3 President's Report

Rebecca Rogers began her final report as President, noting her sense of honor to be present for this historic anniversary during which we will be honoring four esteemed colleagues for their contributions to our Association. Before briefly presenting these colleagues, however, she addresses ISCHE's accomplishments over the past year.

I. Institutional Issues

As reported last year ISCHE now has its own bank account and is officially recognized as a non-profit organization in Germany, thanks in large part to secretary Karin Priem's dealings with our lawyer and German bank establishments. This introduces new levels of professionalism in our accounting, which the EC would like to make less burdensome for our treasurer through an agreement with the European Educational Research Association (EERA), which also manages the ECER conference. Over the past year the officers of ISCHE have been engaged in conversations with EERA to help deal with financial and administrative issues related to being based in Germany, as well as logistical details in relation to our membership and local organizing committees. Our concern is to allow EC members to focus more on the programmatic nature of our Association. We would like EERA to help us develop a conference management tool, which will relieve the local organizing committees of much of the logistical burden of organizing a conference: contact with evaluators, collecting money, organizing the conference. We are also considering merging this tool with the membership management system, currently done through Taylor & Francis. The cooperation with EERA is also meant to ensure we don't need to have a German-speaking EC member in order to deal with the business of being an association based in Germany.

Our membership campaign in 2018 was far more successful than last year. As of August 27, 2018, we have 338 members, including 85 students. There are the highest figures we have had since we became a membership organization three years ago, and confirms our hypothesis that last year's decline was related to the location of the conference in Buenos Aires. Among this year's members, there were 151 renewals (virtually everyone from 2017 when we recorded 169 members). Members in 2018 come from 43 different countries and 87 members also subscribe to PH. We have had less success increasing the number of national associations who become members: seven societies have paid their dues like in 2017.

ISCHE continues to pursue its goal to attract early career researchers offering a reduced membership fee as well as organizing an early career travel fund for the second year. We received 13 submissions for such support and distributed travel funds to 7 people. Again the decision was made decision to support graduate students who were close to defending not beginning PhD students, and the selection process took into account both need and merit. People with tenure-track or permanent jobs were not a priority. Rebecca Rogers noted that the effort to endow a 40th anniversary travel fund that would generate income for the future was not a success and seems to suggest that our membership is not inclined to contribute to this sort of initiative. ISCHE will continue however in the future to allocate such funds from its membership income. Finally, ISCHE also continued to support travel funds for a few students to attend the History of Education Doctoral Summer School.

Communication, Website, Historical Memory: Rebecca Rogers has pursued the practice of sending out two to three presidential newsletters to registered members and she urges members who don't receive them to let the officers know. These letters are then posted on the website, thanks to the diligent efforts of the early career researcher on the committee, Inês Felix. The latter has also done a great job developing the section on the website devoted to Early Career Researchers and welcomes information about jobs and post-doctoral fellowship that might be of interest to our membership.

Rebecca Rogers also communicates regularly with the presidents of National Associations and reiterates the EC's interest in getting regular news from these associations. She notes as well the possibility of sharing the ISCHE logo for initiatives of our member associations.

Thanks to the previous president Eckhardt Fuchs, ISCHE's archives from the late 1970s until the early 2000s are now catalogued and available for consultation at the Bibliothek für Bildungsgeschichte Forschung (BBF) here in Berlin. As paper archives diminish, the EC is in active discussion with the archivists at the BBF about how to preserve our digital archives from 2000 forward. We anticipate making a further request for funding to the Stichting PH to help us in these efforts.

Capacity building: Over the years, ISCHE has become increasingly engaged in supporting scholars and scholarship in the history of education. Among the recent initiatives, Rebecca Rogers is pleased to note that the ISCHE book series "Global Histories of Education" has attracted quite a few proposals since it was first announced in 2016. Diana Vidal, who coordinates this initiative for the EC, reports that 1 monograph has successfully completed the peer review process, and 2 edited volumes are in the final stages. At least 2 books should appear in our series next year! The President expresses her thanks to the committee in charge of this.

