There are more horses on the farms than 10 years ago, according to the census returns. The disappearance of the equine was, like Mark Twain's reported death, greatly exaggerated.

MUSICAL COURAGE

Militant mankind early discovered the courage-inspiring power of the drum. The thrill of martial music is known to all. But Harvard is about to initiate the use of sweet sounds to lighten its undergraduates for the ordeal of examination. Ten-minute inspirational doses each morning are to be administered to those who are nervous over the approaching examinations.

The efforts will be noted with care, and a wide interest. If the experiment is a success the sufferer headed for the dental chair will fortify himself by a musical tonic. The bashful swain will spur his spirit to the popping pitch by a prelude of harmony and if successful in his plea, will ask the girl of his heart to put on a thrilling record before he goes in to ask the parental blessing.

By the way, Harvard's idea is a program of light classical selections. Would jazz make them too reckless?

CHURCHES ASKED TO HELP CUT OUT POLITICS

Elimination of Sharp Practice in Schools of the State Is Sought; Retards Good Work

Stillwater, Okla., June 18.—Recommending that the churches and schools of Oklahoma bring all their pressure to bear upon the next legislature to take steps to remove the educational work from political control, rural pastors from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas closed their short course in community work here Friday.

The ministers urged that the board of regents of the A. & M. college be enlarged and that the members be appointed by the governor.

The resolutions pledged loyalty to the incoming president, J. H. Eskridge and the entire faculty, including the new members. Regret at the resignation of J. B. Cantwell as president was expressed.

INDIAN WANTS LOOSE FROM MONEY VAMPIRE

Says White Woman Married Him Only For Purpose of Milking Him of His Coin

Ponca City, June 13.—Earl M. Crouse, Osage Indian ranchman living near Granola in the western Osage, is asking a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Clara Crouse, alleging that she has made of him a nervous wreck because of her insistent and continuous appeals to him for money. He maintains that she has no Indian blood and that she married him purely because of the fact that he is an Osage and supposed to receive a lot of money.

He alleges that, prior to his knowing her, that she made arrangements through one Abednego Bonnell to bring him to her home and introduce him, which Bonnell did and that they were married not long afterward at Winfield, Kansas, while he was in an intoxicated condition and that he knew nothing of the wedding until the morning after she has a suit pending for a separate maintenance, wherein she asks for half of his holding, estimated worth $70,000, and $500 a month alimony.

So far eighty-eight indictments have been returned and of these, the vast majority are for negroes, it is understood. Officials say that many of the negroes named in the indictments have fled from the city, but a determined effort will be made to apprehend them. Attorney General Freeling, who is conducting the inquiry will go to Oklahoma City today to argue a case growing out of the riot and will not return until Wednesday until which time, the grand jury adjourned.

Sex and the Spending Habit

Scene, The Fireside. Times, The Evening Hour. Characters, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Home.

Mrs. Home (With feeling). It seems terrible, Henry! My heart bleeds at the thought of it! Mr. Home (Reading The Leader). U-h-h-h-m-m-m. Mrs. Home (Indignant). Oh, how can you be so unmoved when all those children in China are starving? I'd think a man would want to do something.

Mr. Home. Shall we bring them over here to starve? It wouldn't be any pleasanter for 'em. (Stops reading to fill his pipe.)

Mrs. Home (Meditatively). Just think, now, what your tobacco expenditures could do for the starving children! It costs 6 cents there to feed a child. You have smoked up a poor, innocent boy's meal today!

Mr. Home (Looking at his pipe in disgust). Darn it all—I wondered what was in that tobacco! I thought it was alfalfa, or sumpin like that, you say a kid put meal in it? Well, maybe he is innocent, but jist what'll I ketch 'im.

Mrs. Home (Trying not to smile). Do you know, Harry, how much the tobacco bill of this country was last year? Well, it was almost half a billion dollars! I read about it the other day. Isn't that awful?

Mr. Home. Ah, I've got later information than that when you interrupted me a minute ago. I was readin' about how much women paid last year for gimcracks. Say—its a fright! I never would—a believed 't. You ought to read it.

Mrs. Home (A little dazed). W-h-y-y-er-tha—that—Oh, you're just trying—

Mr. Home (Energetically). Tryin' nothin'! I'm expressin' horror at the way you women waste money when it's so darned scarce, an' so many starvin' kids in Asia, Africa, Europe an' the coal minin' districts.

The Oil Situation

Washington, June 18.—J. A. Phelan, of the shipping board staff, urges in his recent report on the Mexican oil situation transmitted to Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee that since the proven oil field in Mexico "is fast going into salt water," the American government "either directly and in cooperation with American capital, proceed immediately to develop oil fields" in the southern republic, adding: "The potential production of Mexico is almost unlimited is beyond question."

Mr. Phelan discusses at length conditions in the oil industry, and presents, under the head of "recommendations," "That the proven oil field of Mexico within a reasonable period is certain to go into salt water is a demonstrable fact and this may come sooner than expected. Inasmuch the consumption of oil in the United States increased from two hundred million barrels in ten years it is certain that this country will have to depend upon foreign oil and principally Mexican oil for fuel purposes in the future."

"As the American merchant marine is fast going into fuel oil, it is necessary that this supply be assured."

San Antonio, Texas, June 18.—Prohibition agents have misunderstood, misinterpreted and tried to misapply the plain statements of the Volstead act, Samuel C. Henry of Chicago, secretary of the National association of retail druggists, declared here Friday, speaking before members of the Texas Pharmaceutical association. If conditions are not changed, Henry said, the druggists will carry their fight to the supreme court. He said that he expected to serve such notice on the commissioner of prohibition at Washington next week.

A Few Help Hints To Success.

The man of "go" is seldom let go. Have a goal other than gold or you'll end up a disappointed mortal. Some persons "fall into a fortune," but nobody ever yet fell into success. Success entails climbing. No man is completely a failure as long as he retains faith that he will one day succeed. Cultivate your brain, not your brayin'. Smiles shorten the miles.

TO TIGHTEN UP DRY ENFORCEMENT IN STATES

Washington, June 18.—Creation of a separate and distinct prohibition enforcement unit in each state with a state director at its head forms the basis of the reorganization of the prohibition enforcement organization worked out by Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau and prohibition Commissioner Haynes, the present administrative districts, comprising several states, will be abolished.

The plan was laid today before Chairman Penrose, and Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, of the senate finance committee, who approved it and it will be put into force soon. Leader classified ads get results.
