and Dorothy, were always with her. Dorothy Deacon became the wife of Prince G. Radzwill of the prominent Russian family of the name of Radzwill.

Gladys Deacon was much in Newport when a girl, and one of her companions was Consuelo Vanderbilt, and that was the beginning of the romance between them. As long ago as 1902 it was freely rumored in England and on the Continent that the German Crown Prince was ready to give up his hopes of succeeding to the throne of Germany. At another time her name was coupled with that of James H. Hyde, and still later it was reported that she was engaged to Lord Brooke. The son of Earl De Grey, who in 1908 reported that Miss Deacon was engaged to Antoine de Charvett, son of Gen. Baron de Charvett. Still later, in 1911, the approaching marriage of Gladys Deacon, Lieut. Oliphant of the Royal Navy was announced, but in August of that year it was reported that the marriage had been postponed owing to the illness of Miss Deacon.

The Duke of Marlborough came to America in the summer of 1895 when he visited Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Mrs. Consuelo Vanderbilt, who was married to the Duke of Marlborough. It was in September of that year when the engagement was announced and on November 6, 1895, the Duke and Miss Deacon were married in St. Thomas Church, this city. Some months before that time Mrs. Vanderbilt had secured a divorce from Mr. Vanderbilt, who did not witness the wedding of his daughter. He secured her the chance of the church and immediately departed.

Two sons were born to the Duke and the Duchess, the Marquess of Blandford, who married the Hon. Mary Cadogan, and Lord Ivor Spencer-Churchill, who is unmarried. The differences of the Duke and Duchess existed years before the divorce was granted.

Subject of Frequent Rumors. Probably no American girl living abroad has been so many times rumored as engaged to this or that member of a royal house. As long ago as 1902 it was freely rumored in England and on the Continent that the German Crown Prince was ready to give up his hopes

Washington, July 4.—The appointment by President Harding of William Howard Taft as chief justice of the supreme court has added another of the names of ex-presidents of the United States to the list of those who have refused to retire to private life after they left the White House.

Former presidents of the United States, after laying down the heavy burden of the office, ordinarily have retired to the quiet of private life. There are notable exceptions to this rule, however.

One former president was later commander-in-chief of the army of the nation, another was a leader in the lower house of congress for a considerable period, a third was elected to the United States senate, another was prominent in the congress of the Confederate states, and several others remained active in politics after relinquishing their posts.

Washington Chief of Armies. George Washington retired in 1797, after serving two terms. In 1799, however, the French under Napoleon had become so overbearing and insulting to the young American republic that a state of war existed. The great Washington was induced to become the commander-in-chief of the provisional army which was formed to fight the French, and he re-entered public life for a season. He died the next year, on December 14, 1799.

When John Adams retired from the presidency he withdrew from public life for all time. Adams was a great scholar and his last years were spent with his books. He lived for a quarter of a century after leaving the White House and saw the day when his son was inaugurated president. Strangely, he died on the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and the day on which his great political foe, Thomas Jefferson, passed away.

It was on March 4, 1809, that Jefferson left the White House after forty years of public service. Jefferson in his declining years founded the University of Virginia, and he regarded this work as the most important on his tomb he had written the following words: "Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence, of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom, and father of the University of Virginia."

James Madison retired to his Montpelier estate in Virginia in 1817, and his home became a rendezvous for literary folk. He emerged into public life for a season when in 1829 he became a leading member of the Virginia constitutional convention. He died in 1836, at 85, the oldest age attained by a president of the United States.

Monroe Held Two Offices. After his retirement in 1825 James Monroe held two public posts, one as president of the University of Virginia and the other as delegate to the Virginia constitutional convention of 1829. He was the third president to die on July 4, the year of his death being 1831.

It remained for John Quincy Adams to demonstrate that a man can actually come into more fame as a member of congress than as president. Adams was defeated for re-election by Andrew Jackson and he retired in 1829. In the following year he was elected to the national house of representatives from his Massachusetts district.

In congress he became a leader, especially of the anti-slavery movement. He died in the public service, dropping dead in the house in 1848.

Andrew Jackson on his retirement in 1837, withdrew to the Hermitage at Nashville, Tenn. He continued to take an active interest in his party, but held no public office and died in 1845 at the age of 78.

Martin Van Buren was in politics from his earliest years, and he remained in the public eye long after his retirement from the White House in 1840. In 1844 he again sought the Democratic nomination. He had a majority of the votes of the state, but seeing the impossibility of marshaling the necessary two-thirds, he withdrew from the contest. In 1848 he was the presidential nominee of the Free Soilers, but he failed to get a single electoral vote. He died in 1862 at the age of 80.