The ISCHE First Book Award is a similar initiative to support our field. The 2018 award was given to Jon Shelton for his book entitled, Teacher Strike! Public Education and the Making of a New American Political Order. Once again Rebecca Rogers expressed her thanks to the multilingual book award committee that Frank Simon has chaired for the past two years. She notes that the committee would like to see more submissions in all of the ISCHE languages and that submissions for 2019 are due September 28, 2018.

Members continue to show their interest in organizing Pre-Conference Workshops. Three such workshops were organized in Buenos Aires in 2018; another three were organized in Berlin: Funding Mass Education; Visual History of Education; Shifting the Frames on 'Femininity'. Standing Working Groups also continue to thrive: seven are running currently and three new groups will be presented latter in the GA. The titles and end-dates of the seven groups are the following: Mapping the Discipline History of Education [ends 2019]; Touching Bodies [ends 2019]; Objects, Senses and the Material World of Schooling [ends 2020]; Migrants, Migration and Education [ends 2021]; Réformisme(s), Progressisme(s), Conservatisme (s) en éducation : quelles argumentations critiques ? [ends 2021]; History of Laic Education: concepts, policies and practices in the world [ends 2021];

Growing up in out-of-home care: Histories of children and youths in foster families and residential homes [ends 2022].

As mentioned earlier with respect to institutional development, ISCHE is actively engaged in supporting early career researchers, notably through financial support to attend the annual conference or through support for the History of Education Doctoral Summer School. This year's summer school was in Riga and was attended by 28 students from 17 different nationalities, one-third of which were from outside Europe. Approximately 235 students have participated since 2010 and their presence in our annual conference is evidence of the success of the summer school. Next year's summer school will be in Liverpool from July 13-16, 2019.

New Initiatives: Last year we asked the general assembly to approve an initiative to create an ISCHE Conference Abstracts Database, which was also generously funded by the Stichting PH. Thanks to Noah Sobe and Annemarie Valdes, this database is now available for consultation. ISCHE 31 (2009) through ISCHE 39 (2017)—with the exception of 2012, which will be added later—are now on-line. This is over 1700 records and all told is over 700,000 words of text. If you go to ische.org/abstracts-database you can now search, using the password 2018. Beginning with 2019 memberships each member will get their own separate log on. This is an exciting opportunity for members unable to attend every meeting to discover who is working on topics of interest to them, as well as to chart international historiographical developments.

Following up on the initial History of Education Salon on "Education and the Body", the next ISCHE salon will include videos of conversations with Jeroen Dekker, Marc Depaepe, Joyce Goodman and Ruth Watts about their involvement with ISCHE. These are all ISCHE members who have received honorary life memberships. The website will also include an interview of Frank Simon—"Frank Simon: A personal story about everyday educational realities"—by Sjaak Braster and Maria del Mar del Pozo who have generously offered us the possibility of reposting for our members. Once again Rebecca Rogers reminds ISCHE members that the EC welcomes proposals for other such History of Education Salons.

Rebecca Rogers concluded by thanking the local organizers, the EC and all ISCHE members for their contributions to making ISCHE such a dynamic and inclusive association, and noted her pleasure at serving as President over the past three years. Before giving the floor to treasurer Noah Sobe, whose second term concludes here in Berlin, she wishes to express special thanks for all he has done for ISCHE first as secretary during Eckhardt Fuch's Presidency, then as treasurer under her Presidency; Noah was an essential force in moving ISCHE into its new era, as a membership association, generating income, and developing the range of programmatic activities just described.

