Meat & Poultry Inspection By the Numbers

Types of Inspection

Indiana is one of 27 states with a state-based meat inspection program.

All meat and poultry for human food must be slaughtered and processed in an establishment inspected by the Indiana State Board of Animal Health (BOAH) or the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Food Safety and Inspection Service (USDA-FSIS). Indiana offers three types of oversight: official inspection, custom-exempt, and cooperative interstate shipping (CIS).

Custom-Exempt Plants
Custom-exempt facilities are inspected periodically to ensure they meet standards for sanitation. Only the facility and equipment is inspected; product is not.

Custom-Exempt Products
Animals and carcasses are NOT inspected. Meat processed as custom-exempt may be consumed only by the owner of the animal and household guests. It may not be sold or donated.

State vs. USDA Inspection
By law, all facilities operating under state inspection must meet the same standards for sanitation, handling and processing as those under USDA, or federal, inspection. Just as federally inspected plants are under supervision of a USDA inspector, Indiana's official establishments are monitored by a state inspector.

Home Slaughter: Individuals who raise their own livestock or poultry are free to process their own animals, or send the animals to a custom-exempt facility. Animals processed at home or in a custom-exempt facility can be consumed only by the owner and nonpaying guests and employees—they cannot be sold or donated. Hunter-harvested wild game, such as wild deer and game birds, are exempt from inspection.

Indiana Meat & Poultry Buyer's Guide

2020

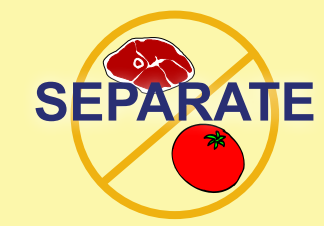

Indiana farmers produce and sell a variety of locally processed meat and poultry products.

This guide features meat and poultry processors inspected by the Indiana State Board of Animal Health, Meat & Poultry Inspection Division.

Be Food Safe

CLEAN
Wash hands, food, kitchen utensils and surfaces before and after preparing food.

SEPARATE
Keep liquids from raw meat, poultry and seafood away from ready-to-eat food. Do not use the same utensils and cutting boards.

COOK
Use a meat thermometer. You cannot tell if food is cooked to a safe temperature by how it looks.

CHILL
Bacteria spreads fastest at temperatures between 40°F and 140°F, chill food properly to reduce the risk of foodborne illness.