Death removed William Henry Harrison soon after his inauguration, and he was succeeded by John Tyler, who failed to obtain nomination from his party and left the presidency in 1845. Tyler was against disunion in 1860 and he presided over the "peace conference" in Washington in February, 1861. He was elected to the Virginia secession convention and he there advocated secession as the only logical course for the south to take. He served in the provisional Confederate congress and was elected to the permanent congress, but he died in 1862 before it convened. He was the only former president to support the Confederacy.

James K. Polk died in the June following his relinquishment of the presidency in 1849, and Zachary Taylor, his successor, died in office.

Fillmore Went To Europe. Millard Fillmore failed to win re-nomination at the hands of the Whigs, and in 1853 he left the White House to travel in Europe. While absent, in 1856, he was nominated for the presidency by a combination of Whigs and Know Nothings, but Maryland was the only state he carried. He died in 1874.

Franklin Pierce laid down the presidential duties in 1877 and after three years of travel in Europe he retired to his New Hampshire home and died in 1889.

James Buchanan took no part in public affairs after he turned his office over to Lincoln in 1867. He was the only bachelor president, and he lived at his Pennsylvania home until his death in 1868.

Abraham Lincoln passed away in his prime as the result of an assassin's bullet while he was president.

Andrew Johnson left the national capital in 1869. He went back to Tennessee in 1875, was elected United States senator, following several de-

LOW TIDE IN GERMANY AND HUGE FIRE IN MANILLA ARE SHOWN IN PHOTOS

Volunteer fire department of Manilla is shown above fighting a vain fight with the flames. Below is seen the old tower of Caub, Germany, which in ordinary times is almost half covered with the Rhine. Two of the most unusual pictures just received in this country are these which show the great conflagration at Manilla and the low tide of the Rhine in Germany. The fire wiped out entire blocks of flimsy dwellings to the number of 6,000 and nearly destroyed the city itself before it was extinguished. Not for 160 years have the waters of the Rhine been as low as it is present. Pedestrians may now walk on the river bed as is shown in the accompanying photo. The section shown near the old tower of Caub is usually covered with water.

COKE DOWN TO SIX CENTS

Reduction in Price of Soft Drinks General at Fountains. The echoes of the world war gradually diminish down the corridors of the passing time. One after another the emblems of death-struggle are passing, and wounds are healing. Cokes are now six cents, in most of the dispensaries of the city. Only a Lincoln penny more than before the U. S. A. learned to sing "Madelon." The reduction to six cents—drops of from one to four cents, has become practically general in all drug stores. Of course, the fountainkeepers have a comeback. Two cokes sell for eleven cents and four cokes for fifteen cents per plate. It costs twenty-two cents for a coke with ice cream in it. The dispensers are not coming back to the cokes without a struggle—but they are coming.

FIGHT SECRET FOE

Senator Knox Warns Nation Against Bolshevism. Declares Hidden Forces Work to Overthrow Republic. HAS NO PLACE IN U. S. Radical Remedies for Oppression Not Needed Here. Republican Leader Speaker at Independence Hall.

Philadelphia, July 4.—A warning that the American people must not be "deceived or lulled into that false security which brings destruction"—but must be on the "alert against the insidious work of A-merican institutions within their gates, was uttered here today by Senator Knox, Republican of Pennsylvania, at the Fourth of July exercises held at Independence Hall.

"Bolshevism may be the heaven of the theorist crushed under the weight of a cruel realism," Knox said, "but it has no relation to the real world, and its defects of free government.

"Yet, there are among us those who deny the very basis of our social order, the very foundation of our whole system. They challenge the equality of man, they repudiate the great theorem of our system, 'that all men are created equal'; that they hit certain inalienable rights which are 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' They speak of a stark, ungodly, and largely unappreciated of its own and too untutored to tolerate most of its evils. Were these new theories tried, we should be a different people. We must hope that adjustment thereof to our environment might make them tolerable. Their strange doctrine had come early from races unskilled in self government, uneducated in the basic discord between liberty and license. Theirs are radical remedies, sometimes self-annihilating to those using them.

"Our fathers fought physical foes and subdued them. We must do battle with the foes of the mind and the heart. We must combat the ungodly mind and conquer. The enemy is alert, active, cruel, relentless. Our selfish, our liberties are at stake. Beware, I believe we can and are assimilating those who have sought refuge here from oppression.

"America is a continuing and an increasingly emphatic protest against the pessimism of the unthinking, the ungrateful, the envious and the unjust."