4 Treasurer's Report and Proposed Budget for 2019

NS thanks the EC committee for excellent cooperation during his mandate as ISCHE treasurer. He stresses that ISCHE has grown tremendously in terms of its budget and operational financial affairs. A further highlight is the growing number of individual membership. NS presented a Treasurer's report and proposed a budget for 2019 (Appendix 1). He also introduced the plans of the EC to implement a cooperation with the European Educational Research Association (EERA) for administrative purposes. With this cooperation, the EC will modify its contracts with Local Organizers of ISCHE conferences: ISCHE will collect conference fees in the future and run the conference management tool. NS asked for a motion to approve both the cooperation with EERA and the 2018 budget. The General Assembly voted for a motion presented by Christine Mayer and seconded by Pablo Pineau to accept the treasurer's report. The motion carried unanimously without abstentions.

5 Exculpation of the Executive Committee

RR asked the General Assembly for a motion to accept the reports presented and exculpate the officers of ISCHE. Clémence Cardon Quint presented the motion and Kay Whitehead seconded. The motion unanimously carried by voice vote.

6 Honorary Life-Time Membership: Jeroen J.H. Dekker, Marc Depaepe, Joyce Goodman, and Frank Simon

RR announces that ISCHE will honor four outstanding colleagues of each decade of ISCHE's existence and presents short CVs of J. Dekker, M. Depaepe, J. Goodman and F. Simon on the basis of the laudations that have been included in the conference package. The colleagues were called on-stage and presented with Honorary Life-Time Membership plaques, and received an enthusiastic ovation on the part of the General Assembly.

8 ISCHE First Book Award

RR announced the awarding of the ISCHE First Book Award to Jon Shelton (University of Wisconsin–Green Bay), “Teacher Strike! Public Education and the Making of a New American Political Order” (Chicago, Illinois USA: University of Illinois Press, 2017). She thanked the selection committee (Frank Simon, James Albisetti, Inés Dussel, Solenn Huitric, and Elsie Rockwell) and noted that Shelton’s work is an excellent piece of research on the recent history of education. Jon Shelton’s research offers a very clear and insightful analysis of the political context in which teacher strikes occurred in the US in the 60s and 70s (in large cities including New York City, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Philadelphia, and St. Louis). It further provides an interesting analysis of the relationships of teachers’ unions to the Black activism movement and other civil rights movements. The author’s writing style is agreeable and allows the reader to follow easily the line of argument. The subject also offers links to current events. The analysis of teacher strikes is embedded in an in-depth study of the working conditions of teachers, while also addressing intersections with other social movements as well as racial and gender inequalities. The book covers an impressive range of sources: unions’ archives, city archives, newspapers and magazines, among others. Very creative is the way in which the author reviewed letters sent to jailed union leaders, seeking to understand the impact of media discourses in citizens’ opinions; these letters are an innovative source and they offer a good entry point to public opinion. The main argument of the book is the breakdown of the labor-liberal alliance during the 1970s, which paves the way for the rise of neoliberalism in the 1980s and 1990s. While the book adopts a relatively classical historical approach, it is to be commended for its thorough and dense study of teacher union mobilizations. It raises new questions and brings new perspectives to this topic. This book makes a substantial contribution to the fields of labor history and educational history. Jon Shelton came to the podium to receive his prize and thanked ISCHE for its support.

9 Early Career Conference Paper Award

RR announced the awarding of the ISCHE Early Career Conference Paper Award to Sophie Rudolph (University of Melbourne, Australia), “To ‘Uplift the Aborigine’ or to ‘Uphold’ Aboriginal Dignity and Pride? Indigenous Educational Debates in 1960s Australia Teacher Strike! Public Education and the Making of a New American Political Order.” She noted that Sophie Rudolph’s paper is based on primary sources and all of the relevant literature the paper documents educational debates in politically turbulent 1960s Australia about the racism faced by Aboriginal people. In doing so it deals with a question that was central to conference and demonstrates ‘that questions of emancipation through education are not straightforward’ and that ‘educational provision must be thoughtfully negotiated with communities.’ The paper also raised issues about the extent to which cultural hybridity has a place in emancipation debates. In its analysis of the operation of a particular set of ‘racial logics’ the paper is a fine addition to postcolonial literature. Sophie Rudolph came to the podium to receive her prize and thanked ISCHE for support.

10 ISCHE 41 Porto 2019

Luís Grosso Correia reported on preparations for ISCHE 2019, to take place in Porto, Portugal, 16–20 July on the theme “Places and Spaces of Education”.

11 ISCHE 42 Örebro 2020

Johannes Westberg reported on plans being made for ISCHE 42 which will take place in Örebro, Sweden. The proposed theme is the "New Social History of Education".

12 Election of New ISCHE President

Current ISCHE President Rebecca Rogers noted that the ISCHE Constitution stipulates that to be eligible for election as ISCHE President an individual has to have been serving on the Executive Committee for at least one year at the time of his/her election. She noted, that in accordance with ISCHE tradition, the EC was proposing a candidate to the General Assembly and the EC recommended Karin Priem. Because the ISCHE Constitution specifies that election for ISCHE President take place by vote, RR noted that ballots were being distributed and that Karin Priem needed to achieve a majority of votes cast in order to be elected to the position. The ballots were collected and counted by two current members of the EC (Simonetta Polenghi and Diana Vidal) and two former presidents (Frank Simon and Kate Rousmaniere). Later in the meeting, once the ballots had been counted, Ian Grosvenor announced that Karin Priem had achieved a majority of votes cast (88 out of 95). Karin Priem accepted and the assembly congratulated her on her election to the ISCHE Presidency.

13 Election of New EC Members

Rebecca Rogers noted that the General Assembly needed to fill two vacant positions on the Executive Committee and that in accordance with the procedures established in the ISCHE constitution three nominations have been received (and made available in the conference package). Marc A. Van Overbeke (University of Illinois at Chicago, USA) and Beatrice Vincze (Eötvös Loránd University, Hungary) were invited to come to the podium and gave statements regarding their interest in serving on the EC; Inés Dussel (CINVESTAV, México) sent a video statement regarding her candidature for the EC. The election took place by vote and ballots were distributed, collected and counted by two current members of the EC (Simonetta Polenghi and Diana Vidal) and two former presidents (Frank Simon and Kate Rousmaniere). Later in the meeting, once the ballots had been counted, Ian Grosvenor announced that Inés Dussel (90 out of 95) and Marc A. Van Overbeke (66 out of 95) had achieved the majority of votes cast and the assembly congratulated them on their election to the ISCHE EC committee. Beatrice Vincze has achieved 44 out of 95 votes.

14 Discussion and Approval of Revised Byelaws

RR explained that the ISCHE byelaws require the approval of the GA and that the EC was recommending an approval of the byelaw changes with regard to Standing Working Groups by adding the following phrase at the end of paragraph 7.1 (Establishing a new SW): "If a SWG completes its mission before the conclusion of its five year term, the convenors may voluntarily cease operations by informing the EC in writing of this decision" and by adding a new paragraph: "7.3. All SWGs must issue a public call for papers for sessions to be held at the annual meeting. These should be disseminated on the ISCHE website at least one month before the submission deadline. SWGs review and make acceptance determinations on the proposals they receive. On a motion proposed by Marc Depaepe and seconded by Pablo Pineau the byelaw revision was accepted unanimously.

15 Discussion and approval of new Standing Working Groups

Three proposals for the establishment of new Standing Working Groups entitled "Material Hermeneutics and Remediation as Challenges in Visual Studies in Histories of Education," "The History of Educational Funding: Models, Debates and Policies in an International Perspective (1800-2000)," and "Gendering Local, National, Regional, Transnational and Supra-National Histories of Education" were discussed and accepted by voice vote. It was clarified that the SWG on "Gendering Local, National, Regional, Transnational and Supra-National Histories of Education” has five convenors.

16 Other Business

Members asked about whether regional workshops to attract members from poorly represented geographic locations are still under consideration. Rebecca Rogers responded that the EC would certainly consider such initiatives but the decision in the past years has been to try to facilitate the presence of scholars from these areas in our annual conference.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned at 5:00 pm.

Respectfully submitted

Karin Priem
